This one's for you, underclassmen...

As Editor in Chief of the CUMBERLAND Yearbook, I get the privilege to dedicate the book to one or a group of people. While many of my predecessors have dedicated the book to the senior class, I feel that there is always one group of people who seem to get overlooked.

This year's book is dedicated to the underclassmen. Regardless of age, they are the ones trying to be all that they can be and achieve senior status. While seniors exemplify hard work, dedication and perserverance, the underclassmen deserve to be commended as well. Every year they grow and learn something new about themselves, others or their future goals. They create these pages, they run your school, they advance the sports team and they make Shippensburg University what it is every year.

For those reasons, I have decided to dedicate this book to you, the underclassmen; those who are waiting for their time to wear their caps and gowns. This book is not just for seniors, as you are about to see in the inner-workings of its pages and take a closer look.

Improved Jazzman's

COFFEE... RELAXATION... ENTERTAINMENT

Every Ship student knows Jazzman's is the place to go for that jolting cup of coffee needed to stay awake and finish that 10-page paper. After the CUB renovations, Jazzman's has even more to offer students than their daily dose of caffeine.

Besides the standard cup of joe, Jazzman's offers cappuccino, espresso, hot chocolate and smoothies.

"Smoothies are a great addition for us non-coffee lovers. I keep spending all my flex on them," junior Paula Thomas said.

Smoothies aren't the only new item on the menu; personal pan pizzas became available Friday and Saturday nights between midnight and 1:30 a.m. for those who need a quick and tasty snack.

The recently renovated Jazzman's came with the brand new McFeely's Lounge. McFeely's, with its modern furniture, offers students a new place to study, eat or spend time with friends.

"Jazzman's has a great atmosphere now, I love the new tables," junior Alexis Rohrbaugh said.

Adding to the atmosphere of Jazzman's, the Coffee House Series has provided musical entertainment for students on various weeknights. The series has allowed for up-and-coming artists like Blue Sanders and Amanda Gariggues to play, as well as giving Ship students a chance to have their talents heard. PJ Hall, Fighting for Sara and Big & Tall have entertained audiences numerous times with their original songs.

With a new appearance, drinks and coffee house series, Jazzman's made a complete transformation this year. But with all the changes, it's still the same old Jazzman's at heart.

Going wireless

UNNECESSARY? ... NECESSARY? ... ACCESSORY?

The question that changed cell phone commercials forever can be heard echoing throughout Shippensburg University: "Can you hear me now? Good. Can you hear me now?" More and more students are becoming connected with the wireless world. It is nearly impossible to walk to class, the CUB or anywhere else on campus without passing someone using a cell phone. So what is the big deal?

"I have a cell phone because of the free long distance," Kourtney Willis, who is from Texas, said.

Cell phones eliminate the need for long distance plans, calling cards or carrying around change for pay phones. There is definitely an advantage to having a cell phone if there is ever an emergency. Many cell phone users feel safer in knowing they can be reached or reach someone else if they need to. There is a great sense of convenience in being able to call almost anyone, anywhere, anytime. But is this always a good thing?

One reason that some people do not want a cell phone is because they don't want to be able to be reached 24 hours a day.

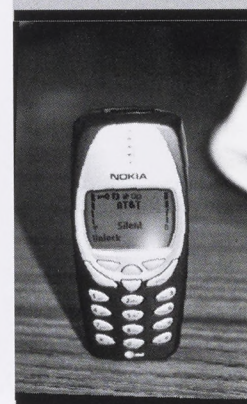

"I don't have one because they ring at the worst possible times," freshman Mark Lehman said.

One student recalled being in class when the cell phone of the person in front of her rang. Not only did the person answer it, but was annoyed when the professor asked them to hang up. Money is also an issue for some college students.

"I wish I had a cell phone, but I just can't afford it," junior Lara Minister said.

Whether one views cell phones as unnecessary, a necessity or an accessory, the fact is they aren't going anywhere. Technology has allowed people to take part in the fast-paced world and appreciate that they are finding more and more ways to stay in touch.

Most popular spots

CUB... KRINER... HEIGES

Every university is known for something special, whether it is the school mascot or its location and surrounding area. Shippensburg University is no different. Among other things, Shippensburg is also known for the numerous spots on campus that students love and go to quite often.

At the top of the list is the Cumberland Union Building, or as students refer to it, the CUB. This is perhaps the most popular hangout for students because of its diverse areas from the Raider Room, to study lounges and Jazzman's Café. Ship students flock to these places for smoothies, pizza and other great foods and drinks. It also provides a quiet study area, solitude or a place to relax with friends.

"The CUB is a good place on campus because they show good movies," freshman Trista Putt said.

Another great place on campus is Kriner Dining Hall. Students especially love this dining place because of the wide array of food, pleasant atmosphere and friendly staff. According to students, Kriner seems to offer a better selection of food than the other dining halls, and it attracts students who want a sit-down meal as opposed to grab-and-go.

"Kriner Dining Hall is the best spot on campus because it's clean, the food is awesome and the staff is friendly," sophomore Devon Rosencrance said.

Also included in this list are the racquetball courts, the soccer field and Heiges Field House. Many students on campus believe that the soccer field has a beautiful view of campus at nighttime, and it is visited often for that very reason.

Shippensburg University seems to have many places on campus that students love and enjoy. That just means it's a great place to be, and almost everyone here agrees.

Dormitory living

COMFORT... ORGANIZATION... CREATIVITY

Living on campus is a big part of the college experience. Dorms are where underclassmen spend most of their time. This is why it is important that students personalize their rooms to make "their home away from home" a reflection of who they are. Each dorm room looks the same in August, usually equipped with two beds, two dressers, two closets, two desks, white walls and tile floors. However, the weekend before classes start, these bland bedrooms are transformed into stylish sanctuaries.

Above all, comfort and organization are the keys to decorating a dorm room. One of the first things that some people do is bunk their beds. This allows for more space to bring in futons, butterfly chairs or bean bags. Even if the students choose not to bunk, they come up with creative arrangements. Two students moved their beds into the shape of an "L." This was ideal for them because the room was split into two sections, one for desks and studying and one for lounging. Many students supply this area with the essentials; refrigerators, microwaves and televisions.

Pier 1, Delia's and of course Wal-Mart are places to shop for treasures that make each dorm room unique.

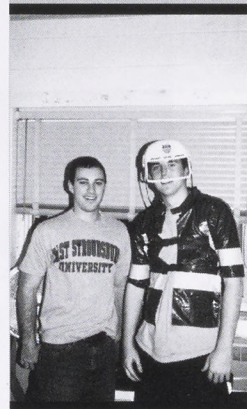

"My roommate and I have a massive wall collage in our room that we feel is unique," freshman Sarah Parme said.

Many students showcase tons of pictures of friends and families on the walls, closet doors and dressers.

"We have lots of coconuts and stuff from the beach in our room," another student said.

Whether someone lives in a dorm, apartment or off-campus, they should take a closer look at their living quarters - it can tell a lot about who they are.

Breakfast Bingo

WIN PRIZES... FREE FOOD... FUN TIMES

At the end of every semester, Ship students anxiously look forward to an event known as Breakfast Bingo.

"I go to Bingo every time they have it. I never win, but I love it anyway," sophomore Adam Osiol said. "There is always that chance that I could get the big prize. I even wear my lucky shirt when I go, even though it hasn't been too lucky so far."

Bingo is so popular that extra chairs had to be added in the CUB Great Hall around the second floor for overflow seating. Students have the opportunity to win a variety of prizes including DVD's, CD's, a karaoke machine, a DVD player, t-shirts, gift certificates to local restaurants and stores and many other items.

Held from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m., breakfast was served in the Raider Room around 11:30 p.m., while students were focused on the game. Breakfast usually consists of scrambled eggs, bacon, hash browns and french toast sticks.

"It's a great time," sophomore Janice Elder said. "You can hang out with your friends the weekend before classes end, get free food, and win prizes, plus it's practice for when we get old."

This traditional campus activity seems to continue to grow each year, allowing the students to take time away from their studies for fun with friends, prizes and food.

"It's a great way to relieve the stress before finals, plus it's free food, and a free chance to win something," junior Mike Sponsler said.

Etter Health Center

VITAL ... FREE ... HEALTH CARE

Shippensburg University's Etter Health Center, located on the east side of campus, treats a variety of students' health problems throughout the year. The health center features a self-care cold unit where students can stop between classes and activities to obtain over-the-counter medications such as Actifed, Robitussin DM, Sudafed, Tylenol and sore throat lozenges.

Physician's hours are Monday-Thursday 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Friday 10 a.m.-2 p.m. A nurse, however, is on call 24 hours a day at Etter in case of an emergency, which is especially helpful for early-morning accidents.

The physicians and nurses of the health center treat common problems such as upper respiratory infections including allergies, asthma, bronchitis, the common cold, pneumonia and sinus infections. Students with allergy problems find Etter useful for allergy injections and treatments.

The health center is especially busy during physician's hours; however, with no classes on weekends or evenings, students keep the staff of Etter busy. Some students hardly ever have to go to the health center during their four years at Shippensburg University while other students must visit Etter weekly.

"It was nice being able to get my meningitis shot at Etter and not at home," junior Paula Thomas said. This is just one of the many benefits Etter provides.

SPIRIT...ALUMNI...FOOTBALL

"We've got spirit, yes we do! We've got spirit, how 'bout you?"

Shippensburg University students are filled with spirit, especially around homecoming when the annual pep rally, held on Friday Oct. 17, 2004 before the football game, brings students, faculty and other excited fans together.

This year, many students crowded into the Heiges Field House, showing their support for the football team. Students were entertained by the SU Marching Band as the starting players were announced to the crowd. The cheerleaders performed a routine to a fast-paced song, which was followed by a dance by In-Motion Dance Troupe. The students constantly cheered throughout both performances.

On Saturday afternoon, students came out to the football game, once again showing support for the team as Shippensburg played Lock Haven University. After the first half, the half-time show began, where the SU Marching Band performed for students, professors, alumni and families. The Homecoming King and Queen, Mike Kalloz and Constance Lumb, were announced respectively. They received the crowns from last year's Homecoming King and Queen.

When the game started again, Shippensburg took control of the second half to win the game 49-13. After the game, students went on to celebrate the victory and enjoy the rest of Homecoming weekend.

What's on your head?

FASHION ... WARMTH ... ACCESSORIZE

Even though Shippensburg University is located in the southern part of the state, students are no strangers to harsh winters.

The Chambersburg Mall and Walmart make a lot of their profits from Shippensburg students running to buy winter hats and scarves.

Although hats are mostly equivated with winter, many students at Ship wear different things for fashion as well.

A student throwing a baseball cap on their head as they're running out the door to class is nothing new. Although every day is dress-down day in college, the bandanas really make appearances on Fridays, especially if students had a long night the night before...studying, of course.

Espresso Yourself

TALENT... RELAXATION... ENTERTAINMENT

In the CUB MPR this year, Shippensburg University had its own version of a talent show where people could 'Espresso' themselves.

With many musicians taking the stage, the event gave Ship students one more reason to take a break from studying and relax with their friends.

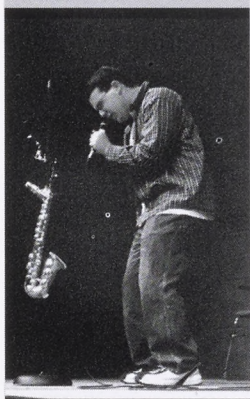

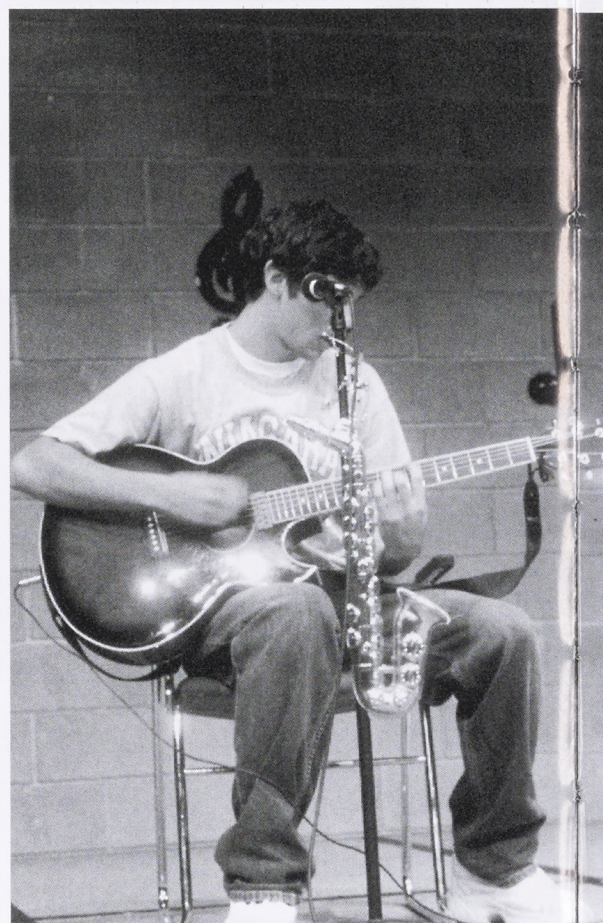

"It was a really good show," one student said. "I'm glad I came upstairs to see what was going on."

One performer said, "I was nervous at first, but got a huge adrenaline rush once people started clapping. I'll have to check with my agent about my next show!"

Iron Chef

FOOD ... COMPETITION ... MAKEUP

After being hired to spice up Kriner's look, Chef Trey Davidson did just that with a series of Iron Chef Competitions.

Started on Wednesday, Sept. 24, 2003, the first Iron Chef was a collaborative effort, rather than a competition.

With communication through Kriner's comment board, "Iron Boy" Luke Cummings volunteered to learn how to cook with Chef Trey.

"I knocked over one little pan, but all in all, I got Chef Trey's and many others' approval," Cummings said. "I had a blast doing it and especially along side a good man like Chef Trey. I really admire what he's done with the sound off board and just getting students involved."

Shippensburg had an immediate response to Iron Chef, spoofing the Food Network's "Iron Chef" cooking show.

Not long after Cummings shared the spotlight with Chef Trey, he decided to try and make the competition a monthly event.

On Friday, October 24, the Cooking Commandoes took to the grill. After hearing about the first Iron Chef, junior Chris Ondeck decided that he and his friends wanted to be Davidson's next opponent.

"I sent Chef Trey a comment card suggesting we fight it out in the kitchen. He agreed and planned the event," Ondeck said.

With Davidson's rules displayed in Kriner, "no camo, no play" and "talking crap is okay," the former Marine showed off his skills against his opponents.

The teams had one hour to prepare a three-course meal, which would be judged by student judges. Ultimately, the Commando Cook-off team won, which led to a rematch.

Although the rematch didn't occur until the spring semester, old wounds died hard.

For this competition, the students submitted ideas for the theme and chose a superheroes theme.

Everyone came out for the event including Superman, Mr. T., Underdog and even a sumo wrestler.

"They really did an incredible job cooking," junior Brent Johnson said about judging the dishes. As a judge for the final two competitions, Johnson got an opportunity to see how each team improved over time and tailor their dishes to the judges' tastes.

"I'm so glad that I got the opportunity to do this," Davidson said. "I would love to continue this again next year, but it's all up to the students. I give them what they want - within reason."

Campus Construction

NOISY... NEW... NECESSARY

With the sound of jackhammers early in the morning and detours around campus, this past year's construction became a part of every student's life here at Shippensburg University. From a walkway allowing students to travel around the entire campus, to a brand new performing arts center, big improvements were made around the university.

Students' reactions were mixed about the sweeping changes made to campus.

"I don't have a car on campus, but I find it inconvenient when the construction noise wakes me up in the morning," freshman Stephanie Mitchell said.

In addition to the noise, students also witnessed slower traffic and detours as a result of the termination of certain roads and the building of a street encircling campus.

Along with the new walkways and driving routes, workers also worked on a new performing arts center located behind the CUB. Most students, like freshman Royce Hoffman, were excited by the addition of the new center.

"I'm glad they're building the performing arts center because it'll bring more arts to our campus," Hoffman said.

The new center will have a seating capacity of over 1500 and will house the Music Department with new classrooms, labs and faculty office spaces. Freshman Lindsay Boyer related the pros and cons of campus construction.

"I feel that the construction is a little inconvenient for me," Boyer said. "Since the entrance is not open behind McLean, I now have to go all the way around just to move my car. After the construction is complete, however, I feel that parking on campus and entering the campus will be a lot easier."

Although the construction was a hassle for some, the end result was a definite benefit for all Shippensburg students.

Art of Being

CULTURE ... DIVERSITY ... SPECIAL

Every year there are different events on campus to give students something to do. Some are educational, while others are not. The Office of Multicultural Affairs makes it a point every semester to offer students a chance to get to know a culture they may not otherwise get to experience.

The Art of Being program began a few years ago to give students a chance to express and embrace their differences. Throughout the years, many groups have been highlighted, such as the Art of Being Disabled, African-American, Caribbean, Latino, GLBT and many others.

At each program, different foods, music and messages are displayed pertaining to each subject area. Usually, there is at least one Art of Being held each month.

"I think the programs are well put together and I enjoy them. I think it should be a reoccurring thing," junior Jenny Petty said.

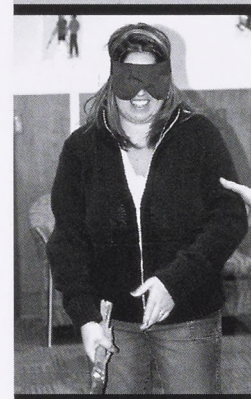

Sponsored by the Office of Multicultural Affairs and a residence hall, the resident assistants (RA's) and resident director (RD) of the particular residence hall host the event in the hall's community room.

"I really hope that these programs continue. While there always isn't the biggest turnout, it really does specialize a certain person's culture. I think the program is really beneficial to students," junior Jamie Ford said. Ford was a resident assistant in Harley Hall.

Battle of the Bands

COMPETITIVE...ENJOYABLE...ROCKIN'

This year, the Activities Program Board's (APB) Battle of the Bands brought a whole new round of excitement to Shippensburg University. With five different rounds and five bands performing each time, the Battle of the Bands, located in the CUB MPR, was the place to be on Friday nights. With admission costing only a $1, poor college students couldn't go wrong.

"It gives local bands a way to be recognized and gives students something to do on weekends," junior Stephanie Rush, the APB's entertainment chair said.

Five bands played each night with the music ranging from punk to rock 'n' roll to emo. There were many talented groups including Fighting for Sara and Diversion, whose members are all Shippensburg students. The winner of each round, Torn From Red, The Commercials, Zero Potential, Sickie Eye and My Latest Affair, returned on April 16 to compete against each other for a chance to open for Flickerstick the following week. Each band played their best, but in the end it came down the audience's votes to find out who was the winner. The Commercials won by a single vote.

The Commercials, who play a cross between rock 'n' roll and Indie rock, were excited to win and ecstatic about opening for Flickerstick. On April 23, the MPR was filled with Ship students, some who traveled far to see Flickerstick's performance. After The Commercials warmed up the crowd, Flickerstick took the stage and gave the audience an unforgettable show.

BULL RIDING....SUMO WRESTLING...BOXING

Shippensburg University's annual Springfest could not have fallen on a more beautiful day.

The sun was shining April 24, as Ship students strolled the lawns around the Cumberland Union Building. The Activities Programming Board set up a plethora of games and activities for students to enjoy on the beautiful spring Saturday afternoon.

Sumo wrestling, jousting, mechanical bull riding and an inflatable obstacle course were just a few of the activities students were able to engage in.

"This was the first time I ever came to Springfest," junior Greg Oaster said. "I definitely think I'll be back next year."

The dining hall also joined the fun, catering an around-the-world feast. Dishes from Germany, Italy and Mexico were on the menu for students to sample.

Also taking place in Seth Grove Stadium was the annual Red and Blue game.

"It was really a lot of fun," said sophomore Emily Graybill, "They had a lot of different things for people to do."

The Raiders finished a great season with a 8-3 record overall and 3-2 in the conference. Coach William Rees, who has been with the team for 14 years, said the team started out very well. After winning their first three games, the Raiders ranked 14th in the nation's American Football Coaches Association (AFCA) NCAA Division II poll. Later in the season, a tough loss to Indiana University of Pennsylvania (IUP) jeopardized Ship's first place position in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Western Division.

"Our kids played hard and IUP played well, but turnovers hurt us," Coach Rees said. "I was proud of how our kids played hard every down. The defense played a hard, physical game. The offense did well despite going against a physically bigger defense."

Sophomore quarterback Rick Henshaw led the team with 1,429 total yards and 13 touchdowns.

Tightend juniors Brian Sekel and Joel Gamble contributed with kick returns and touchdown receptions. Running back junior John Kuhn broke Ship's single game record for rushing with over 500 yards on 69 carries. Kuhn was named first-team All American. The yardage on the ground helped Shippensburg defeat East Stroudsburg University 40-14. On defense, sophomore Brent Grimes led the team in punt returns, kick returns and interceptions.

With only a few seniors on the team this year, Rees was impressed at how younger players, including Kuhn, Greg Hutchinson, Clint Inch and Dan Walsh showed both talent and leadership. Even after such a successful season, Coach Rees feels they have a long way to go. During the spring semester and summer months, the team will work in the weight room and study training books to prepare for next year's season.

Finishing with a winning season of 9-8-2, the women's soccer team has proven their talent. They have been together for a long time and shown that they can play well as a team. Coach Furfaro's seniors helped step the team up and get them to play more intensely.

Sophomore Lindsey Incorvati was one of the new players who was recruited to help the team reach their goals.

Incorvati finished her first season with two goals, one of which was a game-winning score. In a game on Oct. 25, the Raiders led Kutztown University 1-0 at halftime, but the Golden Bears came back to score a goal, and tie the game with only a few minutes left. Not to be defeated, Incorvati scored the winning goal on a pass from sophomore Nikki Kegerreis.

The most memorable game of the season for the Lady Raiders was against Mansfield University early in the season. First, the game was postponed due to Hurricane Isabel. Then, the team forgot their practice balls for the away game and had nothing to work with. Even so, they rallied for their third shutout and defeated Mansfield with a 7-0 win. Christy Bush, Jennifer Lee, Nikki Kegerreis, Sandy Wasniewski and Jeanine Cefaluall had the opportunity to score with assistance from Lauren Bolis, Grace Catranis and Jennifer Praesel. It was a great team effort and represented the entire season well.

Pleased with his team's record Coach Furfaro still has high expectations for next year.

"The team needs to work harder and want it more because they are a very talented team," he said.

This year's team is the "best team I've had since I've been here," said Coach Guy Furfaro of the men's soccer team.

This comes from the man who has been with Shippensburg University for 10 seasons, the last seven as head coach. The team began their season with a 2-1 win against Wilmington College, which set the pace for the rest of the season. The team finished their season by shutting out Millersville University in a 2-0 finale win. With 11 wins and seven losses, the team showed growth and improvement from the previous season.

This improvement can be attributed to the fact that every member of the team played hard and was dedicated by giving 100 percent. Coach Furfaro was very pleased with how the season progressed, noting that all of the freshmen players showed great potential. Of these young players, Geoffery Bloes stood out.

Wearing the No. 2 jersey, Bloes scored 29 points which was the most points for the Raiders offense. With five game-winning goals, Bloes became a valuable player on the team. Bloes broke the tie at half-time in the season opener, leaping high in the air and sailing the ball into the net after senior Matt Anderson set up the corner. He also contributed to the many shutouts this season, including scoring two goals against Slippery Rock University and one each against Felican College and Dickinson College.

One of the most meaningful games this season was on Oct. 4 against nationally-ranked East Stroudsburg University.

Only 54 minutes into the game, both Bloes and senior Andy Jennings were able to break from East Stroudsburg's defense to score two goals. The Raiders held the Warriors to two points at the end of regulation, but lost in overtime. Although it was a tough loss, it illustrated the work ethic and dedication of the team.

The overall success of the team and the commitment of the players, especially the new freshmen, were greatly influenced by the strong leaders on the team. Seniors Matt Anderson, Matt Broskey, Mike Zackon, Bob McComsey and Andy Jennings led the team to an 11-7 season and 4-4 in the conference.

Coach Furfaro and the Raiders would love to make the conference playoffs next season.

As a close-knit group, not only did the field hockey team end the season by playing Bloomsburg University in the Championship Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) game, but they ended with a 19-3 record and were ranked as No. 1 in the country.

As impressive as the girls' statistics are, they only exist due to the true teamwork of the players. The team captains, Hilary Manning, Kelly Stewart and Carli Bordner, are three seniors who have stepped up into their leadership roles to truly help lead the team.

Seniors Toni Held and Jackie Gross are also committed to making the most of the team. Thanks to strong leaders, the girls have been able to bond, have fun and be the best they can be.

"They have a great sense of humor, they have so much fun and if they're not laughing, I'm worried," Coach Bertie Landes said.

A highlight of the year was the game against Lock Haven University in which the team won 5-3. No one had ever scored that much against Lock Haven before. Maybe the high scores are coming from the rituals the girls perform before the games start.

"During a warm-up before a game we have some fun time with our corners. Instead of doing a set play we do what we call a 4-1 combo, and everybody on the field has to touch the ball before we can shoot and score," Held said. "Right before the game starts, as we line up on the field, we sing the National Anthem. It's just all the little fun things we do that keeps everyday interesting, and the more fun we have, the better we play."

Women's Cross Country

Michelle Golightly, a senior on the women's cross country team, said, "This team is one of the most talented teams I've been on and their attitudes toward running made leading them fun and easy."

There were 17 runners on the team this year with Kelly Stewart, also a senior, as their leader. Coach Steve Spence was pleased with the season's smooth run, which included a first-place win at the Dickinson Long / Short Course Invitational.

Other team members have greatly influenced their fellow teammates this season. Sophomore Brie Lambert, a transfer student from Elizabethtown, has been the most influential of new team members.

Golightly and Stewart, both captains, provided lots of motivation and team spirit throughout the season.

"My fifth year on the team proved to be the most successful and rewarding due to the fact that my teammates were such hard workers and actually cared about running," Golightly said.

The team also competed strongly at the Penn State National Invitational Cross Country Race this season. The team placed 15th out of 19 teams and Stewart had the best finish of any Shippensburg athlete, taking 43rd place out of 225 runners. Stewart also led the women's team at the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Cross Country Championship where she finished fifth overall. The entire team managed to finish fifth as well.

The women's team is looking forward to next season and to running under the direction of Coach Steve Spence.

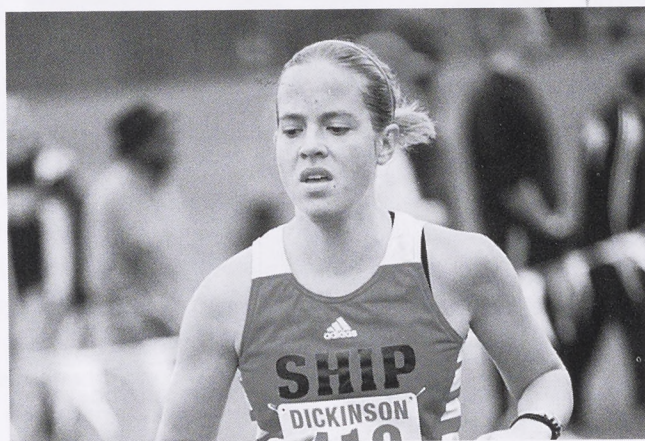

"Coach Spence has guided me every year to help me develop into a runner I never thought was in me," Golightly said. "Practice and meets have been nothing but positive highs and I am going to miss cross country so much when I graduate."

After reaching their potential last season, the men's cross country team had a positive outlook for obtaining their goals this year. After placing second 16 times in the past 25 years at Conference Championships, the team hoped to improve their overall record this season.

The team consisted of 20 runners with the top spots held by sophomores Dan Helfrick, John Somers and Allen Pryde. Somers set the tone as the team's top runner. Although it was hard to find strong leadership in a group that consisted of mostly freshmen, freshman Justin Woodruff stood out as leading runner this season.

Standing out was no problem for the rest of the team either. The men managed to finish first in the Short Course race at the Dickinson Long / Short Course Invitational. The men also placed 11th out of 20 teams at the Penn State National Invitational Cross Country Race.

Somers led the team, earning 51st in a field of 218 runners.

Somers also led the team to an eighth place finish at the Pennsylvania State Athletic Cross Country Championship. He managed to finish 14th overall with Stephen Lobianco and Dan Frankenfield earning 44th and 48th finishes respectively.

"The season is going very smoothly so far," Coach Steve Spence said half-way through the season. The men look forward to continuing that smooth run and reaching their goals again next year.

Women's Tennis

ABOVE: The women's tennis team practiced constantly to achieve the statistics that they did.

"T he first year is always a learning experience" Coach Walter Manderson said regarding his first year coaching the women's tennis team.

Although Manderson started in late August, the women's tennis team managed to prepare on their own without Coach Manderson's initial help. When he did arrive, however, the team was ready to go.

As a result, the women's team did well this season, experiencing a mix of wins and losses.

"We aren't doing as well as we should, but not as bad as we could," Coach Manderson said.

When it came time for any key event, however, the team managed to pull together and work well as a group. One key match was the spring opener against Clarion University, where the Lady Raiders, led by sophomore Lina Pavilionyte and senior Jennifer Longmire, defeated the opposing team 6-3. Both girls were also considered the team's top players.

Other key matches for the women's tennis team included previous wins over Clarion University, 5-4, and a shut out against Lincoln University, 9-0. The team had its share of losses this season as well, including a narrow loss to Kutztown University, 5-4, and another to Bloomsburg University, 7-2. Coach Manderson felt that the team still managed to accomplish at least one of their goals.

"I wanted to be competitive this season and I think we have been," Coach Manderson said.

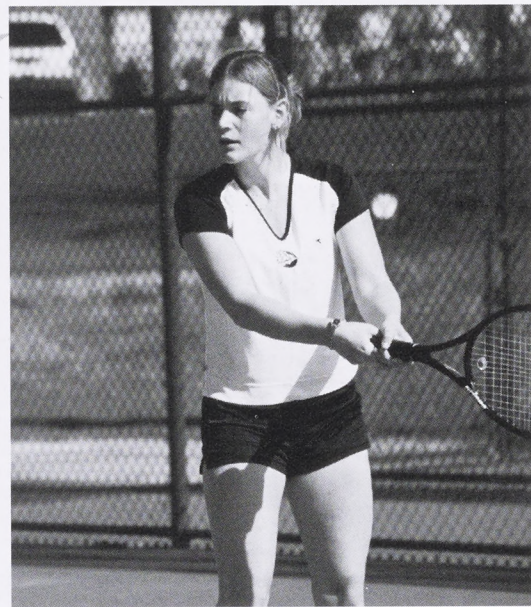

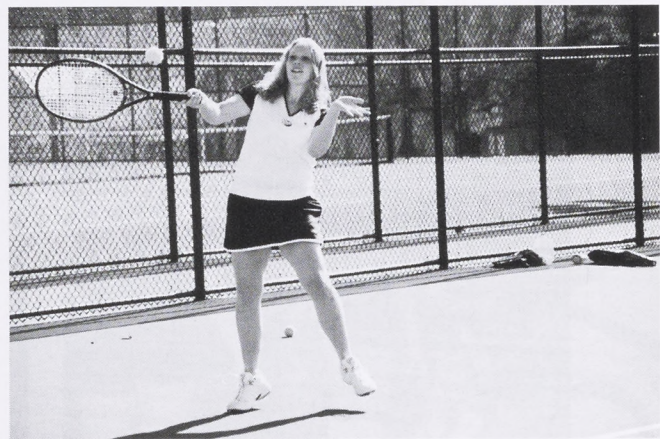

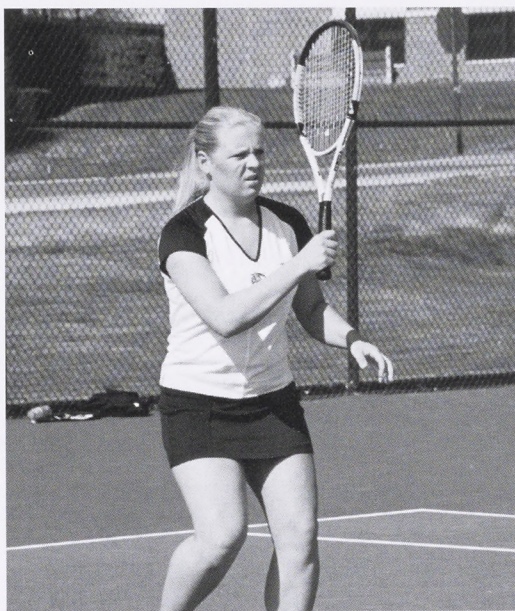

The women's tennis team also showed great promise for next season with two freshmen, Melissa Meisel and Nicole Perugini. Although the team has to say goodbye to one senior this year, the nucleus of the group will remain. Together, they are prepared and anxious to come back stronger for next season.

After a noticeable change from last season, the Lady Raiders volleyball team came back strong finishing the season with a record of 13-18. The team's competitive spirit comes out during the game, and they are willing to do what it takes to win the game.

"I'm impressed with the girls in the fact that they're doing ok, definitely an improvement over last year," Coach Randy Hood said.

The team is comprised of players who push the other players on and off the court. Thanks to efforts of juniors Alyssa Kilgore and Molly Szychulski, the morale of the team players remained high. Kilgore, Szychulski, and also senior Karen Gogal were leaders throughout the season always inspiring the girls.

"We have a pretty young team, so they're looking up to the older players. But, everyone looks up to each other," Gogal said.

After playing important games at Kutztown University and West Chester University, the girls were able to fulfill their goal of making it to the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC).

After finishing with a powerful season, the girls are already preparing for the next season.

Coach Hood plans on working hard in the off-season by emphasizing the team's skills, strength and conditioning to prepare them for next season.

Every basketball or football game isn't complete without a group of cheerleaders. Working to psych up the crowd and motivate their team, the team puts in long hours practicing to perfect their art. Although many argue whether to consider it a sport or not, no one can deny that it is hard work.

Shippensburg University's cheerleading squad is comprised of 24 male and female Raiders.

"It's a lot of hard work," Danielle DeBiase said, "but it's all worth it once I'm out on the field or the court. I really enjoy every minute of it."

Coached by Heidi Whittaker, the team practices year-round for events and competitions.

The team doesn't only lend its talents to sports, however.

The team also participates in competitions against other schools and different events around campus and the community.

"Even though we do put in a lot of hours, I love the commradery on the team," Kate Spaulding said. "It's great to be a part of a bigger team and it feels like another family."

The Lady Raiders have finished a winning season with a record of 19-11 and had the opportunity to visit the conference tournament for the 10th year in a row.

Although Coach Kristy Trn would have liked her team to be in first place and regionally ranked, she is very pleased with her team's performance this year. The versatile team is made up of many leaders, top performers and rising stars.

Senior Katie Bray is one of the team's captains.

"She is a leader in the classroom, as well as the court," Coach Trn said.

Senior Emily Swingler and junior Jennifer Scaffidi are also captains and provide the team with emotional leadership.

In addition to being captains, Bray, Scaffidi and Swingler are top performers and leading scorers. Bray leads the team with an average of 14.7 points per game, while Scaffidi averages 11.1 points and Swingler averages over 10.

Aside from scoring, freshman Shanna Oaddams and sophomore Kim Strickland lead the team in rebounds with an average of 5.2 per game. Oaddams and Strickland have proven their skills and are promising players on the team.

"Shanna has come in and earned the starting center position and has a strong chance of being named Freshman of the Year in the PSAC West. Kim continues to grow and learn and has unlimited potential in the post position," Coach Trn said.

Trn believes that preparation is the key to success.

"We always tried to be as prepared as possible. We are young and learning as we go," Trn said.

Although starting the season with a 6-2 record, the Red Raiders struggled with key injuries and the development of a young team. Freshman Chuck Davis broke his foot in the Jan. 7, 2004 game against Pitt-Johnstown. As a result, this team continued to grow and learn together.

There are many rising stars to keep an eye on in the coming years. Despite his broken foot, Davis appears to be one of the key players on this young team.

"He is one of the best in the league," Coach Dave Springer said.

Aside from Davis, fellow freshmen Todd Johnson, Charles Jones, Gary Vaincoeur and Greg Wojdowski also demonstrate talents on the court. Each received the Freshman of the Week award, an honor that is league-wide. These freshmen are some of the top players on the team.

"My five freshmen play better than some upperclassmen in the league. All six, including Roger Castelgrande, have scored in double figures at some point," Coach Springer said.

These promising players are guided by leaders on and off the court. Seniors David Levetter and Nebojsa Bogdanovic are the team captains. Levetter has been with the team for four years and Bogdanovic for three years. In addition to being leaders on the court, they also boost morale and encourage team spirit.

The team is already preparing for next year, where there will be an absence of seniors. Coach Springer stated that playing the freshmen this season will benefit them next year.

"Playing them a lot as freshmen will make them a stronger, wiser and a more 'together' team," Coach Springer said.

"There is no substitute for hard work," wrestling Coach Donald Tabar said.

Tabar expects his wrestlers to accomplish many goals; goals which the wrestlers were able to fulfill, pleasing both Tabar and also themselves. The team accomplished the goal of sending more wrestlers to the national competition than last year, and they also won more meets than the previous year.

These goals were fulfilled by the wrestlers' dedication and hard work. Junior Zach Leathers is a key player especially with his famous move. Leathers along with junior Andy Martin are co-captains. They have led the team by always pushing the wrestlers and also by being positive influences. Sophomore Corey Jacobs is known for his stability, while newcomers freshman Jamie Thomas and sophomore Dave Kocivar also provided support for the team.

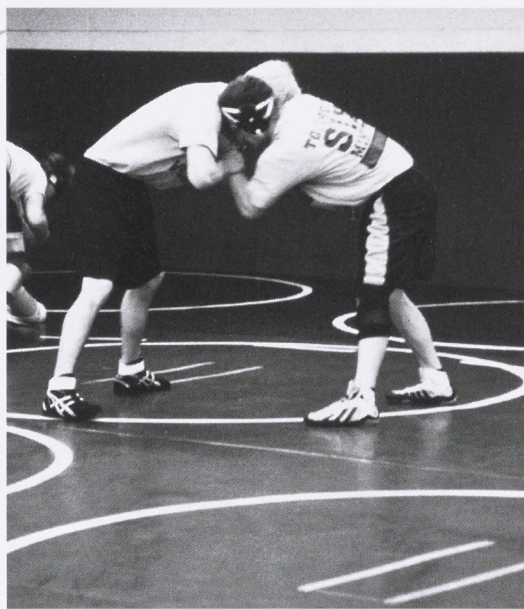

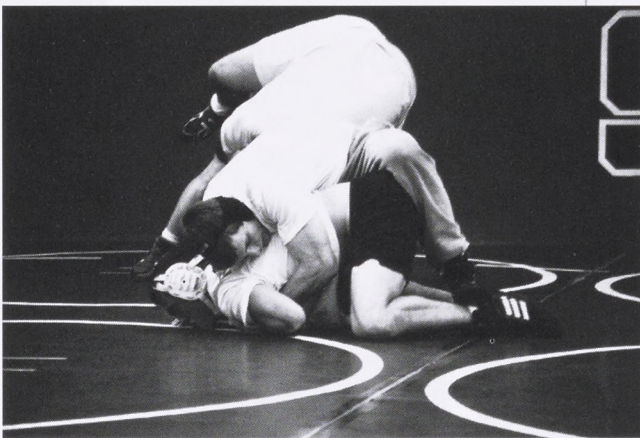

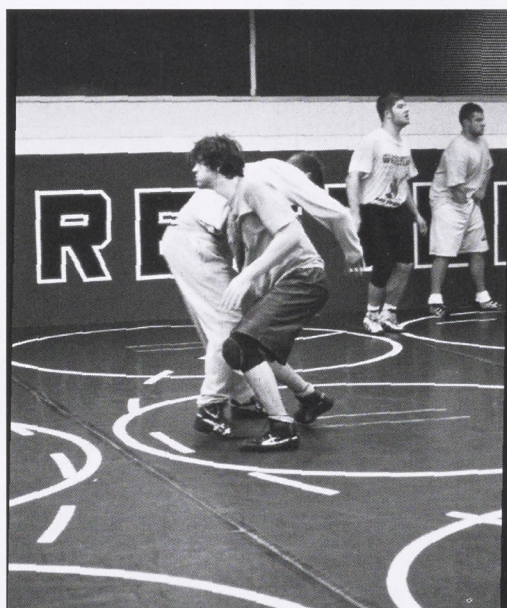

Another newcomer, freshman Mark Murphy ranked sixth in the nation.

While the team beat their opponents on the mat, they had a great family relationship with each other. They spent time together outside of practice by skiing, bowling and other numerous activities. This camaraderie allowed them to form a stronger bond as teammates and also as friends.

After a great season, Tabar and the wrestlers anxiously await next year. Tabar believes that the team did everything right this past year and is extremely proud.

While the season was a time of recruitment, wrestlers were able to gain more experience, which will help them for next season. Tabar only hopes that the wrestlers will be able to improve even more next season and be great role models to the new wrestlers.

During the season the women's swimming team has worked hard and persevered through the challenges they faced. The team's top swimmers, senior Erin Goodhart, junior Kim Magnanelli, and freshman Jill Snyder, along with their other teammates, have put forth their best this season.

Tim Verge, the coach for both teams, commented that although "It's been a tough year, we've had to overcome things."

When asked how the season went, Junior Alexis Nilon said, "Pretty well, we only lost to BU but only by a couple points."

The team has been invited to various events and meets throughout the season. At the George Mason Invitational this year, the girls swam well for the fourth year in a row.

Freshman Sarah Allen said of the team's morale, "At practices we are really hard-set, we always encourage each other. At meets we do the same thing, everyone cheers everyone on."

Although the team has lost a lot of seniors, the freshman class is a promising group of swimmers.

Nilon said that the "girls get along really well since I've been here. [It's] probably the best year so far for team unity."

Like the women's swimming team, the men's team has had its ups and downs this season. The team began practicing right after Labor Day and had their first meet Nov. 1. This year's key swimmers were junior Tim Carvell, freshmen Judd Hirt and Mike Owen and sophomore Pete Williams.

"The freshmen on both teams have been really great, they have all really helped," said Coach Tim Verge, who also coaches the women's team.

At the Indiana University of Pennsylvania dual meet, the team faced the task of performing better than they had the day before when they failed to perform at their finest. Fortunately, the teams did "phenomenally," according to Verge and welcomed a victory.

Coach Verge worked hard with the team to have them swim their best both at practice and at meets. With the look of the promising rising freshmen, the team will excel in the future.

"This is the toughest year we've had. We have had lots to overcome," Verge said of the team. "However, with hard work and diligence the team can apply their talents and come out successful in seasons to come."

Like the women's swimming season goal, the men's goal was to finish as one of the top three teams in the conference championships. The conference championships are the most important events of the season. Both teams work together to perform at their finest. The swimmers practiced on dry land three times a week and swam every afternoon and on Saturday mornings.

"I'm very proud of the people who stuck with us, they didn't let things get them down and stayed focused. The people who stuck with us will be stronger in the long run," Coach Verge said of the team.

The department of sports medicine at Shippensburg University is directed by Wesley R. Mallicone, M.S., ATC. His staff provides extensive service to 18 men's and women's intercollegiate athletic teams.

The department consists of one staff-certified athletic trainer, three certified graduate assistant athletic trainers, a certified intern athletic trainer and also 12 student athletic trainers.

The sports medicine staff also operates three athletic training rooms located on campus, as well as an on-campus rehabilitation center.

In addition to helping the student athletes, the sports medicine department also provides a certified athletic trainer for visiting teams before, during and after their sports events in case the opposing team does not have a trainer traveling with them.

Now with two full-time track and field coaches driving them, the team will continue to excel in the future.

"The men's squad is young and is already exceeding expectations," Coach David Osanitsch said.

Top performers this past year were senior Brian Haupt, junior Mark Piccolo and sophomore John Somers. Senior Chris Leavenworth demonstrated his athletic skills at the Susquehanna International meet on March 27.

Not only placing second in the shot put, Leavenworth also received third place in the discus. The team also has other talented players including sophomore Steve Huffman, freshman Allen Pryde and sophomore Jake D'Arcangelo. Freshman Carl Dean dominated the men's triple jump at the Susquehanna International meet, receiving first place with a leap of 45-10.

Looking ahead to next season, the coaches plan to continue with extensive training and preparation.

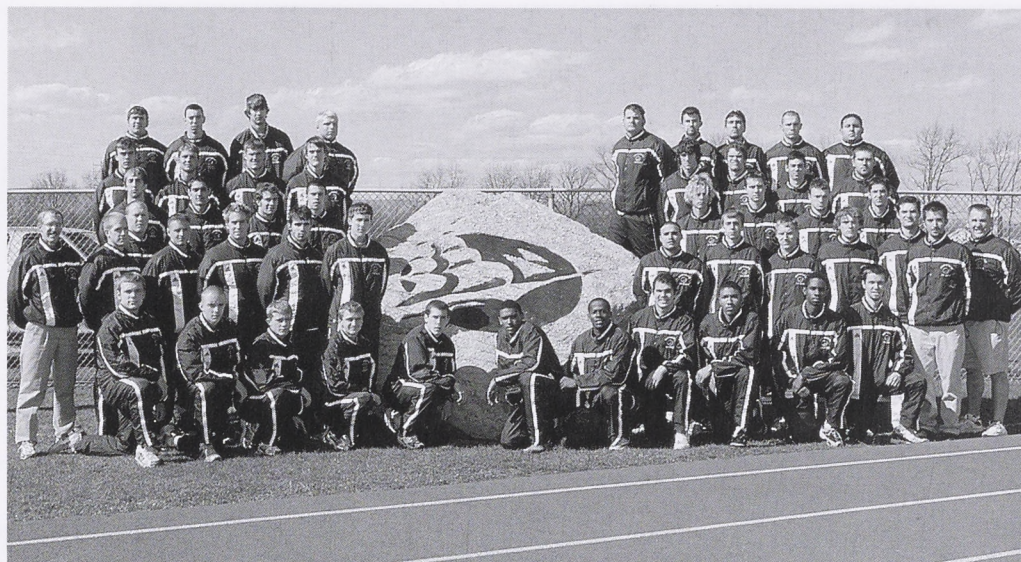

"Our preparation for the season keeps our athletes fresh for the long demanding indoor and outdoor seasons," Coach Osanitsch said.

Several strong seniors will not return for the new season, but the coaches place their trust in the abilities of the remaining competitors.

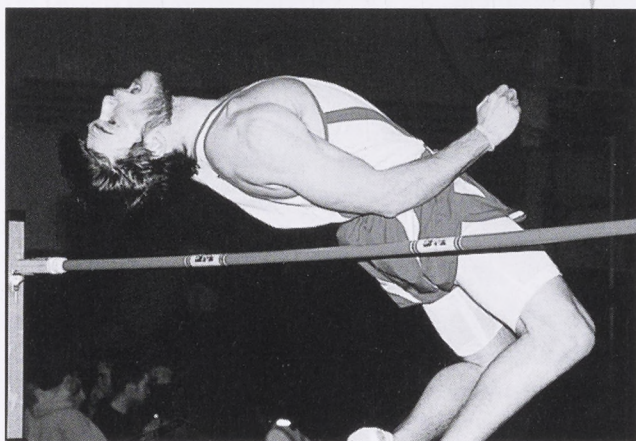

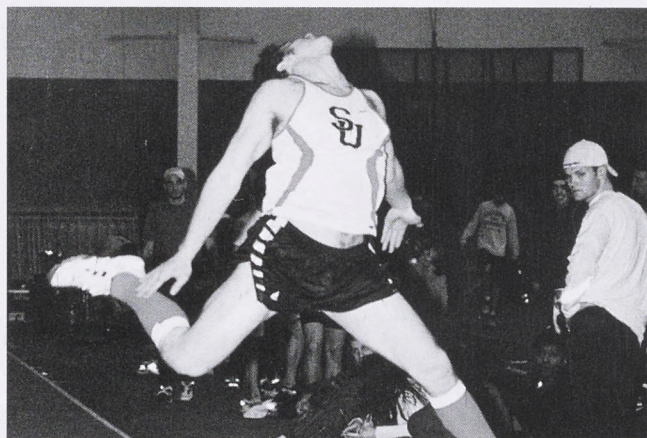

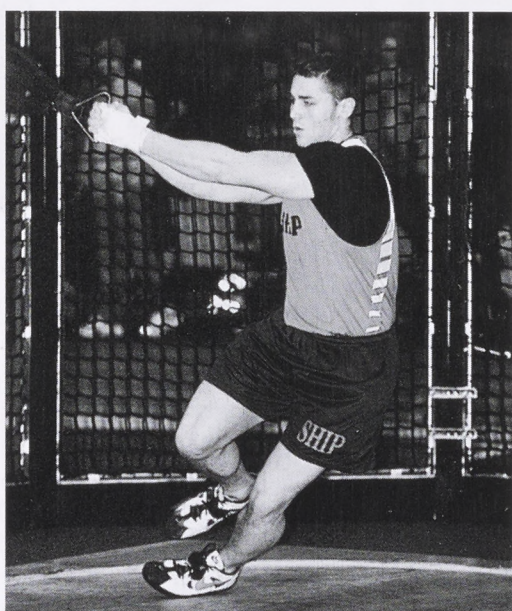

"We are actively recruiting to fill the gaps that will be left by graduation and hope to have an even more balanced program next year," Coach Osanitsch said.

Working together led the women's lacrosse team into the semi-final PSAC Championship game this past season. The team excelled in several competitions, receiving a final 10-4 record. Combined with determination and a unified team, the women were nearly unstoppable.

"We ended up in second place in PSAC, which was the highest ever during my five years at Shippensburg," Coach Bertie Landis said.

Strong seniors—Kori McDaniel, Heather Mullen and Page Heath—drove the girls through each game. On April 21, Heath broke the team career assist record against Howard University. Heath's career assists totaled 65 after the game. Senior Hillary Eckert, one of the team's top performers, also broke a record against Howard University.

She set the highest single season assist record with her total reaching 25. Several rising stars, junior Suzi Brazeau and sophomores Cristin Marron and Kaitlin Keene have the potential to excel the women further in future seasons.

Reflecting on the overall season, Coach Landis is proud of the women's progress and determination to constantly improve.

"Our passing improved and the team worked hard playing together," Coach Landis said. "I think the main area they improved in was working together as a team."

Next season, the women will lose several powerful seniors.

Coach Landis is already looking ahead to future goals and improvements to drive the girls even farther in future games.

"We need to continue working on our high turnover rate," Coach Landis said. "Our throwing and catching skills will have to improve for next season."

“Outstanding!” is the only way Coach Bob Brookens could describe his team’s softball season. Since its start in 1978, the softball team only had two losing seasons. This year, the Shippensburg Raider softball team went above and beyond the expectations, setting the league record for most consecutive wins in a single season. Coach Brookens attributes the success to team unity and knowing each player fulfills an important role to the organization.

Seniors Brenna Eck and Stephanie Reavey, along with junior Sarah Costa were captains this past year. Sophomore Kelley Tiesi is one of the most outstanding pitchers in Division II in the nation. She earned the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Eastern Division Pitcher of the Week recognition in both March and April. Freshman Alison Morris and sophomore Caitlin McPherson are newcomers who have shown a lot of potential in their respective positions as shortstop and transfer pitcher.

The outstanding achievements of this year came with determination. During the preseason, the team played nearly 10 games against Division I teams in preparation for the upcoming season. In addition, the women trained heavily in the weight room throughout the off-season. The hard work paid off and over spring break the team traveled to Florida where they played 10 games against nationally-ranked teams and finished with a 9-1 record.

“It was a huge success and something to build on,” Coach Brookens said. “This is a special group. They work very, very hard, both in class and on the field. I’m especially delighted to call them mine.”

This year, the men's baseball team rolled over its competition left its victims in the dust. With a 17-3 record this season, the men's baseball team had one of its best seasons.

Shippensburg University also sent two of its players to the major leagues. Randy Dicken (Martinsburg/Northern Bedford HS) and Evan Englebrook (Mechanicsburg/Cumberland Valley HS) were drafted by major league teams today.

Dicken, a junior pitcher, was chosen by the Toronto Blue Jays in the seventh round. This season he compiled a 9-2 record with 1.59 earned run average. His strikeout total of 104 also broke the old team single season record. His mark of 12.71 strikeouts per nine innings set a new Shippensburg record. Dicken exhibited superb control throughout the year, walking only 19 batters for the entire season.

Englebrook, a senior pitcher, was picked in the eighth round by the Houston Astros. This season he was named Pitcher of the Year in the North Atlantic Region by the American Baseball Coaches Association. Englebrook compiled an 11-1 record with a 1.78 earned run average.

His only loss of the year was a 1-0 one-hitter at IUP in which he gave up a solo home run.

Englebrook hurled two shutouts and broke the Shippensburg single season records for wins. Three players won 10 games in previous years. In addition, Englebrook broke the single season and career records for strikeouts with totals of 113 and 236, respectively.

The old single season record of 93 was set by Richie Rodarmel in 1999, and the career record of 215 was set by Jason Kanovich in 1998.

Englebrook finished his career with a 22-7 record. His 22 wins is the second highest total in team history.

Both Dicken and Englebrook were first team All-Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Western Division all-stars and first team All-North Atlantic Region. Englebrook was a first team All-America and Dicken was third team.

Shippensburg finished the season with a 43-12 overall record. The Red Raiders finished first in the team standings in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Western Division with a record of 17-3.

Alpha Sigma

The sorority, Alpha Sigma, was the first to be established on the Shippensburg University campus in 1959. It was originally a service club formed by the women of the campus, but later became a local social sorority. Alpha Sigma continually seeks new individuals to join their sorority, with the motto, "Together we build tomorrow today."

"I would be absolutely lost without these girls," Chelle Max said.

The Alpha Sigma colors are green and white with a frog as a mascot and a white rose as their flower. In order to be a member of Alpha Sigma, a student must have a GPA of at least 2.0 and pay a one-time association fee of $50, along with $100 in the fall and spring semesters for dues.

"I love how we can sit around and do nothing at all and have fun," Abigail Melton said.

The Alpha Sigma sisters make a great effort to be active in the nearby community. They participate in the "Adopt-a-Street" program and highway clean up, as well as providing clothes for their local Goodwill store. In an attempt to branch out to other communities, Alpha Sigma participates at least once a year in a walk benefiting associations like the American Heart Association and Breast Cancer Research.

The sisters are currently looking into sponsoring children at St. Jude's hospital as well.

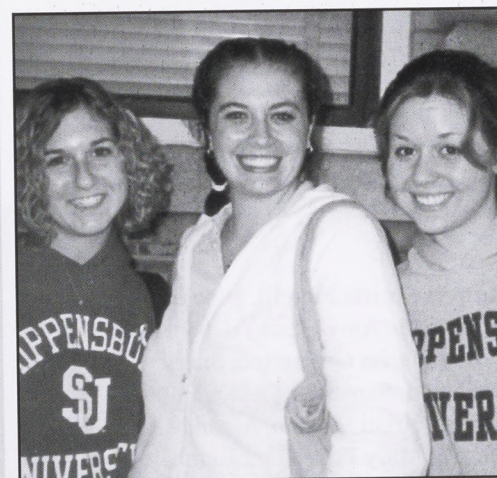

The focus of Alpha Sigma is love, honor and unity.

"I joined this group in order to establish lifelong friendships with the sisters," Joelleen Cunningham said. The bond of sisterhood will remain with the sisters throughout the good and bad times that they all may encounter.

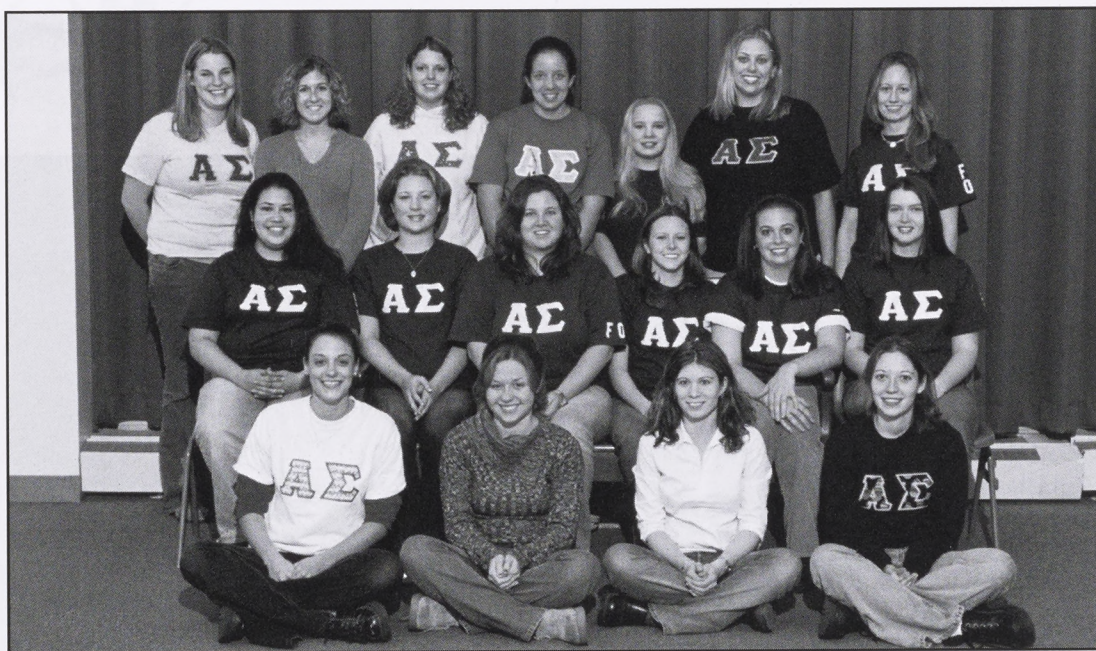

By being in such an organization, the women of this sorority are able to experience and gain certain skills such as leadership, time management, communication and a strong sense of sisterhood. These skills will not only help them through their college careers, but also in their upcoming professional careers. Alpha Sigma hopes to continue their traditions of growth and sisterhood as they attempt to become a national organization. Any sister who is an active member at the time of establishment will be considered a "founding sister."

"I joined this organization to get more involved on campus, and to meet new people. It was probably one of the best decisions of my life," Amanda Linthicum said. This seems to be what sisterhood is all about.

TKE

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon, the oldest fraternity at Shippensburg University, began in May 1959 when the Zeta Tau colony formed. The fraternity's current house is located at the top of what is locally known as Greek Row next to the Phi Sigma Sigma sorority house. Zeta Tau is currently in the process of rechartering.

The brothers of TKE are involved in a wide range of service projects. Working both on and off campus to help the university and its community, the members strive to contribute positively during their time in the fraternity and the university.

The fraternity's vision is to form bonds that encourage the idea of lifelong collegiate social ties. Through its members and services, the fraternity wishes to contribute to the improvement of society. The fraternity's mission statement is to help its members in their moral, mental and social development in life to aid themselves and society for the future.

In 1907, Frater William Wilson established the fraternity's Declaration of Principles stating, "Intimate and frequent contact with our fellows is necessary to symmetrical development. As a consequence, organizations whose purpose is to promote these ends are to be fostered and encouraged."

TKE brothers work hard to achieve their goals during their college years in the fraternity and continue their dedication to the Greek organization after graduation.

Pi Kappa Phi

Pi Kappa Phi is more than a group of men with good looks, charm and intellect. Their main goal is to promote the ideas of brotherhood, unity and community involvement.

"We want to kill the stereotypes that people have for fraternities," junior Mike Savage said.

The Shippensburg chapter began in 1986 by James Ramsey. Ramsey traveled from Slippery Rock University before creating Pi Kappa Phi in Shippensburg. Even after nearly 20 years, Pi Kappa Phi remains very much the same as it did back then. Highlights during the year include homecoming, Greek week and Shipstock. Shipstock is an all-day musical event, which nearly vanished a few years ago, but survived because of Pi Kappa Phi. Aside from social events, Pi Kappa Phi participates in several community activities including an after school program and Play Units for Severely Handicapped (PUSH) America. In the after-school program, fraternity members spend the afternoon with children, playing games or helping them with their homework. For PUSH America, Pi Kappa Phi raises money and last year sent several brothers to help build a barn for a new riding program.

"We're trying to give back more to the community as a whole," Savage said.

Despite the numerous activities of the fraternity itself, many members participate in additional on-campus organizations including hockey, basketball, track, the finance club, intramural sports and the marketing club. When joining a fraternity, Pi Kappa Phi believes students should go where they feel most comfortable.

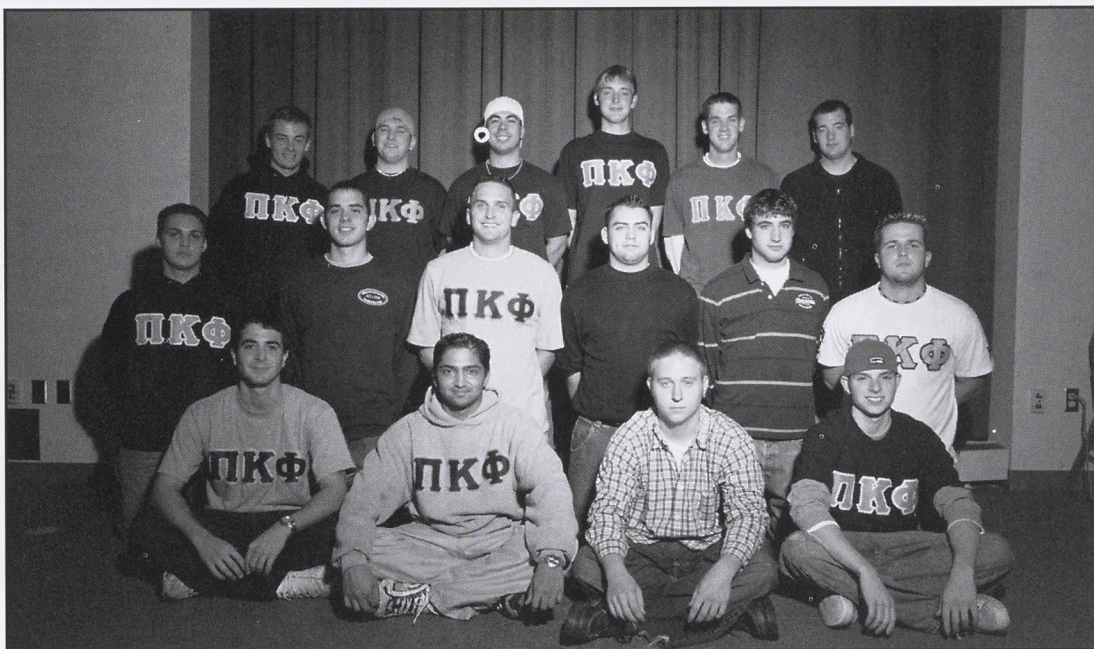

"I joined Pi Kappa because most of the guys were really cool," freshman Trevor Wetzel said. "They are a lot like me and are fun to hang out with."

Next year, Pi Kappa Phi plans to move into a new house off Prince Street. They look forward to celebrating their 20th anniversary at Shippensburg University in traditional Pi Kappa Phi style.

Honors Students

Bridge For Kids

Bridge For Kids is a Shippensburg University student-run child advocacy group that educates others about issues directly affecting the present and future lives of today's children. The main focal point of the organization is the inequality in education.

"I like to be informed about the current issues dealing with education," member Stephanie Riorden said. "Learning about laws and legislation that will effect my teaching are very important."

The goals of Bridge For Kids are both political and volunteer-oriented. The group reports on local, state and federal issues effecting education.

Members also volunteer in the community by tutoring at the Shippensburg Public Library, participating in the Children's Fair, visiting the Boys and Girls Club in Chambersburg and organizing parties for children at the Grace B. Luhr's Elementary School on campus.

"I enjoy throwing the parties where the children can come and just have fun," member Danielle Lengeman said. "Just to see the smiles on the children's faces makes it all worthwhile."

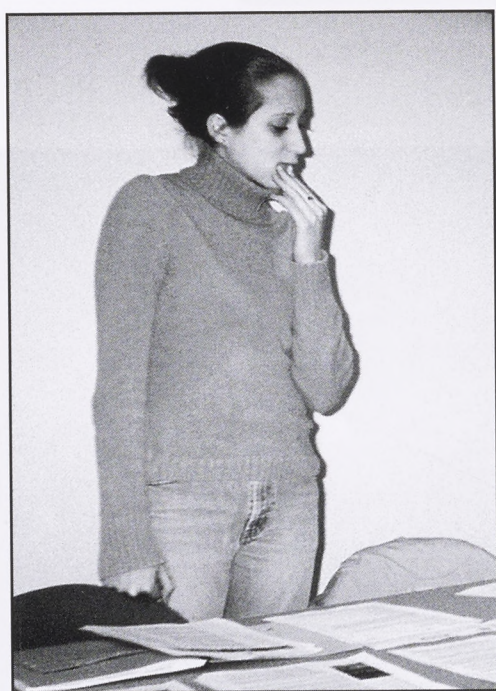

Bridge For Kids is affiliated with the Good Schools of Pennsylvania, a non-profit statewide organization that advocates improved public education.

A representative from Good Schools speaks frequently with Bridge For Kids about current events in education.

Afterwards, the group writes letters to the state and local representatives about these issues. In February, four members of Bridge For Kids were given the opportunity for leadership training and to learn more about what they can do to help in their communities.

"I like the idea that a club combines the politics behind education with the experience of working with children," said member Caitlin Torrens.

Political Science Club

One of Shippensburg University's most influential organizations is the Political Science Club. The Political Science Club was established at Shippensburg University in 1978 as a means of both majors and minors to discuss issues pertinent to both their subject area and politics in general, but now the organization is open to all majors and minors.

With their main goal being to promote political awareness and encourage students to become more politically active, the club makes it a point to bring important political issues to the forefront at Shippensburg. They host a variety of events to expose students to the world of politics. Such events include speakers, forums and voter registration drives. With the lowest voter turnout in the 18-24 age group, joining the club is a stepping stone to become more politically active. The club also organizes an annual trip to Washington D.C. each spring to tour the capital and meet some of the nation's premier political leaders.

"I have met a lot of great people through this club as well as made many friends," junior Toni Marchowsky, club vice president, said. "D.C. is always a good time and a great way to make connections with some of the nation's most influential political minds."

With the upcoming elections in the fall, the club wants to invite candidates to speak on campus, as well as host a debate between the College Democrats and the College Republicans. The club would also like to have MTV's Rock the Vote visit the Shippensburg Campus as a method to rally students to vote on Election Day.

"The Political Science Club has given me a practical look at politics, especially with our trip to Washington D.C. Other events we host throughout the academic year give students a unique look at government and how it affects their lives," club President Robert Sisock said.

German Club

Whether students went to Germany or just love the language, the German Club is the place to be for movies, friends, fun and, of course, food.

The main goal of the club is to promote and study the German culture.

Although many of the meetings are conducted in English, the German Club also gives students the opportunity to practice speaking the German language.

"The German Club is a great place to meet people who share your interests in the German culture," junior Kathy Riedel said. "You increase your knowledge and meet great people at the same time."

Professor Alain Nganang formed the club in 2000, when the Modern Language Club split into separate language organizations. Since that time, the club has exceedingly grown from the original few members. Traditional activities include German movie night, country theme nights and German food night.

"The German Club is more relaxed than the typical club," sophomore Lauren Brightbill said. "If we feel like going somewhere and hanging out on the spur of the moment, we pile into cars and go."

The highlight of the semester is a journey to an actual German restaurant in the area. This event occurs directly before finals, giving members the chance to escape from the endless studying for a night of friends and food.

"Everyone in the German Club is very friendly," junior Sean McBeth said. "It's less like joining a club and attending meetings and more like getting together with friends and having fun. Veile Freuden ist gut (many friends are good)."

The club is currently planning even more activities for the future. One goal in particular is to develop a German studies program after school for elementary school children. This program hopefully will be in effect by spring 2005.

When asked about the progress of the German Club since its start in 2000, Dr. Nganang simply said, "It's great."

In Memory Of Professor Hans Dietrich Meurer

On Oct. 15, 2003, students walked into their German classes as usual only to find one solitary message written on the blackboard. Hans Dietrich Meurer died this morning.

Professor Meurer arrived at school sometimes before 7 a.m. and constantly welcomed students into his office during all hours of the day. With a big smile always spread across his face, Professor Meurer had a lasting impact on the students and faculty at Shippensburg University.

"Herr (Mr.) Meurer was more than a professor to me," junior Nikki Krize said. "He not only taught students German, he taught us about life. He was always willing to help me with anything I needed. Herr Meurer is greatly missed."

Professor Meurer had a joke for every occasion and possessed a great love for his students. Analyzing languages, especially English, was a teaching tactic he often used in the classroom.

"Hans Meurer will always be my role model as a professor," Dr. Mary Stewart said. "He believed that every good teacher transmits life to the next generation via words, ideas and language itself. His love of literature and learning continues to be my inspiration, an inspiration I hope to pass on to my students. Auf Wiedersehn (Till we meet again)."

The German Club was particularly special to Professor Meurer and allowed him to relate to students on a different level.

Traditional German dinners at the end of the semester were especially important to him. He was the first to snap pictures and begin telling stories at every dinner.

"He was always making jokes that no one ever seemed to get, but as long as you smiled, he was happy," junior Liz Willey said. "I remember the Baghdad story the best. He told the class that his son gave him this bag and said 'here's a Baghdad bag for my Dad.'"

The German Club remembered Professor Meurer during the fall semester dinner, sharing various stories and toasting his memory.

Dr. Alain Patrice Nganang shared a particularly close relationship with Professor Meurer and greatly missed his fellow advisor at the table that evening.

Remembering Professor Meurer, Dr. Nganang simply said, "Es ist doch immer grossartig gewesen, Professor Meurer in seiner Nähe zu haben: lustig und lebenswillig. Wir werden ihn immer vermissen." (It has always been great to have Professor Meurer around: funny and lively. We will always miss him).

Professors are not the only educators on campus. There is more to the big picture of an education than just attending class. Many programs are held on campus to enrich the overall experience. This section will show the resources and opportunities held on and off campus that helps Ship make the "America's Best Colleges" list year after year.

While some students study in the library, or computer lab others enjoy studying out in the sunshine before class or meeting in the CUB with friends to review class notes.

Shippensburg University has equipped its campus to meet the needs of students socially, but more importantly, academically.

Best places to study

While many people come to college to experience 'the life,' students actually have to do a little studying as well to stay here. Many students have trouble studying in their rooms because of roommates, a computer or other distractions. Because of this, Shippensburg University has equipped its campus to meet the needs of students socially, but more importantly, academically.

The Ezra Lehman Library is one of the most popular places to study, and with its new Internet and Booknet Cafe, even more students pour through the doors.

The Learning Center is also located in the basement of the library to tutor students in specific subjects. On all floors of the library, behind the stacks of books are rows of desks with walls along the sides of the desk for added privacy, concentration and seclusion.

The computer labs are popular for researching and writing papers or reports. Many students have pulled all-nighters in Shippensburg's 24-hour computer lab in the MCT trying to meet deadline.

While these two places may seem to be the most obvious of places to go, some students study in the CUB lounges on the second and third floors. This comes in handy particularly when students are studying in a group and would be too loud in the library.

Although these are all practical places to study, some students just fall into a corner and study where they can in between classes.

Some students do last-minute cramming on benches outside of the academic buildings, while others study in an empty classroom.

"It would be so nice to get through college without having to study, but unfortunately no one can," junior Megan Shirey said. "When I really need to study for a test I like to use the cubicles in the library because it's much quieter and I can get more accomplished, but I really appreciate a 24-hour computer lab."

Career Development Center

Students who are unsure of their career plans don't have to worry. Shippensburg University has a Career Development Center (CDC) located on campus on the second floor of the CUB.

This center, which opened in the CUB in 1992, helps students prepare for a profession after college.

The CDC offers mock interviews, walk-in hours, which are on a first come, first serve basis and seminars. A student can also make an appointment.

"Our basic mission is to help students to develop, evaluate and implement their career plans," Dan Hylton, director of the CDC, said.

One major event put on by the CDC is the job fair. There were ones held Feb. 26 and March 8 in the CUB MPR from 1-4 p.m.

To help familiarize students with their services, the CDC visits many classrooms, clubs, residence halls, fraternities and sororities.

"Students who interact with the CDC tend to have more success in their career," Hylton said.

Those students who are interested in using the CDC's resources should know that they have graduate students working there to help anyone who comes in. First year graduate student Tiffany Showalter uses her skills to help undergraduates with critiquing resumes or setting up mock interviews. She also holds resume workshops twice a week for one hour.

"We want students to network as much as possible and get their name out to employers," Showalter said.

Seniors are not the only ones who can stop by. Underclassmen also have the opportunity to get help as they begin planning out their careers. There are special career programs aimed toward freshmen.

"(The Career Development Center) is a service that helps a student's career a great deal so don't pass it up," Hylton said.

Ezra Lehman gets a facelift

Walking into the Shippensburg University Ezra Lehman Memorial Library, students immediately notice some of the changes it underwent this year.

Students were able to check out wireless Internet laptops to use around the library.

"The laptops are great," sophomore Kari Weaver said. "I can get out of my room to do some work in the library, but still have use of a computer. It makes working there a lot easier."

Many students take the laptops to the new Book Net Café, which opened in the spring semester.

The Book Net Café has the essentials needed for a long day of cramming, coffee, candy, soda... basically lots of caffeine to keep alert while studying!

"It's so much more convenient with Book Net Café in the library," sophomore Janice Elder said. "It's also adds a nice touch to the library."

Overall students have been impressed with the changes to the library.

"The new things make people want to come here to study," Elder said.

The cafe may extend its hours next semester.

President Ceddia tells Ship goodbye

After serving Shippensburg University as its president for 23 years, President Anthony Ceddia announced his retirement to the Council of Trustees.

Effective June 30, 2005, President Ceddia's retirement has come as a shock to many.

"I know many people who are trying to convince him to stay," junior Ryan Hill said.

Ceddia is the longest-serving president in the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education. He is also the most influential and longest-serving president in Shippensburg history.

"I have been fortunate throughout my life to make many personal friends and professional colleagues, but no experience has been more meaningful than what I have been honored to be a part of as president of Shippensburg University," Ceddia said in a press release. "We each in our own way understand that our lives have beginnings and ends, and today I am ending one phase and beginning another. I am ending my career in education as president of one of the finest regional public institutions in the country, but I am beginning a new career equally as important — grandfather."

President Ceddia said one of the reasons for his retirement is to spend more time with his wife, Valerie, daughter Anne Marie, son Michael and his three grandchildren.

In his 23-year tenure, Ceddia has increased the student population, added several major buildings and the university's majors have increased earning it a regional and national reputation for its innovative programming, fiscal accountability and its service to Pennsylvania and the nation.

President Ceddia began his education career when he received his bachelor's of science degree in education from Northeastern University. He received his master's of education degree in counseling and a doctorate of education degree in higher education administration from the University of Massachusetts. He has completed post-doctoral studies at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

His academic experience began as a social studies teacher and counselor at Melrose, Mass. High School in 1965. He later was an adjunct professor at Salem, Mass. State College where his father has taught earlier. He later served as a professor and administrator at North Adams State College in Massachusetts. Despite his workload as president, he continued to teach at Shippensburg.

His administrative experience was a steady progression of positions leading to his presidency at Shippensburg. He is still a visiting professor at the University of Maryland. He now serves as the executive director of the State System's Center of Policy Studies and Leadership for the Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education.

President Ceddia also won his battle with prostate cancer a last year.

"Tony Ceddia has been a passionate leader over the past 23 years and we will all feel a great loss upon his retirement," Kenneth R. Shoemaker, chair of the Council of Trustees said. "He is a true visionary and through his admirable efforts, Shippensburg University has become a model institution of higher education. He has always made the student experience the top priority and that's what Ship's all about."

CUB Media Center

There have been many changes made at Shippensburg. One change was to the media center, where The Slate, SUTV and WSYC offices are all located. Although the CUMBERLAND Yearbook is in the vicinity as well, it did not get renovated. The Slate and WSYC had already been in the CUB, but SUTV was moved to the center on the third floor of the CUB.

Before the construction, the media center was not as spacious as it is now. Now the media center has a reception area, which administrators wanted to have as a work study program for a student, but has not gone into effect yet. There is also a work area and lounge inside the center.

"The beginning of the fall semester we were in Wright Hall. It was a mess because we didn't have a permanent place to help the flow on Monday nights. Also, I remember it being really small and cramped," sophomore Emily Sowers, Slate entertainment editor, said.

This change has allowed for more efficiency within the offices.

Many of the students involved with campus media are happy with the changes. The only downfall is that the center is always very warm.

"I like having SUTV, WSYC and the yearbook all in the same building. It makes it easier for everyone to ask questions and relay information. Plus it is easier for people who aren't in communications to know that they are all in one place," Sowers said.

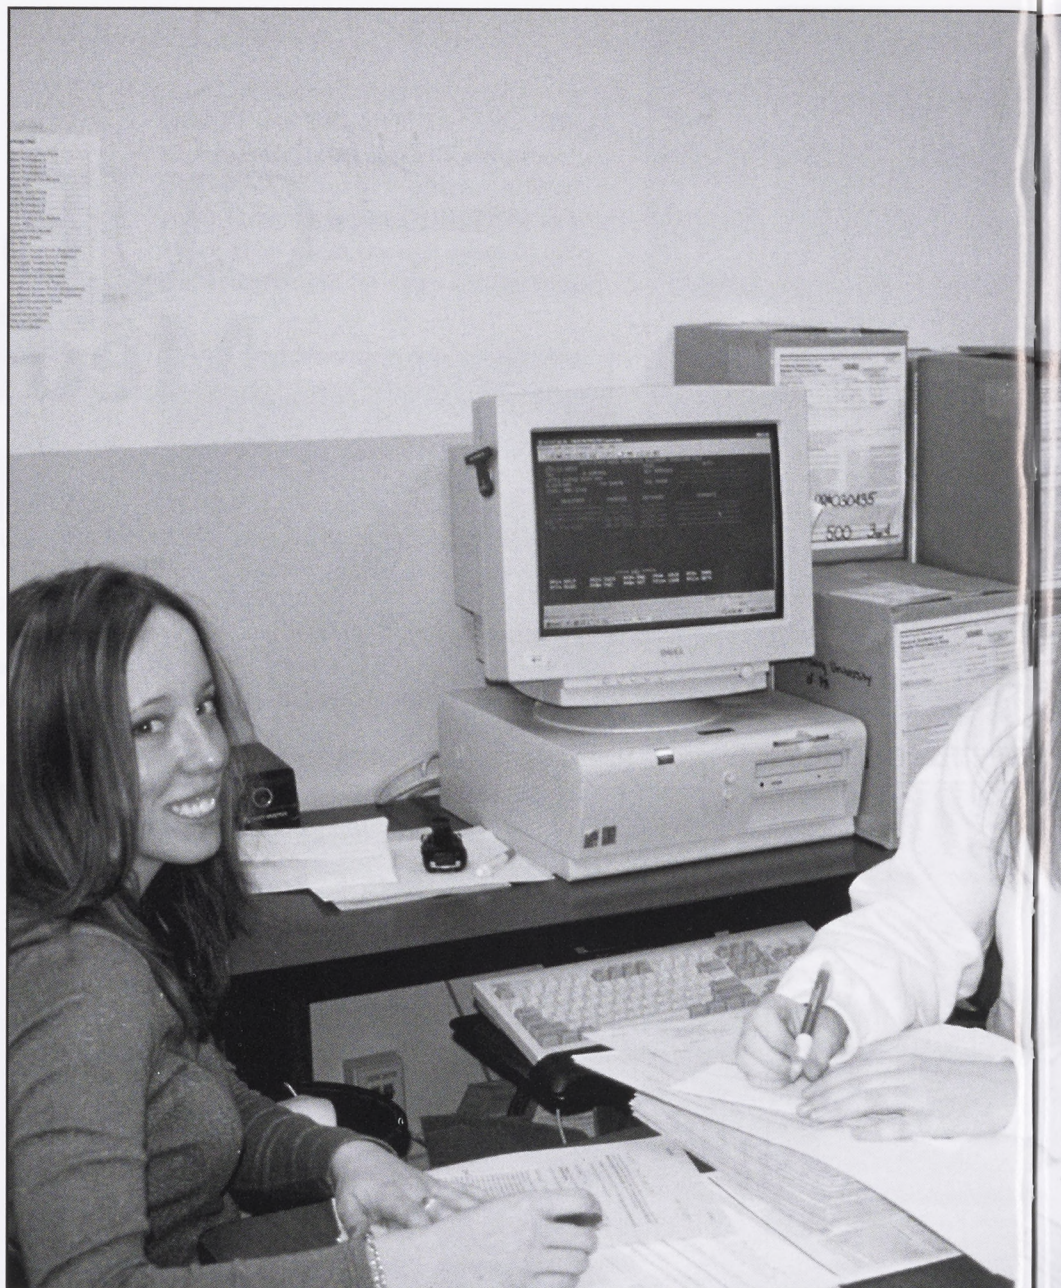

The CUB was undergoing renovations last year anyway, and workers decided to make the media center. Since the construction, the campus media continue to put out quality work and help keep communication among the students at Shippensburg.

The work for students on campus more often than not consists of doing paperwork, but these students aren't complaining.

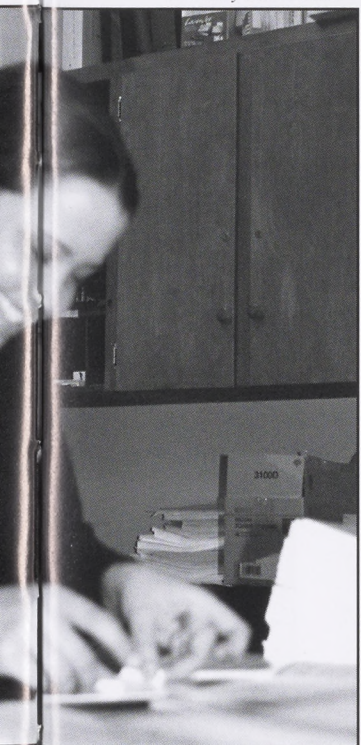

Approximately 500 to 800 students are currently enrolled in the work study program around campus.

Work Study Program

All over campus, students work in the library, Old Main offices and various other locations. These positions are gained through the work study program, which benefits many students at Shippensburg University, according to Kara Wealand, the work study supervisor in the Financial Aid Office. The work study program allows students to work on campus while attending classes.

"Students can hold jobs in the fall and spring semesters, as well as in the summer," Wealand said. "The students are free to use the money they get from working however they choose. Some use it to pay for college expenses, while others put it towards paying regular bills."

Approximately 500 to 800 students are currently enrolled in the work study program around campus. Students are given a wide array of options for jobs in the program, including positions in the Alumni Office, Etter Health Center, University police station, Ezra-Lehman Library, CUB, Counseling Center or different departments.

Many students in the program have positive responses to their experience in the work study program.

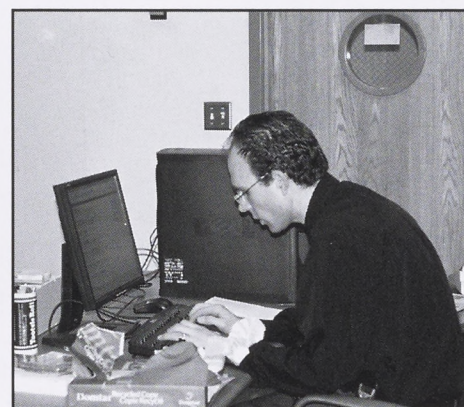

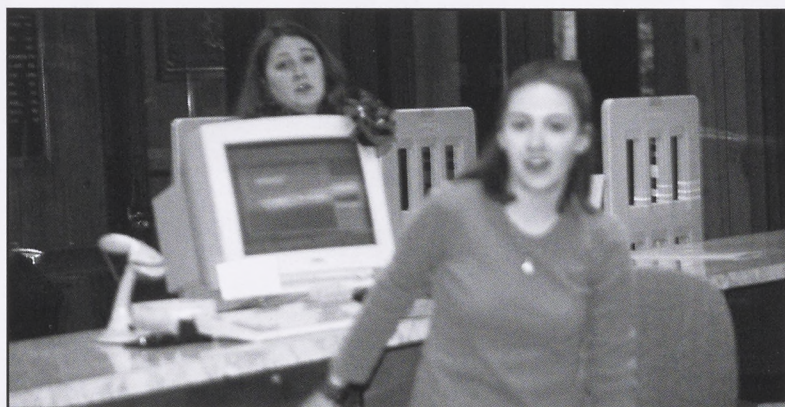

"The work study program is a great way for college students to make a little money to help pay for college expenses," freshman Jennifer Hieshman said. "I work at the library and the hours there allow for me to have time for classes, homework and any other activities I want to do."

Junior Lindsey Mersinger works with Hieshman in the library and shares her enthusiasm for the program.

"Working on campus is great because you don't have to waste gas driving anywhere, and when your shift ends, you just walk to class and you're done," Mersinger said. "It's a convenient way to make a little extra money that can be used as spending money or put towards bills, which we have a lot of."

Overall, the work study program is appealing for many different reasons. It is convenient with flexible hours and close locations.

★ Jaime Adams

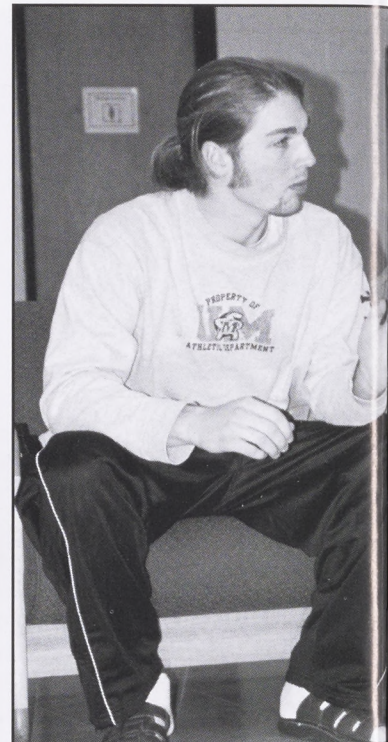

Students can work in a variety of places including the library, computer labs, media center or in offices in Old Main.

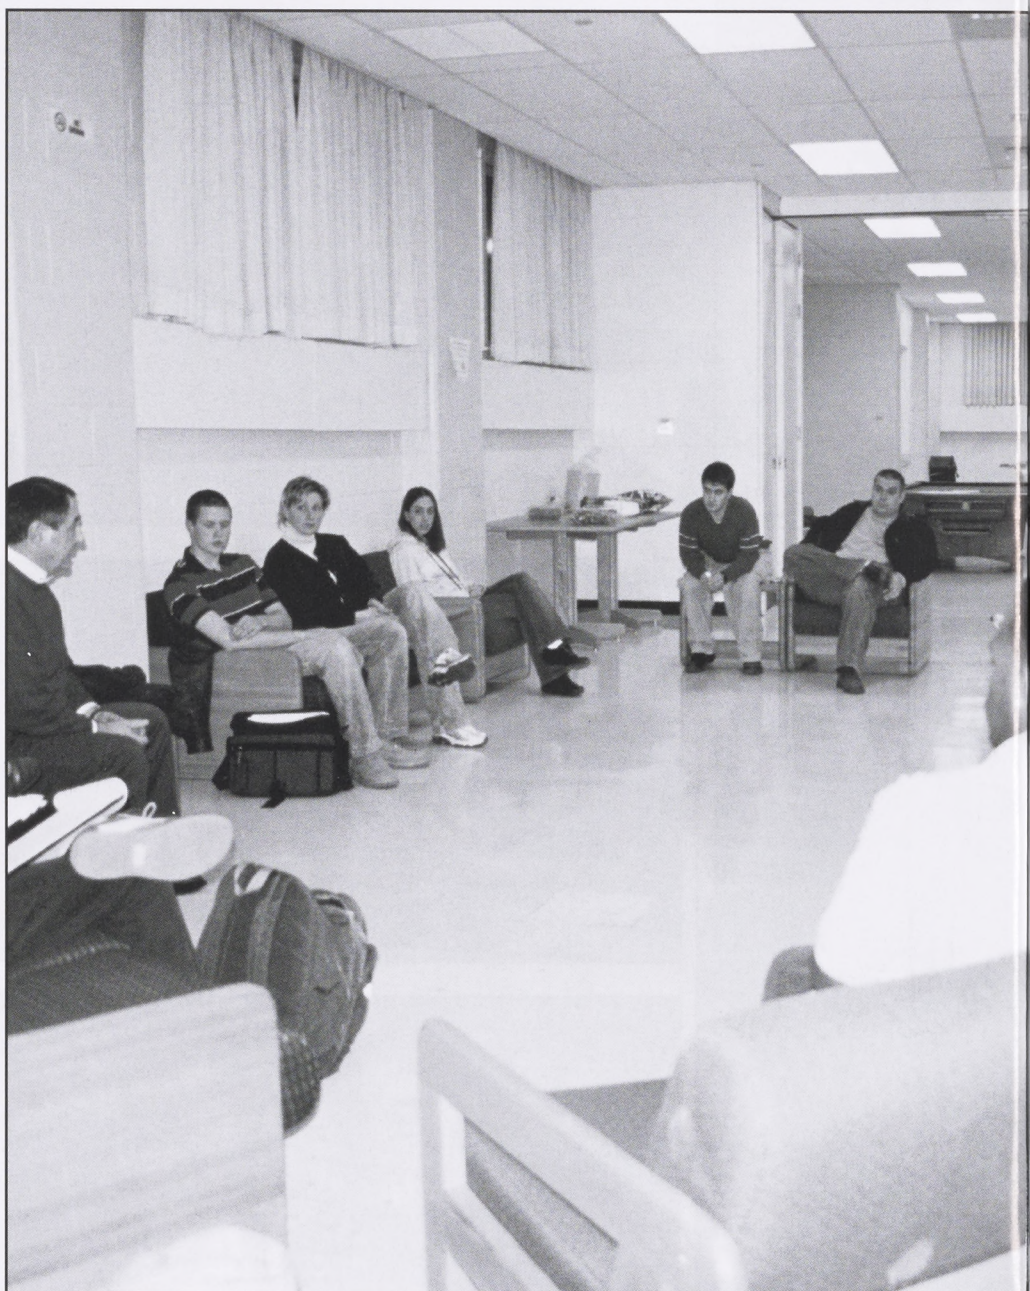

"It gives the students an opportunity to talk to the president about any issues. The President is very open with the students,"

-Noel Scarpa

RIGHT and BELOW: President Ceddia encouraged the students to speak openly and honestly about whatever issues they deemed important.

RIGHT: Formal attire was not required to talk about issues with President Ceddia. Many students found this program, which President Ceddia has been involved in for several years, very effective. Students also have felt that it was a creative and more interactive way to get to know the president of their university.

President's Hour

One of the traditions held at Shippensburg University is the President's Hour. Each semester, President Ceddia visits with students on campus to discuss current events and address issues important to students. It is also a chance for the President to directly interact with the student body.

The President's Hour is held in the recreation room of both an east and west-side residence hall. Students are able to ask questions and speak openly. This is an ongoing forum that President Ceddia has participated in for several years.

"Shippensburg has a President's Hour so that students can voice their concerns," one student in attendance said.

It is also important for students to take the opportunity to meet the president of the university. Many students find the twice a year event very effective.

"It answered a lot of questions I had," Kim

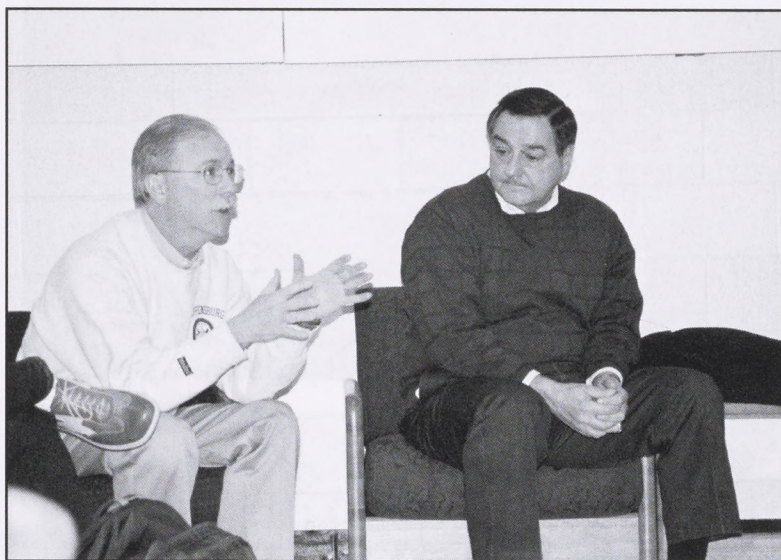

Foulke, resident assistant in Mclean Hall, said.

Resident hall staff members are not required to attend, but are encouraged to attend when the president is visiting their hall.

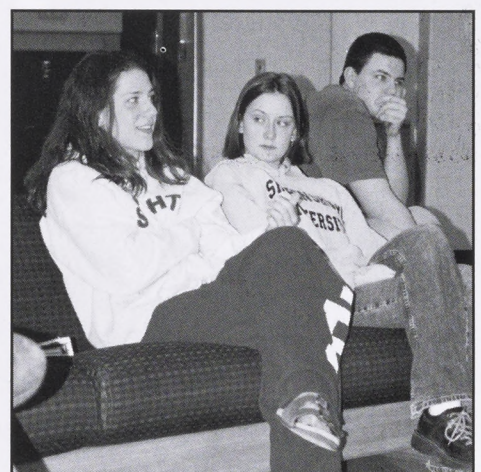

"It gives the students an opportunity to talk to the president about any issues. The President is very open with the students," Noel Scarpa, resident director of Mclean Hall, said.

During the spring semester, President Ceddia answered questions pertaining to opening a Chick-Fillet. This idea, however, would create price differences between the university and the restaurant. In addition to the restaurant, President Ceddia also expressed interest in building a new recreation center. Other topics of discussion included parking availability and driving, snow removal in light of recent weather and construction on campus.

Take Back the Night

"Survivor's unite! Take back the night!" is what Shippensburg students, faculty and members of the community chanted throughout the CUB on the evening of April 1, 2004.

Shippensburg University hosted its 10th annual Take Back the Night event, a gathering that included speakers, activities, a rally and a march as a way for people to come together to call attention to the acts of sexual violence that are still common in our communities.

"We need to focus our attention to these issues everyday," University President Dr. Anthony Ceddia said. "It is an important step for us both as individuals and collectively."

Dr. Ceddia also signed a pledge to work to stop violence in the community. Those wishing to sign the pledge can do so online at LifetimeTV.com.

Guest speaker Delilah Rumburg, executive director of the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape, persuaded students to "use outrage for change." Rumburg spoke about her outrage regarding the amount of public indifference to crimes that occur.

"By the age of eighteen, one in four girls and one in six boys will have been sexually assaulted," Rumburg said.

She reported that there were 5,300 county harassment victims in the last three years, 2039 (39 percent) of whom were children. Rumburg stated that on college campuses, nine out of 10 victims know their offender, and the majority of gang rapes that occur involve fraternities and intercollegiate teams.

Rumburg also spoke about her various roles as a mother, friend, sister and grandmother but stressed her desire to claim the role as an agitator. According to Rumburg, the role of an agitator allows her to find passion, purpose and renewal.

"Where is your outrage?" she asked the audience. "Each one of us can make a difference; I hope you have the capacity to change," she said.

Kathryn Hennessy Kelley, a member of the Shippensburg Alumni, also participated in the activities and spoke about her job at the Victim Services Center of Montgomery County. Providing a 24-hour hotline and crisis/counseling support at hospitals, police accompaniment to those in need and an education department is a way for her to reach into the community to turn her outrage into something positive.

Perhaps the most stimulating part of the night was the chant rally. Members of the audience were invited to sing along to the inspiring theme: "We who believe in freedom cannot rest until it comes." Students were also invited on stage to lead chants such as "Join together, free our lives, we will not be victimized," "2-4-6-8, no more date rape," "Yes means yes, no means no, whatever we wear, wherever we go" and "Sexist, rapist anti-gay, don't you take our night away."

December graduation

A student's journey in their academic life begins when they are only five years old. Through the years, families celebrate kindergarten graduations, eighth grade graduation, high school graduation, but most importantly, college graduation.

Although most may go on for an even higher degree, graduating from college symbolizes the effort and dedication a student put into their education. It also marks the period of entering the "real world." While this may be scary for some, Shippensburg University's graduates faced it head on, much like everything else they have encountered in their four years at Shippensburg.

"It's so sad to have to say goodbye to all my friends," one graduate said. "It's not like I can say 'have a nice summer.' Now I have to say 'have a nice life' and that's depressing."

At any level of schooling, certain students and teachers connect and form a stronger teacher-student bond.

"I'm on the fence," communication Professor Margaret Evans said. "I'm sad to see them go, but excited to see them apply their potential outside of the classroom. I've seen all that they can do, and now it's time that they unleash that onto the world."

May Graduation

Nearly 1,100 students participated in the commencement ceremony, May 8.

Judge Carol K. McGinley, the chair of the Juvenile Court Judges' Commission of Lehigh County, presented the address before a standing room only crowd.

The number of graduates has steadily increased each year, which President Anthony Ceddia attributes to both the students' and teachers' hard work and dedication.

"Each graduation ceremony I participate in makes me that much more proud of this university," President Ceddia said.

With this being his last commencement ceremony because of his retirement, President Ceddia was that much more nostalgic.

"It's going to be very hard to leave something that's been such an incredible part of my life for the past four years," graduate Leah Farr said. "It's a bit scary to be leaving my comfort zone and venturing out on my own, but I know God will be with me and Ship gave me a great foundation."

While the graduates quickly transformed from students to alumni, they shed many tears and shared many laughs.

"Graduation is really hard for me sometimes," communications Professor Kathy Williams said. "I get so close to some students during their stay at Shippensburg that it's bittersweet to see them leave."

Although they are saying good bye to Shippensburg, they have all left their mark on the university in some way.

"I wonder if this makes me eligible for the Alumni Days fair the university has in June already!" one graduate joked.

★ Kris Fedysky

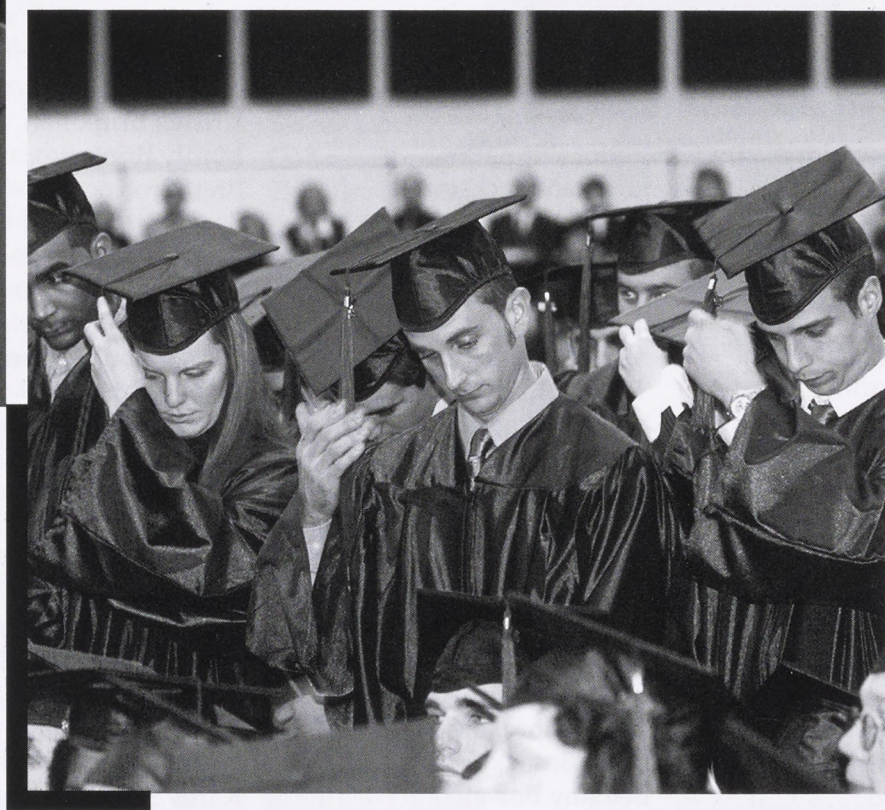

ABOVE: Graduates went through a variety of emotions on their special day including happiness, and a sense of accomplishment, as Lamont Fleuriot demonstrates, right.

The year has finally come!
All the hard work of the past years has payed off. Once again the diplomas will be passed out and the tears will begin to flow. Another chapter of life has closed with the anticipation of the next opening moments later.
The next step in everyone's journey through life has finally arrived.
Best of luck Class of 2004!

Strike -A - Pose

Every year, students turn down a copy of the CUMBERLAND and all say the same thing, "I'm not in it, so why do I want one?" Strike-a-pose is a free photo session which gives students the opportunity to come and get their picture taken and placed in the yearbook. It gives students the chance to come and show their real colors, rather than standing in a row in a group photo.

We enjoy doing this for the students and the turn out is better every year. We hope that you enjoy the following pages as much as we do. Thank you very much to all who participated.

Thank You's

The CUMBERLAND Yearbook would like to take this chance to thank the following people.

Marilyn Maitland and the Herff Jones Staff,

Marilyn, without you, this book would not be what it is and would not have developed as much as it has. Thank you for all of your hard work, dedication and superb communication. We look forward to the coming years and working with you and the wonderful and very helpful staff at Herff Jones.

Jim Rainey and the DaVor staff,

Jim, thank you for all your help and dedication. It has been a pleasure working with you and we look forward to working with you and the DaVor staff in the future.

Professor Evans and Professor Williams,

Without the support from both of you, we would not have been able to come as far as we have this year. You have helped make this year another success. Thank you for listening and guiding us through everything. We all look forward to the upcoming years.

Darrell, Dena, Rich and the Fiscal Office,

Thank you for your continued support. With you, we know we can never go wrong. We look forward to working with you in the future.

Judy and Connie,

For all of the help, support and kind words, we thank you.

President Ceddia,

Thank you for your continued support of The CUMBERLAND Yearbook.

Jody Harpster and Administration,

Thank you for your help and support. We greatly appreciate it.

Alumni Office,

Without your help, we would not be able to keep in contact with our alumni. We hope that you have as wonderful memories to look back on as we do. We look forward to working with you in the future.

The CUMBERLAND Staff,

Honestly this book would not be in existence without your dedication and support from week to week. Every single person has made a huge contribution and impact on this book. There is nothing more to say than thank you.

The Editorial Board,

Countless hours. Countless meetings. Regardless of the duty you were always there to make sure that this book was the best it could possibly be. All of your hard work never went unnoticed. We made amazing friendships both in and out of the office. You never let me down and I was so fortunate to get to work with you every day. You made my job easier and you are the heart and soul of this book.

"Take a Closer Look" is the 87th Volume of the CUMBERLAND. The CUMBERLAND is the official yearbook of Shippensburg University, a member of the Pennsylvania Commonwealth's State System of Higher Education. The page size for this volume is 9x12 inches incorporating 256 pages, printed with first quality printer's black ink on 80 pound triple-coated gloss paper.

The cover was designed by the yearbook staff with assistance from Julie Norris, a member of Herff Jones' cover artist design staff. The cover is Vibra Tex Brushed Silver with a blind emboss and has a Maroon Silkscreen applied to the title. These elements were all combined and applied to a 160 point Binders Board. The endsheets, designed in conjunction with Julie Norris, were printed front and back using Vibra Color White stock paper with maroon ink applied to all.

Adobe Pagemaker 6.5 and Adobe Illustrator 5.5 were used for the typography and layout of the book. The fonts were chosen from a library of Adobe fonts provided by Herff Jones. All pages were produced by staff members using Power Macintosh G3 computers.

Photography was provided by various staff members, as well as DaVor Photography, located in Bethlehem, PA. Jim Rainey served as our representative from DaVor. Herff Jones, located in Gettysburg, PA, was the book publisher. Marilyn Maitland served as our representative for Herff Jones.

Expenses were paid for by the Shippensburg University Student Association, along with several fund-raisers by the CUMBERLAND Yearbook staff members.
