SU Marching Band visits the Emerald Isle

Members of the Shippensburg University Marching Band rang in 2015 with performances in Ireland—the group’s first international tour, according to Director Trevor Famulare.

The highlight of the tour was the group’s participation in Dublin’s third annual Procession of Lights on New Year’s Eve. Shippensburg led the procession through the streets of Ireland’s capital city. Other shorter outdoor performances, which the Irish call “stand and blow” concerts, were in Limerick and at Kilkenny Castle.

The band had to submit an audition tape to be considered for the tour. “They asked for our repertoire list. We gave them music from our show this fall, along with a few other songs we traditionally would play,” Famulare said.

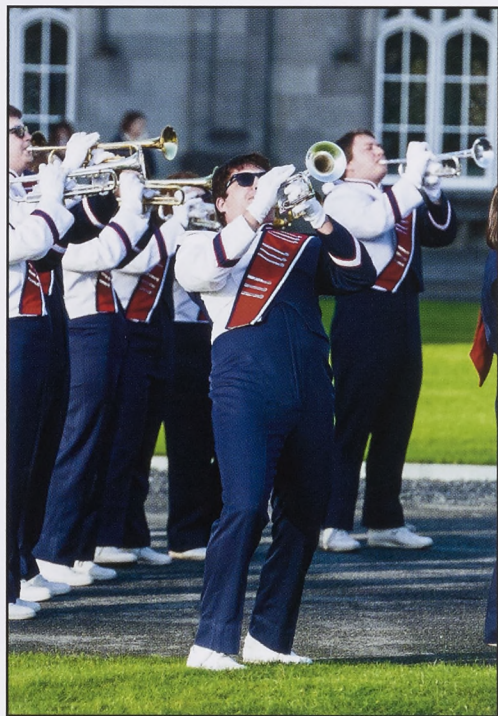

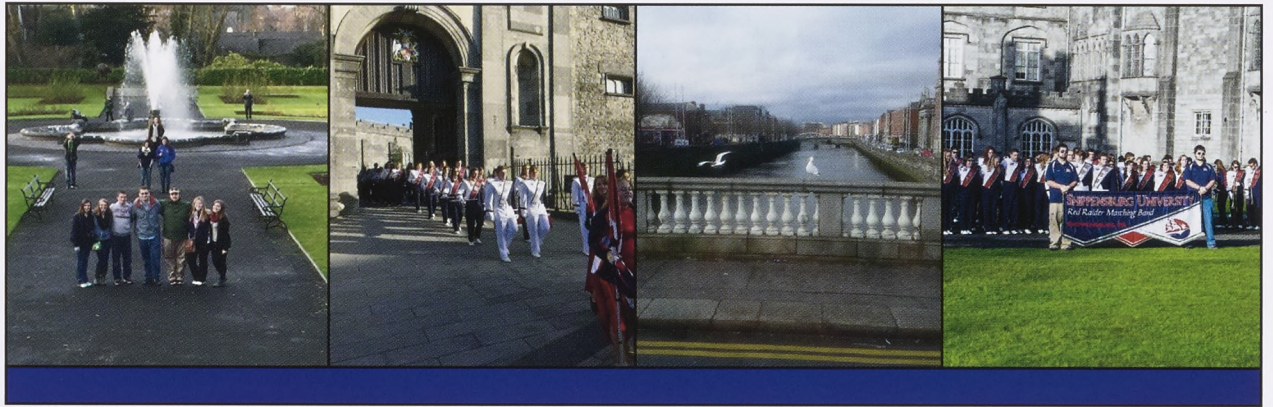

A total of eighty-six students took the trip. They rehearsed twice a week, memorizing four different song sets for the Procession of Lights and two different sets for the additional concerts.

The group also carved out time for excursions to Bunratty Castle, the Cliffs of Moher, Blarney Castle, and several sites in Dublin. “To me, it’s not just about the performances; it’s also the experience the students get,” Famulare said. “We have a number of students at this university who have never left Pennsylvania before now, let alone the United States. This is a once-in-a-lifetime trip for them.”

SU Field Studies in China

A group of 14 students took part in the Field Studies in China course taught by Dr. Jennifer Pomeroy and Dr. George Pomeroy of the geography/earth science department.

They arrived at East China Normal University (ECNU) in Shanghai on June 12. During their 20-day stay, they will take part in Chinese language and culture classes and participate in sightseeing excursions in various Chinese cities, including Shanghai, Hangzhou, Xian, and Beijing.

Twelve Chambersburg Area School District teachers went on the trip and the group visited Shijiazhuang No. 25 High School, a CASD sister-school.

Other highlights of the trip included a visit to Xian where the group visited the site of the Terracotta Army, a collection of life-size terracotta sculptures including 8,000 soldiers, 130 chariots with 520 horses and 150 cavalry horses. The sculptures were discovered by chance by a farmer digging a well in 1974. They were buried in 210-209 BCE with Qin Shi Huang, the first Emperor of China, to protect the emperor in his afterlife.

The group also exchanged Shippensburg University keepsakes with their hosts and enjoyed shopping in local markets.

A Mother's Day Graduation

By: Laura Kreiser, The Slate

Mothers across the Shippensburg University campus, on Saturday May 9, received the gift of seeing their children graduate, just the day before Mother's Day.

As the undergraduates walked out onto the field, people bustled around, trying to find seats in Seth Grove Stadium for what would become standing room only.

The theme of the day surrounded the accomplishments of the graduates. The chancellor of the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education, Frank Brogan, led the ceremony. When it was time to give his speech, Brogan repeated that congratulations was due to all the graduates sitting there, as well as a big thank you to the students for being role models.

Brogan also touched on the fact that the graduates had a wide world ahead of them. With hard work and determination, the graduates would be able to follow their dreams and become anything they want, Brogan said.

Brogan gave recognition to the parents, grandparents, siblings and anyone who helped the graduates sitting in the chairs at the center of the field.

Before the diplomas were presented, awards were presented to outstanding alumni, like Alexis Brubaker from the class of 2002, Nancy Cubano from the class of 1997, Marie Habib from the class of 2003 and Karen Page Winterich from the class of 2003. Brogan gave the awards for all they have accomplished since their graduation from SU.

After all this, it was time for the main event — watching the students receive their diplomas. For some students, their families could not sit still or keep quiet. Some shouted, while others had horns and other devices to let their child know they were there.

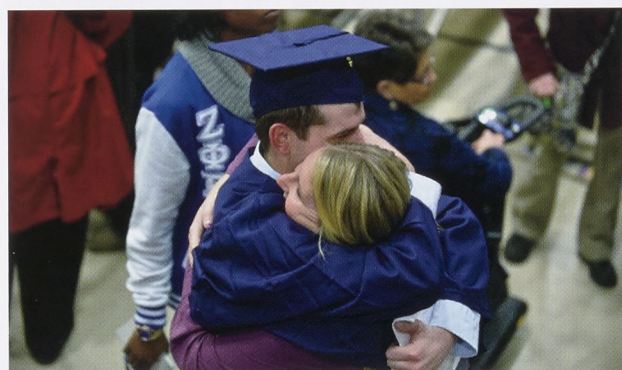

Some graduates shook their heads, while others proudly held up their diplomas. Other graduates could not hide their smiles as they looked toward their families.

Many graduates also decorated the caps adorning their heads with sayings ranging from "My future is unlimited 2015" to "I served my time." The caps could be best seen when they were tossed up in the air.

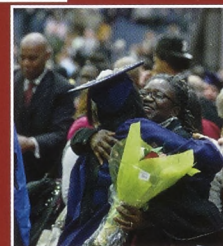

As everyone filed out, students hugged family members and said goodbye to friends as they left the stadium, getting ready to start the next step in their lives.

We The Kings

By: Isabella Angelone, The Slate

In 2005, if you had asked Travis Clark, Hunter and Drew Thomsen and Danny Duncan where they would be in ten years, they probably would not have been able to predict the successful musical career they have had. With four records, three extended plays and numerous tours under their belt, pop punk band We the Kings has acquired a quiet yet dedicated fan base and several smash hits.

The band released their debut self-titled album in 2007, hitting number 3 on Billboard's Top Heatseekers chart and 151 on the Billboard 200. The album's 2nd single, Check Yes Juliet, is their biggest hit to date and also their biggest hit on Billboard charts. They have even recorded with Demi Lovato in 2010 and had their song "Blood Brothers" featured in an episode of CW hit The Vampire Diaries.

Despite all this success, while their home is in their native Florida, they are just five normal guys. Lead singer Travis Clark is getting married in December and Coley O'Toole, keyboardist for the band since 2011, is expecting a baby with his wife. Clark said, "besides working out, going to the movies, going to get drinks with friends, date nights and other 'normal' things is what we're into!"

The band is extremely down to earth, meeting outside after every show to meet, talk and take pictures with fans. When asked if being humble was important, Clark said, "...we decided early on that we never wanted to forget who we are and that we always wanted to maintain being humble no matter what success came our way." After saying some of his idols were "completely arrogant" in person. The band was nothing close to arrogant from the beginning of the show to the tiny meet-and-greet afterwards.

The crowd was amped and energetic on Friday night. There was a line outside with students waiting for doors to open as early as 6 even though the Activities Program Board (who were in charge of the show) did not open doors until 7 pm. The band did not come on stage until 8 and everyone was eager as the time ticked away.

The five band members were all smiles and waves as they took the stage, playing to a small crowd in the CUB multipurpose room. They shared song inspirations and funny stories with the crowd, even singing happy birthday to a young fan in the front row who traveled from a neighboring town to see them.

While the concert only lasted an hour, Clark told fans he wanted to "meet all of you and lick your faces" which caused an eruption of cheers from the crowd. It was awhile before they emerged from the cub, equipment and baggage in hand, but were excited to talk to and take pictures with the small crowd grouped outside.

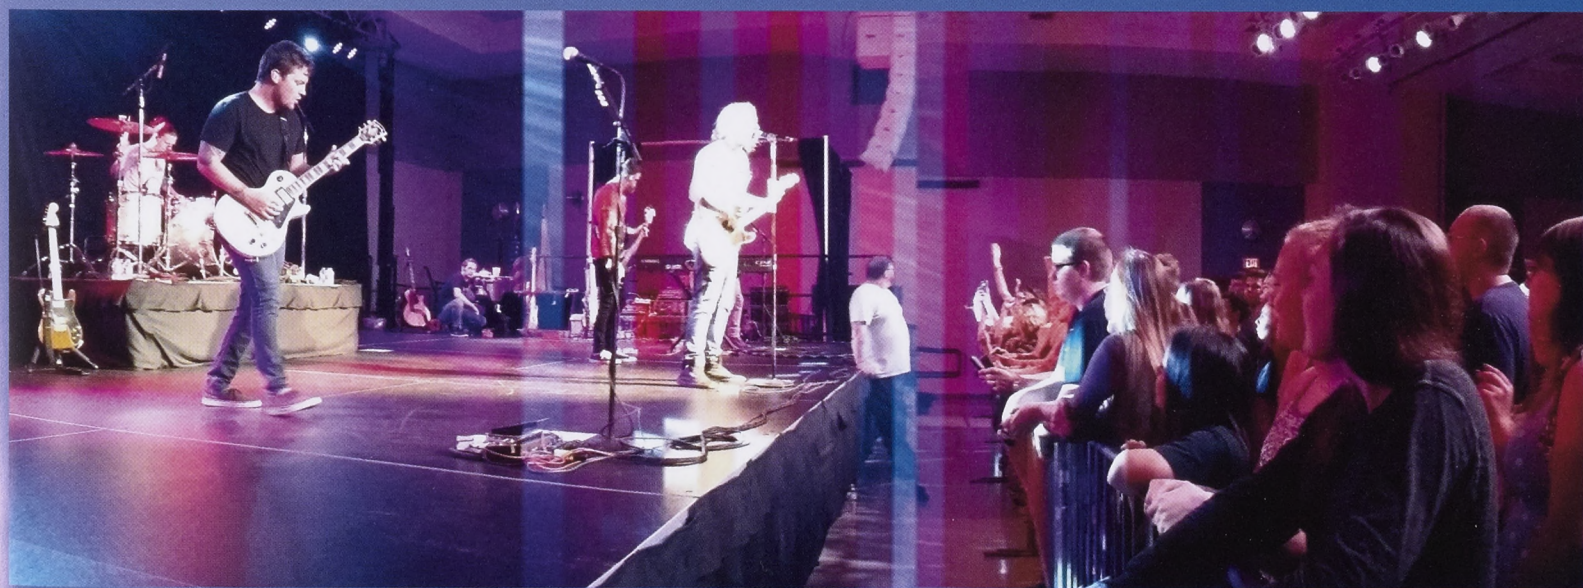

The band played all of their hits, as well some of their lesser known songs. The crowd went completely wild when they closed with hit 'Check Yes Juliet' after covering songs by Jason Mraz and Jimmy Eat World.

It was at a Jimmy Eat World concert, with guests Green Day and Blink-182, that Travis Clark decided with best friend Hunter Thomsen that he wanted to start a band. "We really just wanted girlfriends to be honest...I wanted to be the first ginger to get a girlfriend." Clark told the crowd, getting laughter and cheers in response.

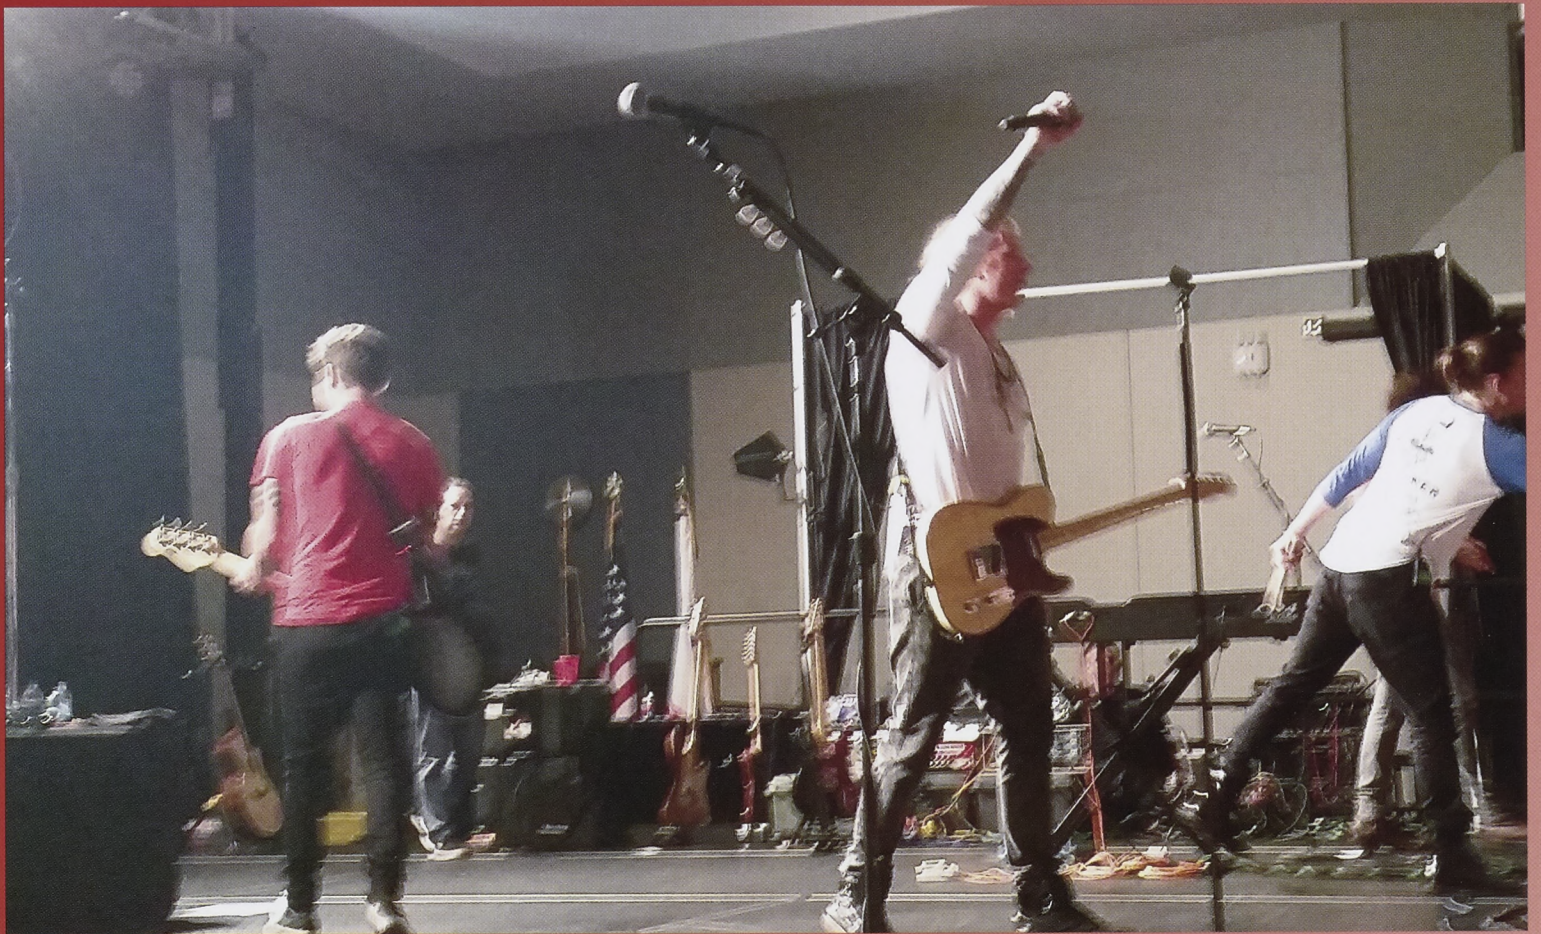

The band is likely to take a break from touring and recording, with Clark and O'Toole's impending family changes along with just recently returning from Japan in late September.

Clark ended with some friendly advice for aspiring musicians. "I'll give you the same advice my dad gave me, 'Figure out what your idea of success is and chase it. If it's girls, money, cars, or fame, then go for that and don't stop until you have it. But if you're anything like me and success is about being able to do what you love with people you love, not being worried about it 'will I make it?' or 'what do I need to do?'...just put one foot in front of the other and let everything fall into place. If it's meant to be, than let it be."

Q&A With: Travis Clark, lead singer for We The Kings

By: Isabella Angelone, The Slate

What made you want to become a band in the first place? How did this whole thing get started?

We really just wanted girlfriends to be honest. We never expected to make it this far, but obviously we're happy that we did.

What were your influences? Have they changed at all? When did you all pick up your first instrument?

We all listened to a variety of styles and artists, but I think if I had to not avoid the question, I would say The Beatles, Coldplay, Foo Fighters, Blink 182, and Jimmy Eat World. The influences that we all admire have evolved, but I still think that we cherish those early influences and credit them to a lot of our success that we've had so far! I started playing piano when I was 5 years old and wrote my first song when I was 8 years old on the piano. It was called "Runaway." I think I still remember the whole thing.

You've made four records now so what is the writing process like for you guys? Is there anything or a certain place that helps you out?

The writing process has always been constant with We The Kings, typically I get into the studio and record some ideas that turn into rough demos, I then show the rest of the guys to see what they think, and if all comes back positive, then we all record the song together and slap it on the album in hopes that the fans enjoy our work.

Is there a reason you guys like playing so many colleges? Is it a different atmosphere than other venues?

Well for starters, we didn't really get the chance to live the "college" lifestyle, so it's nice to see what we would be missing out on. The band got signed right out of high school, and don't get me wrong, I'm not upset by any means about that, but college was always something that we all wanted to be a part of, so playing at colleges is the happy medium between being musicians and graduates.

You guys have stayed really humble throughout the years. Is that important to you?

We've had the amazing opportunity to meet some of our favorite bands that we adored growing up. Some of those members have been humble, some have been completely arrogant, so I think we decided early on that we never wanted to forget who we are and that we always wanted to maintain being humble no matter what success came our way. It's also important to us due to the fact that if we ever came home cocky, our mom's would literally slap us so hard it would knock us right back down to earth.

Was there ever a moment where you thought the band wouldn't work out? Has there ever been a moment of doubt in your career?

Always. Being in a band is the least stable career we could have thought to pick, but it's the most fun when it all works out, that's what keeps us going. We always cross those life and career "speed bumps" but we get through it just like any normal person gets through their own life's hazards. We always hope for greatness and try representing ourselves as best as possible, that way even if we do fall short of what people think we should reach, we'll still be successful in our own minds.

How is the support from your family, friends, and the people back home? Is it strange coming home from tour?

We have an incredible support system from our fans to our friends and most importantly our families. Our families have been there through the thick and thin and have seen us grow from immature kids playing music too loud in our parent's garage into immature kids playing music too loud in venues across the world. It is strange coming back home sometimes because new restaurants will be built and some streets will be newly paved and some buildings will be painted different color etc., but no matter how much the town tries to change, the people who we grew up with and our hometown will always know us better than anyone else and that is always something we can appreciate coming home to.

What do you guys like to do when you aren't touring, recording, or writing?

We all have pretty normal lives outside of touring and recording. I'm getting married in December, so wedding planning has been the highest priority as of late, but besides that working out, going to the movies, going to get drinks with friends, date nights and other "normal" things is what we're all into.

Do you have any tips for starting musicians? Any friendly advice?

I'll give the same advice my dad gave me. "Figure out what your idea of success is and chase it. If it's girls, money, cars, or fame, then go for that and don't stop until you have it. But if you're anything like me success is about being able to do what you love with people you love, not being worried about will I make it, or what do I need to do... Just put one foot in front of the other and let everything fall into place. If it's meant to be, then let it be." my parents were both Beatles fanatics so they brought me into the world with these types of ideals and I couldn't be more grateful for them.

What is your craziest fan encounter?

The craziest fan encounters I definitely can't mention due to giving people horrible ideas...but some fans gave us voodoo dolls of ourselves once. We were all afraid to do anything with them because we were scared that real events would take place based on the environment of the dolls. It was actually really stressful having the dolls on the bus, I'm not sure what happened to them to this day, but I know that all of us are still alive and haven't broken any limbs or been jabbed by any needles (knock on wood.)

Homecoming

Homecoming Court

By: Hunter Wolfe, The Slate

With thousands of Shippensburg University students, faculty and alumni watching excitedly, Nicole Nicholson and Brandon Bord were crowned Homecoming Queen and King.

At half-time during Saturday's football game against the Cheyney Wolves, this year's Homecoming Court took to the field while the marching band performed around them.

The court included: Jackie Hubbard and Allen Koederitz, first runners up; Lucy Davis and Tyler Graham, second runners up; Laura O'Donnell and Charlito Iwaugwu, third runners up and Emily Larsen and Josh Ebright, fourth runners up.

Former Queen and King, Sarah Maize and Joey Bucher were ready to crown their successors.

Maize described her experience as queen as "wonderful." She was enthusiastic at the idea of recognizing another student who was just as involved as she had been.

Bucher was just as excited to pass the torch to his fraternity brother, Bord. "It's 30 years in a row of Kappa Sigma brothers having been Homecoming King," he said. "I think that's really special."

When asked how she felt when she was the last person to have her name called, Nicholson says she was shaky. "When we were walking on the field, I wasn't nervous at all," she said. "My body told me otherwise."

Nicholson was thrilled to have been selected. She explained that Shippensburg left its mark on her and helped her to break out of her shell, and she is honored to now represent all the best things about SU's student body.

Bord was relieved, excited and proud of all of his colleagues for meeting two-thirds of their fundraising goal.

This year, the Homecoming Court raised money for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Shippensburg and Chambersburg, an after-school organization that provides equal opportunity education for children from low-income families. Nicholson raised $1,456 for the organization, and Brandon Bord raised $1,324. All together, the homecoming committee has raised $10,450.79 for the Boys and Girls Club so far, but intends to continue fundraising through November.

Ship's "BIG" Show

Big Sean performs Homecoming

After waiting in a long, grueling line outside of the Ceddia Union Building, Shippensburg's Big Sean fans are finally let into the building promptly at 10 p.m. At the 2014 Homecoming party on October 25, students came into the CUB MPR where a DJ playing today's greatest hip-hop hits was awaiting them. After about one hour of dancing under the flashing strobe lights and booming bass, the highly anticipated concert began. Up first: J. Cole's newly signed artist, Cozz. The new rapper performed his singles including "Dreams" and "Knock Tha Hustle". His performance only boosted the excitement among students in the room. With music mixed by Big Sean's DJs beginning fans knew the show was about to begin.

The crowd roared with screams and excitement as Big Sean took the stage. He opened the show with his feature on "Mercy" by Kanye West. As the concert continued he played a variety of songs including his new hits, older hits and features on his partner artist's songs. Hits such as "Dance (A**)" "High" and Drake's "All Me" aided in raising the excitement from the crowd. In a break between songs, Big Sean addressed the crowd with an inspirational bit of advice. The Detroit native encouraged Ship students to always follow their hearts in whatever they do while sharing his personal experiences with doubt he received from others. As the concert came to a close, Big Sean performed "Beware" including those in the front row of the concert. Ship students left the show satisfied and with great memories. Big Sean's Twitter feed included tweets from Ship students praising the star and his performance after the show. It's safe to say the concert was the BIG ending to Ship's 2014 Homecoming!

12th Annual Vagina Monologues

On Feb. 19, 20 and 21 the Shippensburg Women's Center held its 12th annual performance of the Vagina Monologues to raise money for the YWCA Rape Crisis Center of Carlisle.

This year director Kayla Fyfe worked with 28 other cast members to create an amazing show. Auditions were in November and the cast met several times before their opening night to ensure a smooth production.

Approximately 450 people came out to see the show and raise money for the YWCA. After three days, the Vagina Monologues raised $2,076. Since its first performance 12 years ago the show has brought in over $15,000.

Eve Ensler wrote the original episodic play after conducting over 200 interviews with women around the world about sex, violence against women and relationships. Each year a new monologue is added to shed light on a current issue affecting women.

Take Back The Night

NO MORE
TOGETHER WE CAN END
DOMESTIC VIOLENCE & SEXUAL ASSAULT

On April 7th, 2015 a powerful event took place on Shippensburg's Campus. An event where individuals speak out against domestic violence and sexual assault occurred, called "Take Back the Night." This year's theme was "Ship Says No More."

Take Back the Night began in the CUB MPR with speaker Stephanie Erdice from the Women's Center. She wants to bring more awareness to the issues of rape and abuse and inform students that both are not tolerated on our campus. Erdice explained that there is a Ship website for sexual misconduct with up-to-date information. Over the last twelve months, she said, this initiative to end these issues has really spread. "We have seen thoughts and ideas torn into action and advocacy," said Stephanie. She stated that this is the inspiration needed to end violence on Shippensburg's campus.

Shippensburg President, Jodi Harpster, spoke at the event as well, discussing the issues of domestic abuse and sexual assault, saying, "We still have a long way to go." Fortunately, Ship joined the national "NO MORE" Campaign last year, which works with victims and those who support the cause to spread the word and end the issue. Harpster's goal is to create a campus environment in which everyone can feel safe. One out of every six women has been a victim of sexual assault. "We HAVE TO speak up. As members of the Ship family, we need to talk about things that are most important to us," stated President Harpster.

A few SU Dance Troupe members joined the MPR stage to dance while the song "The Freshman" by the Verve Pipe played. After this, Erdice introduced the Slate News Editor, Mary Grace Keller who created a video for the event.

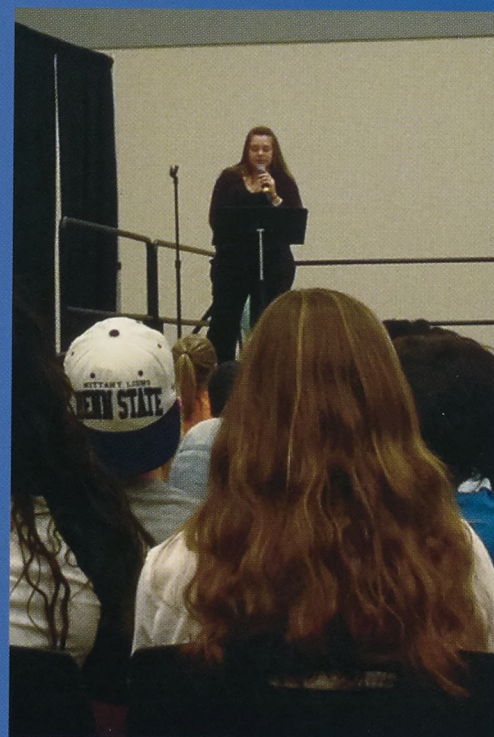

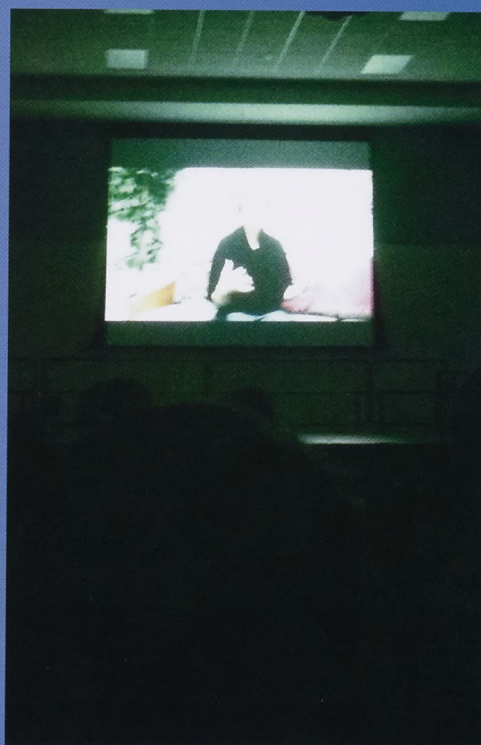

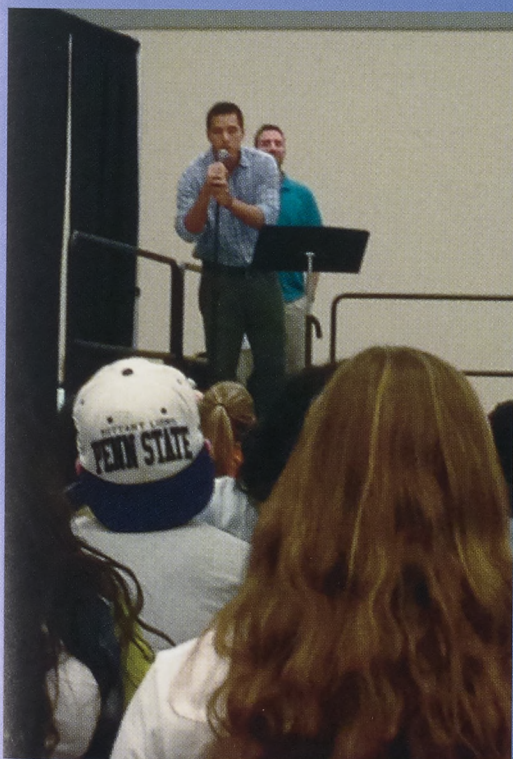

A video called "Walk a Mile in Her Shoes" was shown from the yearly event that locally takes place in Chambersburg and is held across the country. Men put on women's high heel shoes and walk for a mile in order to help raise awareness about rape, sexual assault and gender violence. The video pointed out that "No one has to do everything, but everyone has to do something." After the video, two speakers came to the stage to discuss that we also need to educate men about violence and assault. They discussed that men should see women as people and not objects. One young man stated, "Truly love women? Time we act like it. Time we take back the night." They explained that men are victims of sexual assault as well and that men need to speak out. There should be no shame.

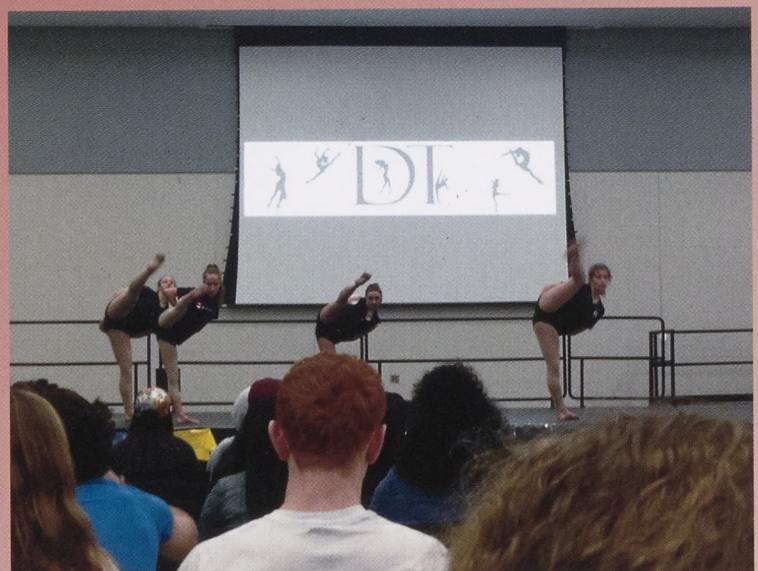

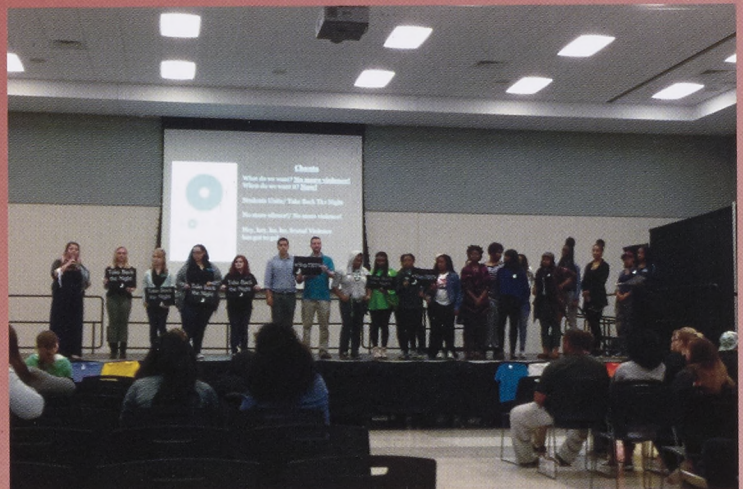

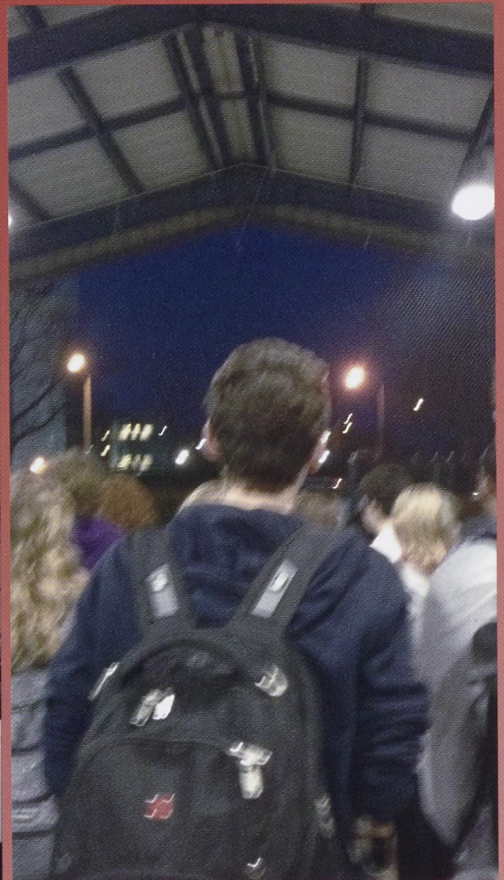

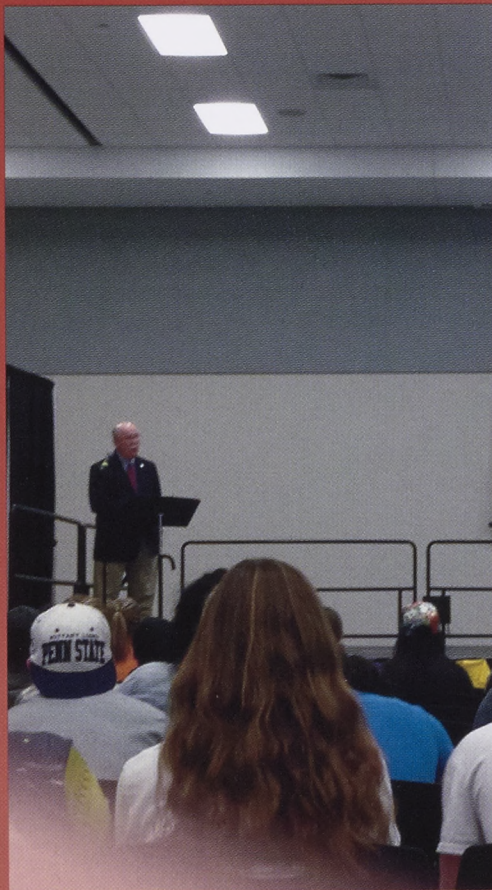

Members from the groups of REACT (Rape Educators and Contacts) and The Women's Center spoke at the event. These young women informed the audience of the different, convenient places students can obtain information.

One speaker said that talking on stage was out of her comfort zone, but that the audience can compare it to speaking out about issues of sexual abuse and domestic violence. In order to make a change, sometimes people have to step out their comfort zones. She said, "We must march. We must protect. We must protest. We must shake the Earth."

A poem called "Speak Out" was read to the audience. It was written by a survivor. Words were given for the audience to chant during the outdoor rally. The audience members got together and were lead outside of the CUB. The group marched around campus chanting the phrase: "Students unite. Take back the night. No more silence. No more violence. Hey, hey. Ho, ho. Sexual violence has got to go." At the end, the audience formed a group, and each person received a candle. Each person was given the opportunity to speak about his or her own experience. Many brave, young women and men walked up to the front of the crowd to speak once he or she had grown the courage. The courage of others helped lead more and more people to take that chance to tell his or her story. For many, this was the first they have ever told their story. Emotions went wild, and the support and love felt upon the audience was immaculate. The audience formed a family of support. After the speakers finished, every single audience member lit a candle to signify what was taken from these young women and men during their episodes of sexual abuse or violence.

Kenan Thompson

takes on SU

Actor and comedian, Kenan Thompson took to the stage of the multipurpose room (MPR) of the Ceddia Union Building on Saturday April 16, 2015.

Before the show even began the crowd was anxiously waiting in their seats for Thompson to take the stage and once he did, it was non-stop laughter throughout the night.

Thompson started off the show by thanking everyone for coming and of course making a few jokes about the small town of Shippensburg.

"I was trying to look for y'all when I got into town but all I saw was a bunch of old people," Thompson said as he stood on stage.

He continued by sharing a few things about himself, including where he grew up and why he decided to get into the entertainment industry in the first place. He said the reason he got into the industry was through watching "The Price is Right" with his family while he was growing up.

Thompson also spoke about his experience with working on the set of Saturday Night Live (SNL). He revealed that he was scared to do the stand-up comedy routine for the audition for SNL. Thompson said he had auditioned several times before getting the spot on the show and is currently in his 12th season with SNL.

In an interview after the show, Thompson explained that he hopes to take a break from acting and move on to producing. He also talked about life outside of his acting career. Thompson and his wife welcomed a baby girl last June and have started making plans for her first birthday celebration which is right around the corner.

Relay For Life

The Intentional Tie

This year was the fifteenth annual Relay for Life held at Shippensburg. The event went from 6 p.m. on April 17 to 6 a.m. on April 18 and brought in almost 700 participants. Overall, there were 38 teams and $50,502.69 was donated to the American Cancer Society.

There was something different about this year's Relay for Life event though. Usually there is one team that raises the most money for Relay. This year both the Kappa Sigma and Alpha Phi team and Team Dagnes made a truce and decided to tie for the most donations. The Associate Dean of Students Veterans Affairs, Bob Smith, labeled it "The Intentional Tie." Each team raised $9,567. This means that those two teams raised 38 percent of the total donations made to Relay for Life this year.

It makes sense that these two teams would be the leaders of Relay for Life this year. The Kappa Sigma and Alpha Phi team worked hard to raise so much money in honor of their Kappa Sigma brother, Matt Presz, who has overcome cancer. Similarly, Team Dagnes was fighting for Ali Dagnes who is a professor here at Shippensburg.

ACT V

The Addams Family Musical

By: Mary Grace Keller, The Slate

A single pale hand slipped between the red curtains — the audience's first glimpse as to what lies beyond the velvet shroud.

Da da da dum, snap, snap.

Da da da dum, snap, snap.

"The Addams Family" arrived on the Shippensburg University Memorial Auditorium stage, last night, as Act V's latest performance.

The evening consisted of ghosts, potions, thunderstorms and the ever-charming quirks of the Addamses. Act V had to pull together an especially talented cast for the show to live up to the Broadway hype. The cast members had to be skilled in theater, song and dance for the SU production.

In the musical, Wednesday Addams, played by Mackenzie Brouse, falls in love with a "normal" boy, named Lucas Beineke. Wednesday's usual dark and gloomy disposition is replaced by thoughts of sunshine and rainbows, once she admits she wants to marry Lucas, played by Tyler Law.

Even when the two freshmen co-stars are not the center of attention, they maintain their characters' personas with every tiny interaction — like when Wednesday rolls her eyes or Lucas smiles lovingly at her.

The plot evolves when the father of the family, Gomez Addams, finds himself trapped between the two women he loves the most, his daughter and his wife, Morticia, played by Gillian Bradshaw.

"Whaaaaat?" Gomez screams, with a Spanish accent, when Wednesday tells him that her and Lucas are engaged. Wednesday makes him promise not to tell Morticia until after the Beineke family comes over for dinner.

As the song goes, Gomez is "Trapped" between keeping a promise for Wednesday and keeping a secret from his wife, whom he tells everything.

"He's so charismatic and fun to play," Marshall said of Gomez.

At one point in the musical, when everything seems to be going wrong, Gomez and Wednesday have a father-daughter dance outside the family graveyard.

"It's the point when Gomez breaks out of his quirkiness he's had throughout the show and has a moment with Wednesday," Marshall said of the scene, one of his favorites.

The majority of the time, Gomez is rattling off family history, caressing his wife or brandishing a sword.

Morticia drew the eyes of the crowd wherever she moved, her sultry black dress highlighting the paleness of her skin. Bradshaw captured all that is the essence of Morticia, from her pointed walk to how she runs her family — although her parenting tactics are quite different from that of Alice Beineke, Lucas' mother.

Upon meeting Alice, Morticia nearly vomits at the sight of her bright yellow dress and the sound of Alice's singsong, rhyming sentences.

Although more of a secondary role, Ariadne Retzer brings the character of Alice to the spotlight when she belts out "Waiting" and collapses on the Addams' dining room table, halfway through the show.

During intermission, student director and producer Samantha New had a giant smile across her face. The dress rehearsal, the night before, was a little rough, and New was ecstatic to see how the show was turning out.

"It's always different when you put on a show and there's an audience," New said, her red lipstick-coated smile stretching even further.

"The audience gives them new life," New said.

When the curtains parted again, the show shifted focus to a fight between Lucas and Wednesday.

"I can be impulsive. I just need to think about it first!" Lucas yelled as he ran after Wednesday, who was toting a crossbow.

In the second half of the musical, the differences between Lucas and Wednesday are perpetuated even further as the Addams and Beineke families deal with their own love problems.

"If you're going to act like a tool, why don't you sleep in the shed," Alice said to her husband Mal, played by Matthew Peck.

Auditions for "The Addams Family" were held in November, and rehearsals began during the spring semester. The long hours New spent between student teaching and musical practice were finally worth it when the curtain came to a final close, Thursday night.

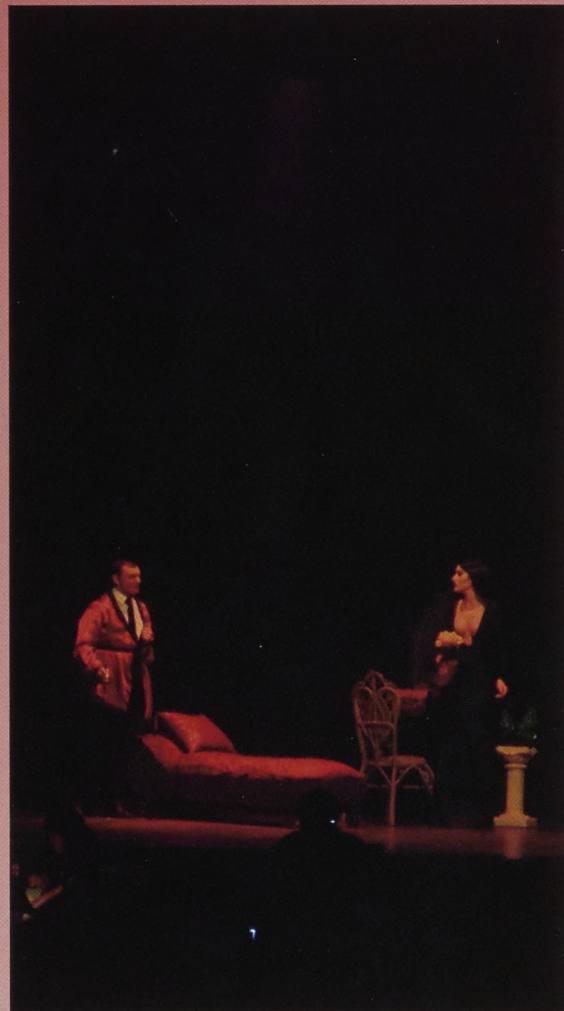

"Together, we've made Act V history," New said before running off to hug and celebrate with choreographer, Kimberly Browne.

"We did it!" the two yelled as they embraced.

Chapter

Less than two years after receiving its charter, Shippensburg University's chapter of Pi Alpha Alpha — the international honor society for public affairs and administration — has been named the top university chapter in the United States.

The Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration (NASPAA) chose Shippensburg based on its activities over the past year, according to Dr. Amanda Olejarski, assistant professor of political science and chapter adviser.

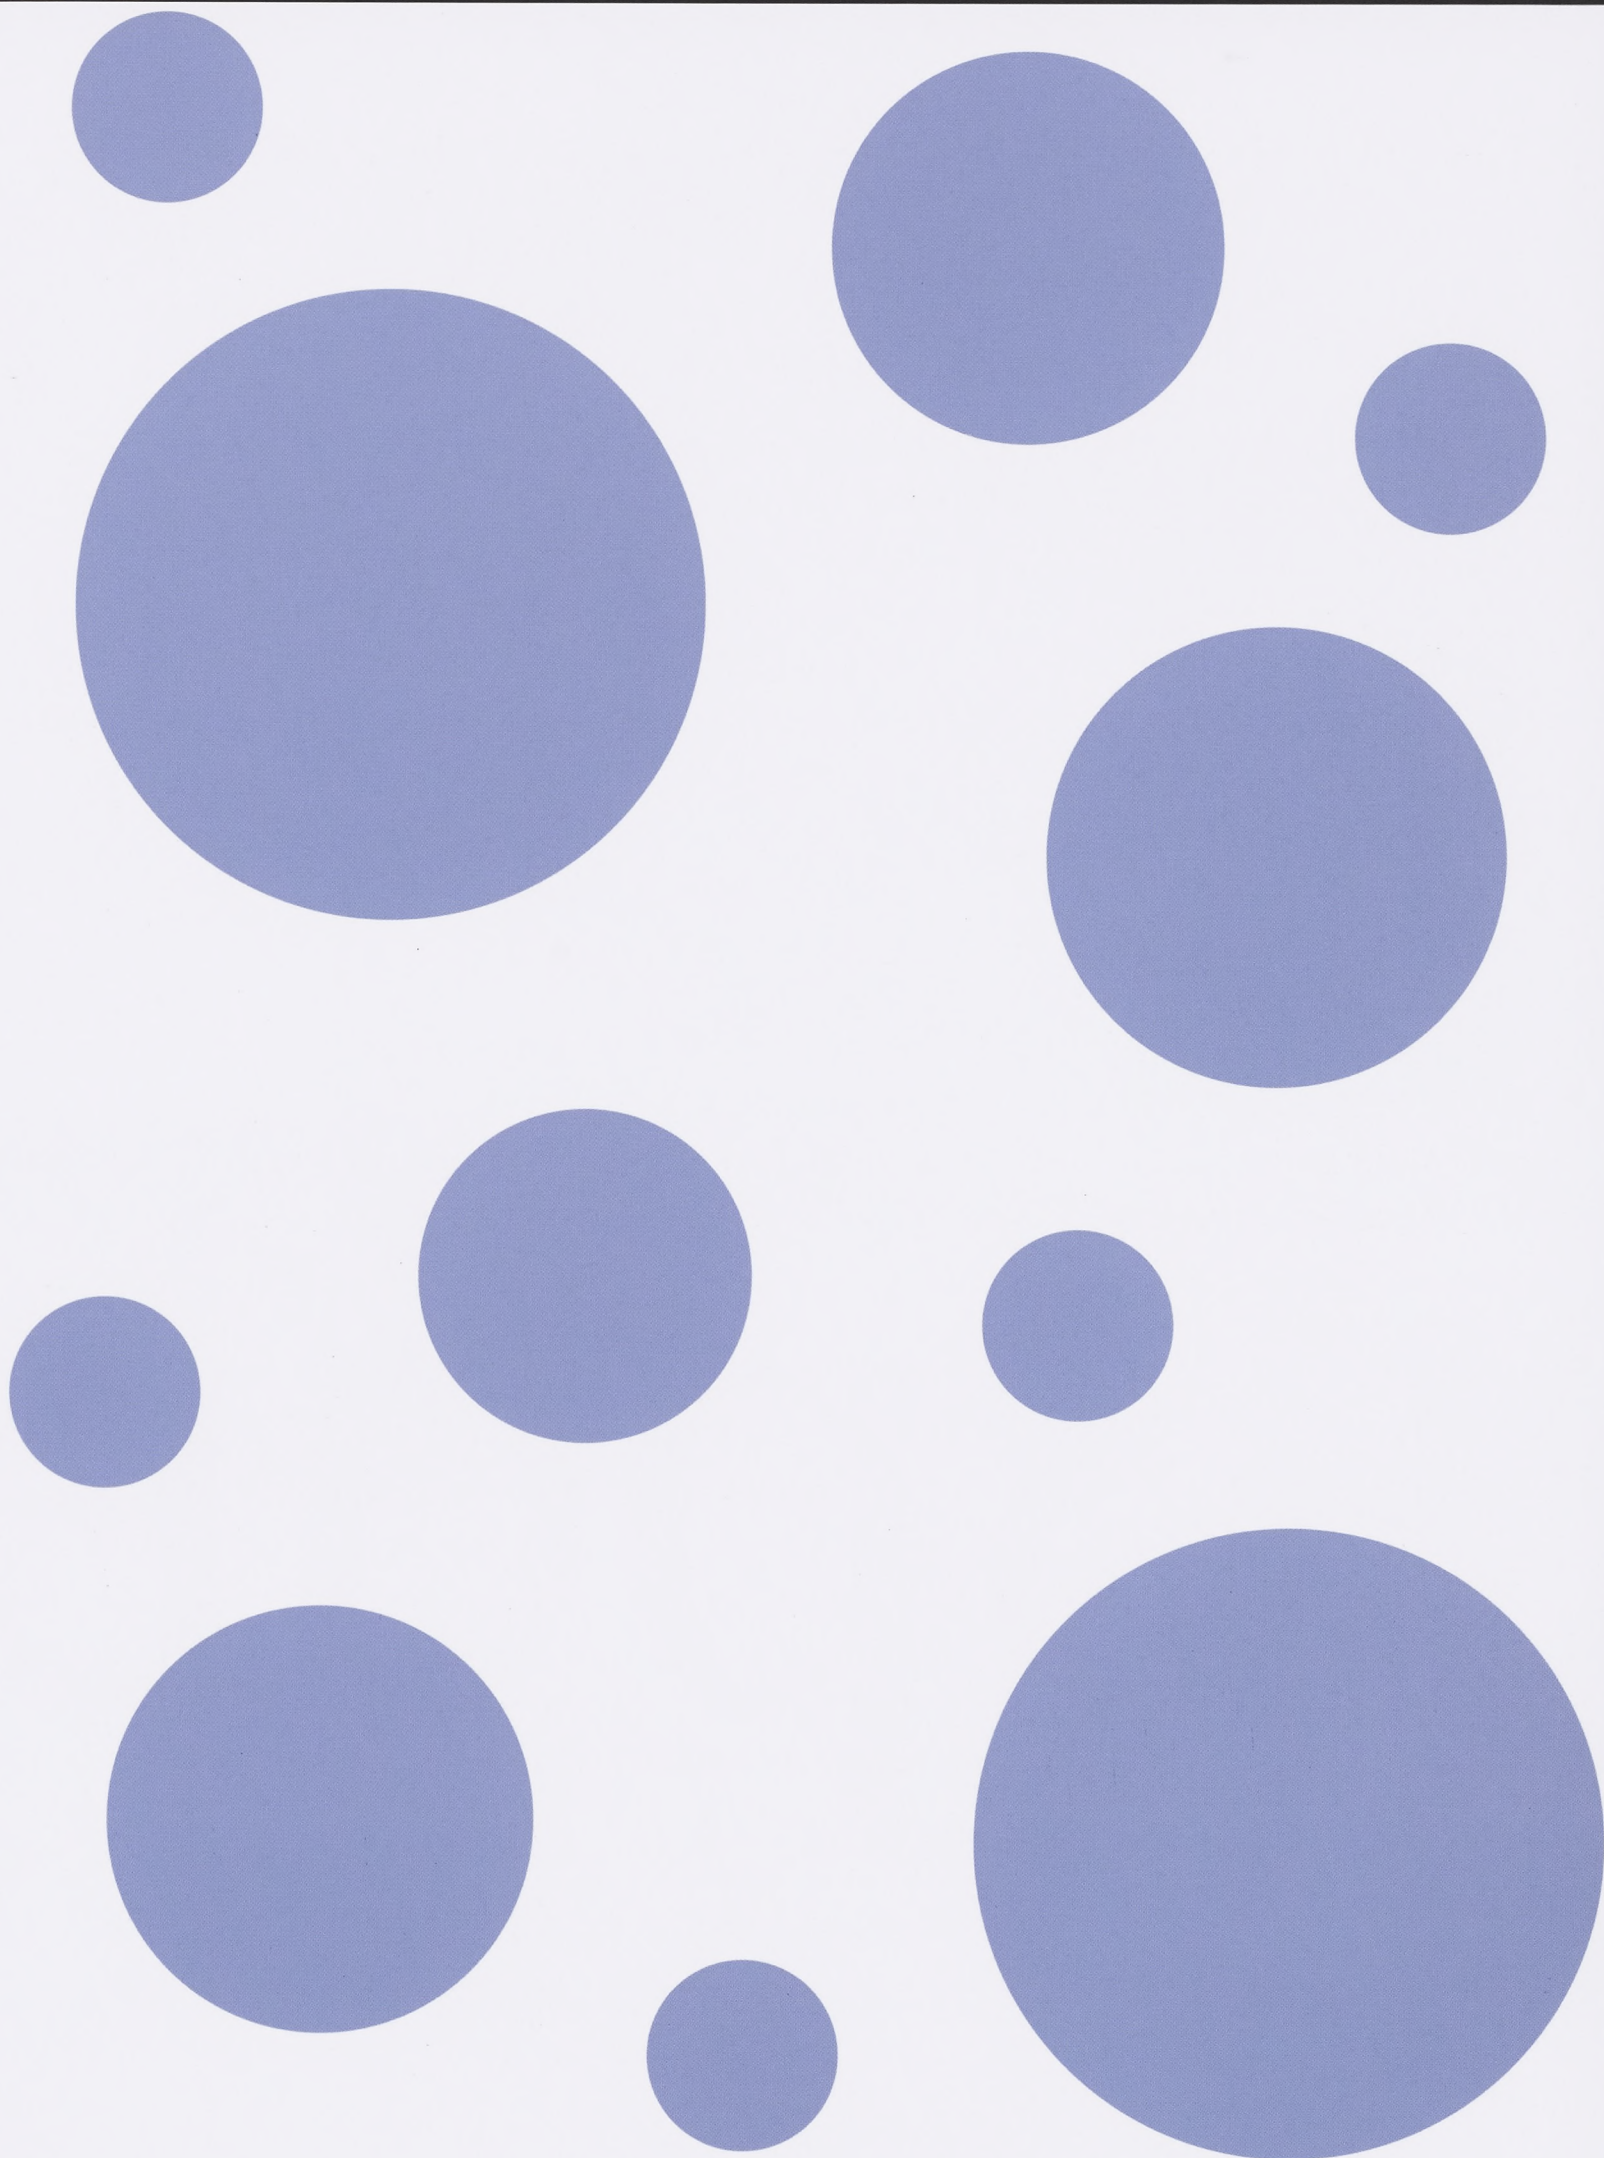

NASPAA is the national accrediting body for college and university public administration programs.

Olejarski will accept the Jacqueline F. Lewis Pi Alpha Alpha Chapter Award of Excellence at NASPAA's annual meeting in Albuquerque, N.M., in November. "We are thrilled to receive the award. It is a huge honor, especially since we have been chartered as a chapter only since December 2012," Olejarski said.

The chapter's largest activity is its annual induction ceremony, held the first week in May in celebration of National Public Service Recognition Week. The ceremony is held jointly with the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA), the professional membership organization for those working in the public administration field. The ASPA chapter presents its annual awards and features a keynote speaker during the event. "Having the ceremony as part of ASPA's annual awards dinner is a way to honor our students' hard work and academic achievements in a really meaningful way," Olejarski said. "Not only are their families and faculty there, but they also get to network with professionals, which makes the event even more important for them."

Shippensburg is one of five Pi Alpha Alpha chapters in Pennsylvania. It is the only university in Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education with a chapter.

Coming into the first season without their Harlon Hill winning quarterback, the Shippensburg Red Raiders had a lot of question to answer. The coaching staff believes that one question that still remains unanswered is just how good is the Red Raider football team? The team managed to finish above .500 with a final record of 6-5 after dropping the season finale to Mercyhurst University 42 to 21.

Junior Sheldon Mayer, another stand out wide receiver for the Red Raiders, recorded his career best with 14 catches for 198 yards. The Red Raiders had had themselves a tie game going into half time with the score 14 all. Behind a 21 point 3rd quarter, and five big touchdowns for the game from Mercyhurst's redshirt junior quarter back Brendan Boylan, the Lakers proved to be too much for the Red Raiders.

"We had a year full of injuries, guys playing out of position and a lot of younger guys playing more than snaps than expected." said Coach Mac.

The Red Raiders how ever did not lie down and accept defeat when adversity begin to run throughout the team.

"There were a lot of guys that stepped up as we needed them to and assumed that leadership role."

None more than the Red Raiders senior wide receiver Trevor Harman who recorded 947 receiving yards and 11 touchdowns on the season. Others players also stepped up big for the Red Raiders. Senior running back Blair Brooks reached 1,171 yards on 176 rushes becoming the first running back for Shippensburg to eclipse 1,000 yards since Shippensburg Alumni and Green Bay Packers fullback John Kuhn.

When asked about next season Coach Mac said, "A lot of young players got experience this past season. Now we need young guys to step up and everyone to be an impact player for us."

Mens Soccer

The 2014 Raiders looked to continue a run of success that included two NCAA and two PSAC Tournament appearances over the last four seasons under the direction of head coach Jeremy Spering.

SU reached the PSAC Quarterfinals in 2013 and hoped to once again crack the league's Top 6 squads. Twenty-one players returned to the team, along with a new goaltender and replacements for several key seniors a wealth of experience helped ease the transition.

Two of SU's three All-PSAC players from 2013 were back, and each of the team's three leading point scorers also returned. Additionally, five key defenders were also back from a unit that posted five shutouts and limited the opposition to just six first-half goals during the 2013 season.

Shippensburg ended the season 6-9-2 and 4-7 PSAC .

All nine of SU's losses in 2014 were decided by one goal, including two in overtime and one in double-overtime

The Shippensburg University women's soccer team finished the season 7-7-3 and set school records along the way.

The Shippensburg University women's soccer team tied a school record with its fourth consecutive shutout during the season this year.

SU allowed just 14 goals this season, setting a new school record for the fewest goals allowed in a single season. The previous record was 17 set in 1997.

Womens Field Hockey

The Women's Field Hockey had many expectations to live up to after finishing the 2013 season 20-1 and reaching the ultimate goal of becoming National Champions under Head Coach Bertie Landes. "You have a lot to live up to once you're a national champion." said Coach Landes.

The 2013 Women's Field Hockey team consisted of 14 freshmen and 6 sophomores a very young all around team. All they didn't do anything besides follow up the national championship run of the previous year with a trip to the NCAA Quarterfinal finishing the season with a record of 15-5.

Unfortunately, they lost the game to Millersville in double overtime with a final score of 1 Shippensburg, 2 Millersville.

Millersville managed to jump out to an early lead 1-0 in the first half, the equalizing goal for Shippensburg was made by Kendall Beck. Late in the second half, Millersville had a number of chances to take the lead after taking a flurry of shots. However, Shippensburg answered with great defense plays all of which lead to a key stop by sophomore Taylor Fisher with 18 seconds left to force overtime.

After a scoreless first overtime, Millersville managed to take the game on a shot by Champayne Hess.

"With such a young roster, we need to see who was going to emerge as leaders for the team. Senior Ari Saytar, Junior Molly Stuart, and Junior Taylor Webster all played great leadership roles for us.

Coach Landes is looking for the spring scrimmages they have set up to kick start the fall season off with a lot of momentum.

"Our goal next year is to reach the final four, but always to be crowned as National Champions." said Coach Landes.

Womens Volleyball

The Shippensburg University Womens Volleyball team survived a "grind it out season" in the words of their head coach Leanne Piscotty.

"We started off very well in the conference, then we unfortunately suffered three season ending injuries." However, Coach Piscotty did not use this as an excuse to throw in the towel on the season, she instead jumped at the opportunity to develop younger and less experience players on the team. "We believed that this would be a great opportunity to find leadership in other players and prepare for the future."

The players, however, had other plans for the season. They played a great end of the season and won the quarter finals.

In the PSAC semifinals lost to Seton Hill junior Faith Athey, of Shippensburg University, recorded seven blocks and seven kills as sophomore Annie Goerl led with nine kills.

Junior Taylor Gottshall finished with three block assists on the game which comes as no surprise as she holds the single season record for block assists with 125. She is also at the top of the list for Shippensburg University total blocks with 452.

Coach Piscotty believes that the team will be more than prepared for the up and coming season. "We have a freshmen coming in that we believe is going to be an instant contribution to the team."

Because of all the experience the younger players received, there is a lot of completion within the team for playing time. This is only going to make the team better as a whole.

Men's Basketball

The Shippensburg University men's basketball team was voted No. 8 in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Eastern Division Preseason Coaches' Poll.

Shippensburg, under the direction of second-year head coach Chris Fite, was picked ahead of Cheyney. The Top 3 teams were deemed to be East Stroudsburg (eight first-place votes), West Chester (one first-place vote) and Lock Haven.

SU has recruited six new freshmen who will be competing for immediate playing time in 2014-15. Overall, the team returns 11 players.

"We had a great recruiting class come in and have a lot of returners to the team, and we hope to take a big step forward," Fite said.

"They all bring something different to the table," Fite said of his recruiting class. "There are a number of them who have the potential to play big minutes for us this year. It really makes for a competitive atmosphere in practice and healthy competition is always good."

The team boasted two seniors -- Dylan Edgar and Sam Pygatt -- with Mark Wilmer expected to redshirt. Edgar is returning from an injury redshirt season.

The team finished the season 13-14.

Mens & Womens Swimming

The Shippensburg University men's swimming team was named a Spring 2015 College Swimming Coaches Association of America (CSCAA) Scholar All-America Team, achieving the honor for the second straight spring. SU compiled a 3.07 team grade-point average (GPA), which ranks the Raiders second in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) to West Chester (3.09).

"I am extremely proud of our men's program for achieving this mark," said Tim Verge '89, head coach. "We were just off in the fall season and they really made a push to get the recognition. The commitment to academics they've shown the past few years has really reflected the determination and drive of the young men we now have in our program."

The Scholar All-America Team award is presented to college swimming and diving teams that achieved a team grade-point average (GPA) of 3.0 or higher. The award is presented twice annually, once in the fall semester and once in the spring semester.

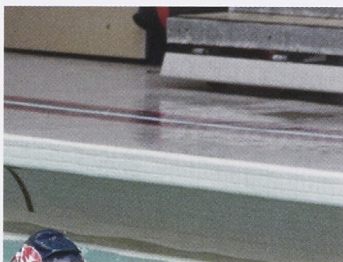

Four members of the Shippensburg University women's swimming team: junior Carolyn Meier, freshman MacKenna Angert, junior Rikki Sargent and senior Tara Yohe, have been named to the 2015 College Swimming Coaches Association of America (CSCAA) Scholar All-America Honorable Mention squad.

Meier, Angert, Sargent and Yohe each satisfied the NCAA 'B' qualifying standard in at least one event this season while maintaining a cumulative grade-point average (GPA) of 3.5 or higher.

A total of 1,078 swimmers and divers (spanning all three NCAA divisions and the NAIA) were recognized this year as Honorable Mention selections based on their performance in the classroom and the pool.

Women's Basketball

The Shippensburg University women's basketball team was voted as the No. 3 team in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Eastern Division Preseason Coaches' Poll.

Junior forward Stephanie Knauer, a two-time All-PSAC East performer, was one of six players named to the 2014-15 All-PSAC Eastern Division Preseason Team.

Shippensburg, guided by 16th-year head coach Kristy Trn '92/'93M, was picked behind No. 1 West Chester (four first-place votes) and No. 2 Bloomsburg (five first-place votes) but ahead of No. 4 Millersville, No. 5 East Stroudsburg and No. 6 Kutztown. Lock Haven, Mansfield and Cheyney rounded out the poll.

SU headed into the 2014-15 season without a senior and just three juniors on its 13-person roster, and finished the season 19-10 overall.

Mens Wrestling

The Shippensburg Men's Wrestling team enjoyed a very promising season under Head Coach Seth Bloomquist despite them being a very young team. Four of Coach Bloomquist wrestlers were able to qualify for the National Tournament, which is the goal of every member on the team. This four student athletes qualifying for the National Tournament is the most that the Men's Wrestling team has had since 2007. Coach Bloomquist believes that now more than ever is the time for him to push his young athletes to become elite. After a strong and promising finish to the 2014-2015 campaign, he now plans to place a strong emphasis on becoming an All-American.

With proper guidance Coach Bloomquist believes that his very young freshmen will continue to grow and become top performers within the PSAC.

Coach Bloomquist stated, "It was a very young team, so we hope to continue to build upon our successes and move forward."

Cameron Throckmorton a junior in the program, Karl Lightner a sophomore, Jalal Paige a sophomore, and Mike Springer a freshmen of the program were noted as standout performers of the 2014-2015 season by Coach Bloomquist. Also begin the four wrestlers of the program that were able to qualify for the National Tournament. Throckmorton managed to finish the team's best overall and NCAA record of 22-3. Lightner finished with a NCAA record of 16-10, Paige 12-11 and Springer 17-14.

When asked about next year's season, Coach Bloomquist stated, "This year's freshman did outstanding job for us. We were a young, but very talented team and we hope to continue to move in a positive direction."

W o m e n s T e n n i s & W o m e n s L a c r o s s e

The Shippensburg University tennis team begin its fall, non-championship season under the leadership of Amanda (Fenn) Addlesberger '06, who returned for her fourth season directing the tennis team at her alma mater.

Senior Julia Saintz, lead a group of five returning players. Saintz had a winning streak in singles play of six matches last season, the longest by an SU player since Lina Pavilionyte won six consecutive matches in April 2006. She was the only senior on the roster.

Saintz finished her collegiate career with 20 singles victories, while Shippensburg's five dual-meet victories on the season are the most since the 2005-06 season.

The team ended the season 5-8 and 2-4 PSAC East.

The Shippensburg University lacrosse team opened its 2015 season with a roster that features 10 freshmen and five sophomores among its 21 players. Despite its youth, the Raiders return 12 players and boast a great deal of promise under the direction of fourth-year head coach Ashley Manion.

"I'm really confident with this group this year despite our small roster size," Manion said. "Everyone is going to get their chance and be expected to contribute within their position."

While having a 3-14 season overall, the team still boasted a group of talented scholar athletes, including Shippensburg University sophomore Annemarie Cericola was named to the All-Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Lacrosse Team by the league's coaches.

Mens & Womens Outdoor Track

The Shippensburg University women's outdoor track & field team was cited Friday as one of 115 Division II women's squads in the country to achieve All-Academic honors by the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association (USTFCCCA).

The requirement to be named a USTFCCCA All-Academic Team is to hold a team grade-point average of 3.0 or higher. Shippensburg's team GPA is 3.24.

Shippensburg University junior Megan Lundy was named to the 2015 Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Spring Top 10 squad.

The Shippensburg University men's outdoor track & field team finished the 2015 NCAA Division II Outdoor Track & Field Championships with 10 First Team All-Americans, the third-highest total in the country behind perennial powers Saint Augustine's (national champions; 12), Texas A&M-Commerce (eighth place; 11) and Johnson C. Smith (11th place; 11).

Shippensburg entered this year's national championships with 11 entries including the 4x400-meter relay. Of those 11, SU had All-America efforts in eight – seven First Team (10 total trophies when including the relay) and one Second Team. The full list is broken down at the bottom of the page.

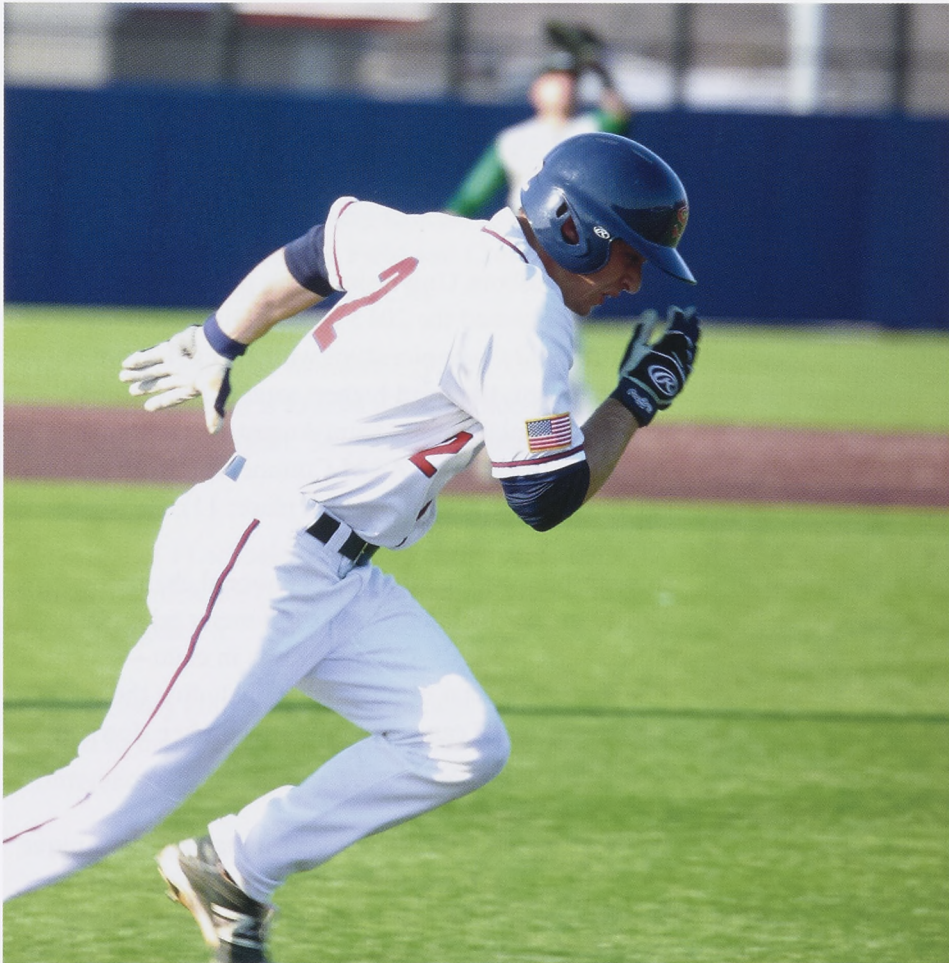

SU broke a school record last year in having four unique men's All-Americans at an outdoor championships; its previous best before that had been three on multiple occasions. This year's total of 10 trophies more than doubles the previous-record haul.

Shippensburg, under the direction of USTFCCCA Atlantic Region Head Coach of the Year Dave Osanitsch, finished 13th in the team standings, just three places shy of its best NCAA outdoor finish in school history (10th in 1984). The Raiders tallied 23 points, the most by a PSAC school at the NCAA Outdoor Championships in 19 years (Edinboro scored 23.5 points and finished 10th in 1996.)

Mens Baseball

SU men's baseball ended the season 25 -25 but celebrated numerous players who achieved All-PSAC honors.

Sophomore catcher Jake Kennedy garnered 2015 All-PSAC Eastern Division First Team accolades to highlight a group of six Raiders that were voted to the all-conference squad by the league's coaches.

Womens Softball

Shippensburg University's women's softball team ended the season with a 17-18 record but celebrated superlative athletes.

The Shippensburg University softball team had three of its players selected to the 2015 All-Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) Eastern Division squads .

Junior Taylor Pattillo was voted the All-PSAC East First Team player at second base for the second straight year. Senior Tyler Thompson was voted to the All-PSAC East First Team outfield, and senior Maddie Justice was recognized for her play at first base with an All-PSAC East Second Team honor.

Pattillo, Thompson, Justice and senior Taylor Weisman were the four Raiders to start all 35 games this season.

In addition to that the girls work hard and cheer harder, recently they have been reaching out to local high schools teaching them some routines and cheering alongside of them for one game out of the year.
