Extracurricular activities, Greek life, and internships can serve as a springboard to add depth to a college career. But to lay the foundation for the future, academic learning comes first. And SU supports it.

Dining dances

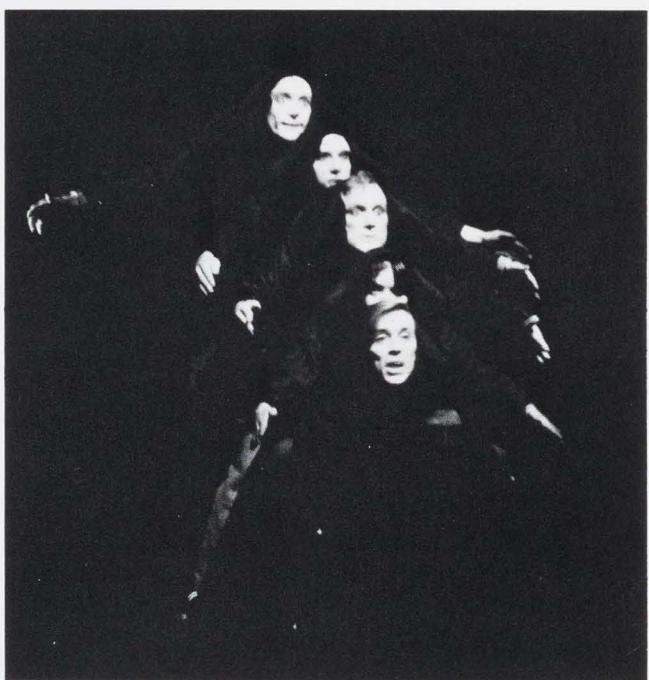

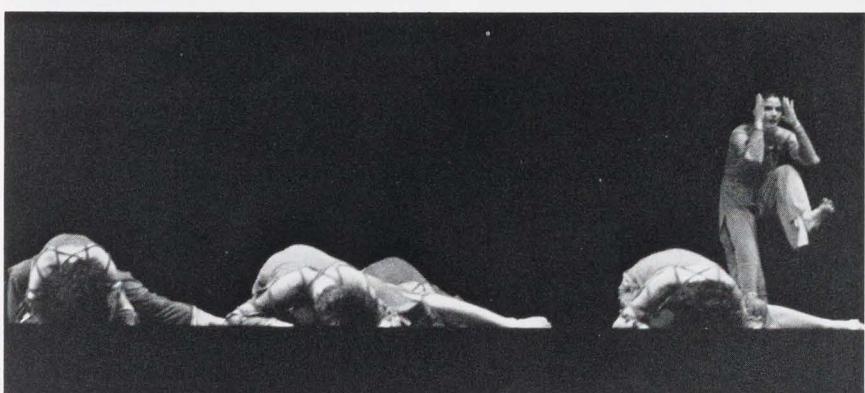

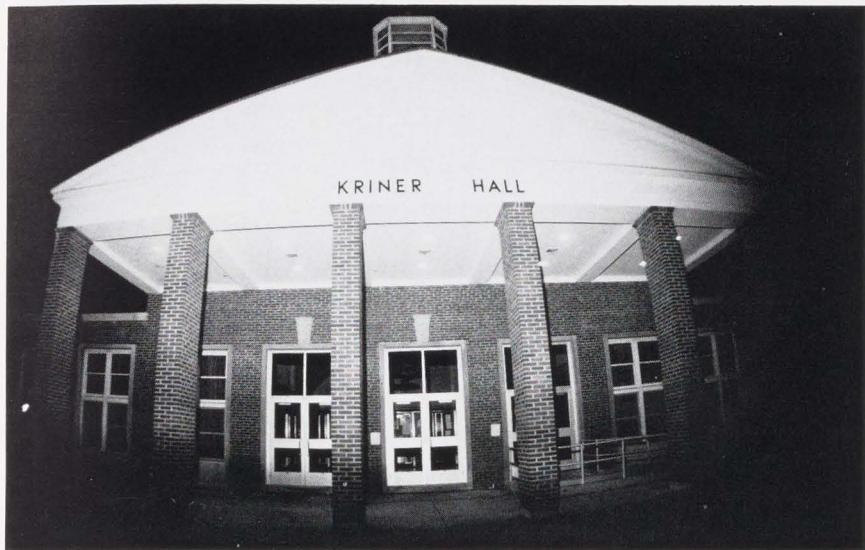

No, dining hall food is not anything like what you get at home and it may not be something you wish to remember in years to come, but at least you don't have to burn it yourself.

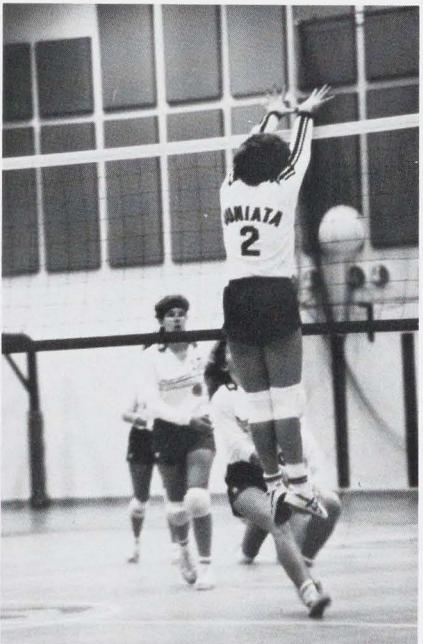

Even if you wish to ignore the dining hall food altogether, at least you can partake in the social functions of eating alongside fellow students. You never know who you might meet while picking through the lettuce or attempting to land the ice milk from the machine onto the cone. Besides that, a leisurely meal in the dining hall is always a good time to catch up on the latest gossip or perhaps share horror stories from the previous night.

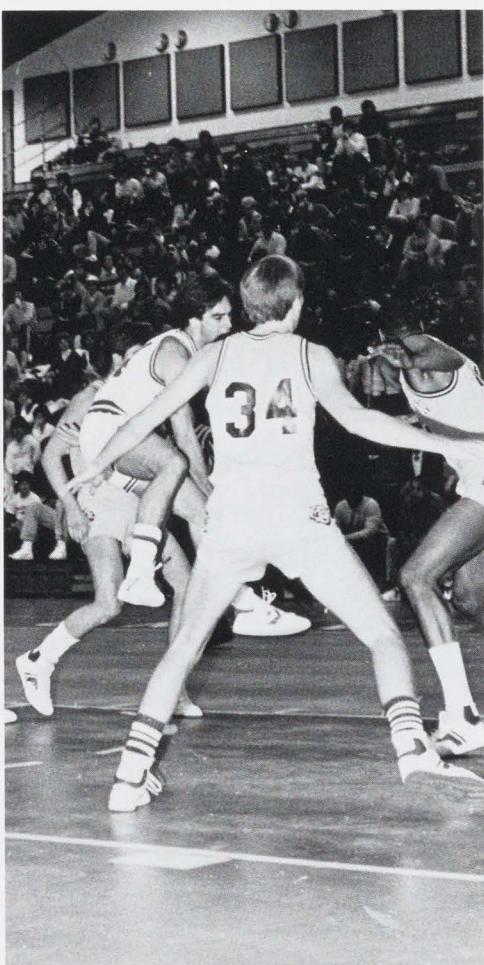

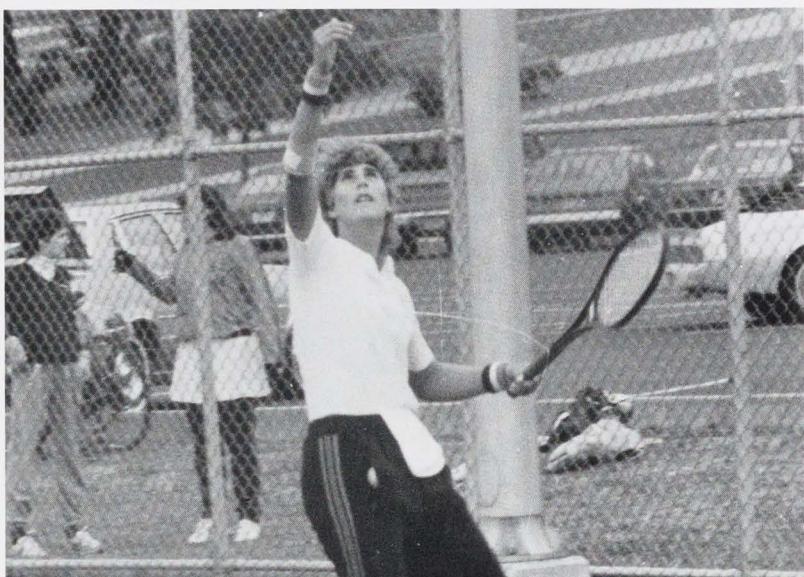

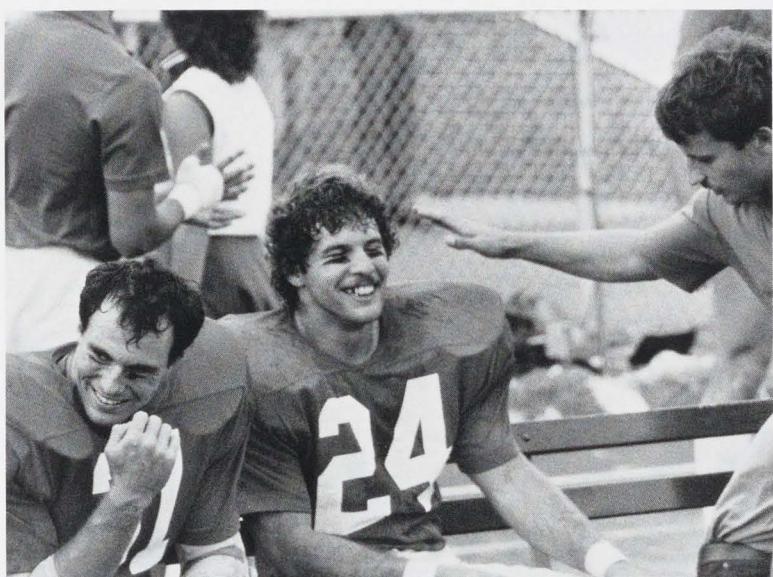

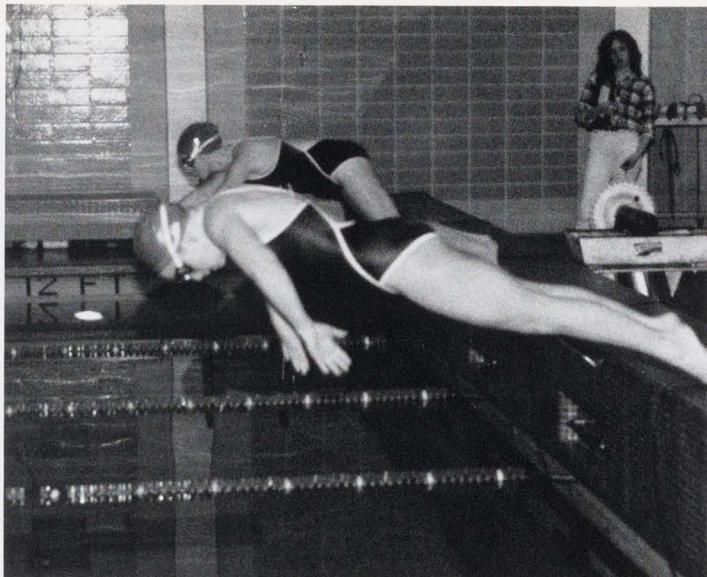

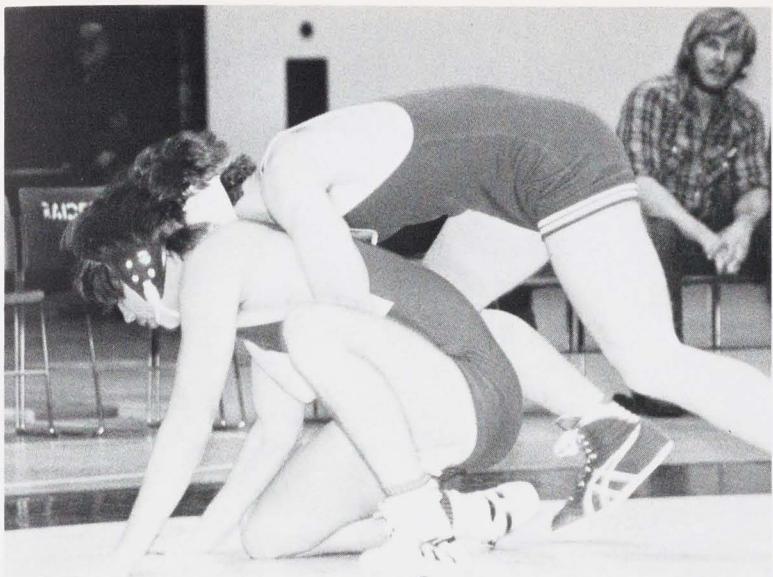

Dancing the night away may not be everyone's idea of a good time, but for many people the party would not be complete without music and dancing. A Wednesday or Friday night trip to the Lodge, Plums and the Tortuga Lounge will cure the urge to jam and there are always the regulars who can not get enough. You might not be a rival to Michael Jackson, but it doesn't require any special skill to enjoy oneself on the dance floor. All that is needed are some good tunes, good friends and the ability to let your inhibitions go.

Office of the President

(717) 532-1301

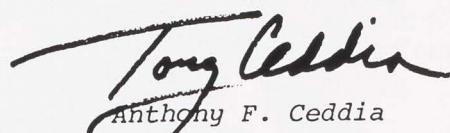

CONGRATULATIONS! The Class of 1984 is the first class to graduate from Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania. While your graduation from Shippensburg represents a milestone for you — the end of four years of study, it also represents the beginning of a new era for your alma mater.

From its beginning in 1871, Shippensburg has grown from a normal school to a teachers college to a liberal arts college and finally to a regional university. Significantly, throughout these years there has been a continuing commitment to quality education evident on "the Hill." In keeping with that aim, Shippensburg University's theme for the 1980's is "a commitment to excellence," which I hope you will adapt to your life as you pursue new interests in new places.

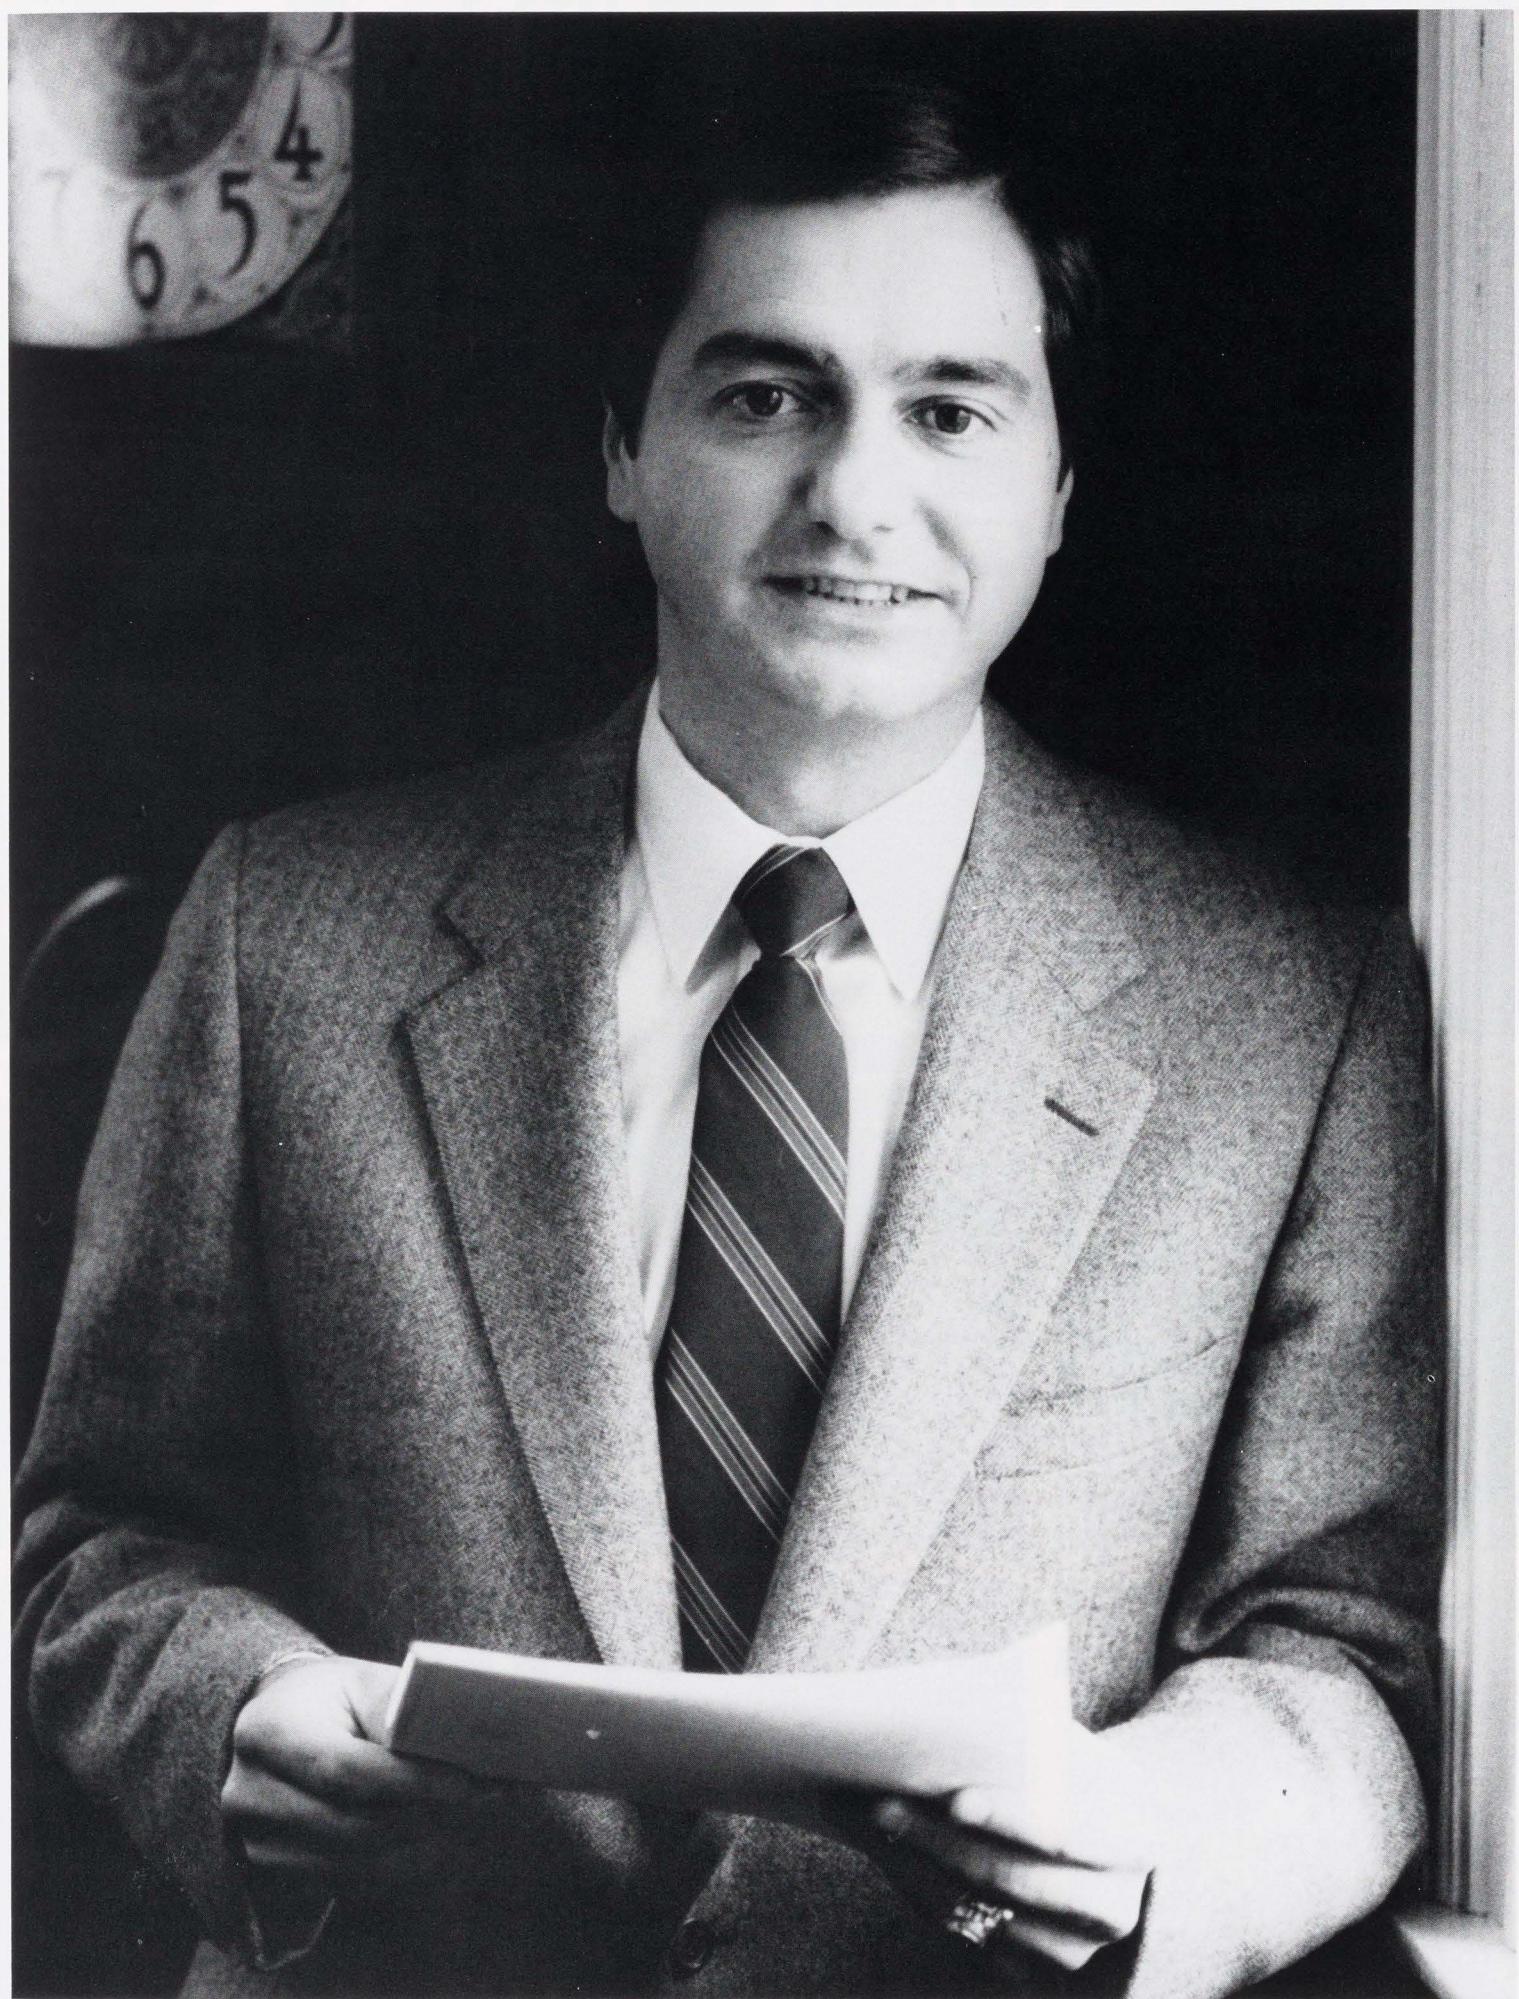

As you reflect upon your years at Shippensburg, I hope that most of your memories will be fond ones with lasting impressions of a University dedicated to quality. You are fortunate to have attended a University that has maintained high standards and has enjoyed the dedication of competent faculty members who care about students; a University that has not compromised its primary mission of quality teaching and has provided you with an academic program upon which you can build an exciting future.

On behalf of all of us associated with the Shippensburg University Community, I share with you your pride in receiving your new degree and on becoming an alumnus. As we wish you Godspeed and offer our best wishes, we look forward to continuing to share in your successes as a member of the first class to graduate from Shippensburg University.

Sincerely,

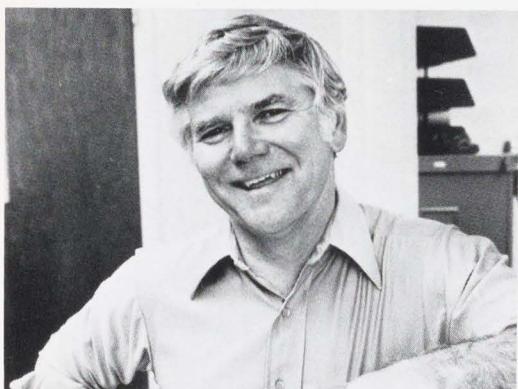

Anthony F. Ceddia
President

Greeks

What makes a Greek Greek? Being Greek means different things to different people. To some, it means unity, everlasting memories, and the opportunity to share lifelong friendships. To others, it means parties in the basement, exchanges in the mountains, and socializing in the CUB. Whatever the reason, being Greek carries with it a certain aura that can only be experienced by "going the distance". From that very first rush Greeks develop that special bond that grows deeper with each passing year. Being Greek means playing hard and working hard. It means playing on the intramural volleyball team and working long hours preparing for the spring formal. It means playing your theme song at every rush and working together for a common cause. It means taking pride in every task undertaken and having fun doing it. Being Greek means not only being part of a unique brotherhood or sisterhood but also a part of "one big happy family." Greek interaction is just one way in which ideas can be exchanged and new friendships can be experienced. And so we ask of those who know . . .

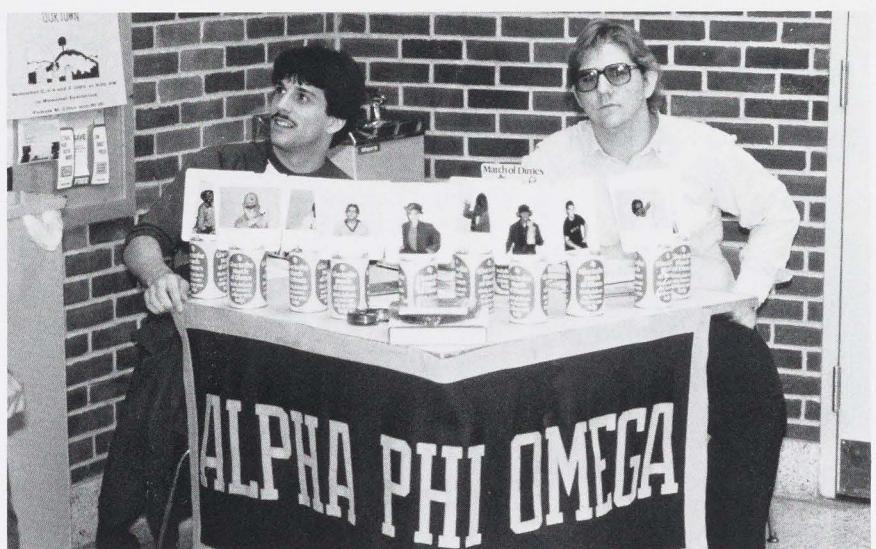

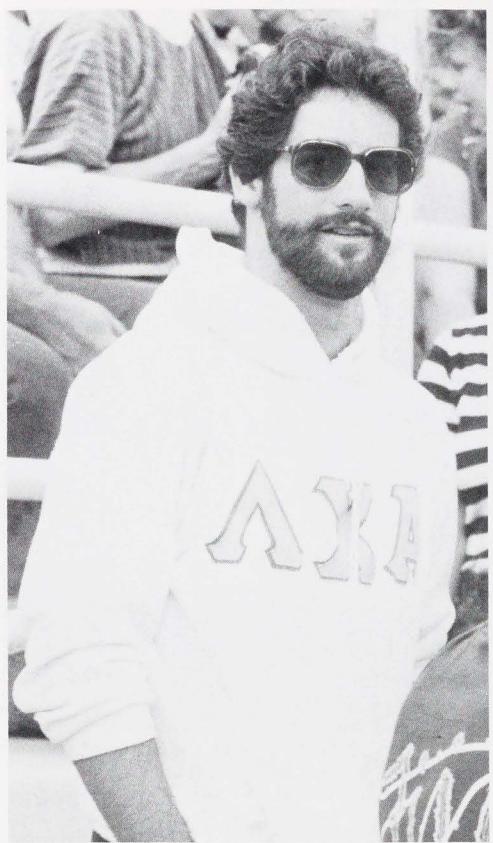

What Does Being Greek Mean To You?

"Untainted spirits on a noble quest,
with nimble hearts they initially seek.
Their joys and sorrows shared with all the rest,
sisters and brothers just friends we call Greek."

- Wm. Edwards (SDX)

Greek Week 1984

The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat . . . Greek week began with Olympic day, where activities such as the egg relay, pie relay, and the most difficult event of them all, the keg kick, tested the speed and endurance of all. The Greeks then went 'Roman' with chariot relay races, where Greeks not only rode those chariots but they also pulled them! Working so hard causes those frat brothers to get a hearty appetite, so to alleviate those hunger pains there was a hotdog eating contest. The strong and mighty fought it out in the tug-of-war contest. The last day of Greek Week was highlighted by a pyramid building contest, an obstacle course competition, and a greased watermelon contest in the Heiges pool. The week was also highlighted by an All-Greek party where everyone got a chance to relax and intermingle with the other competitors. Through it all, Greeks displayed unity, a competitive spirit, and a good sense of humor!

Homecoming

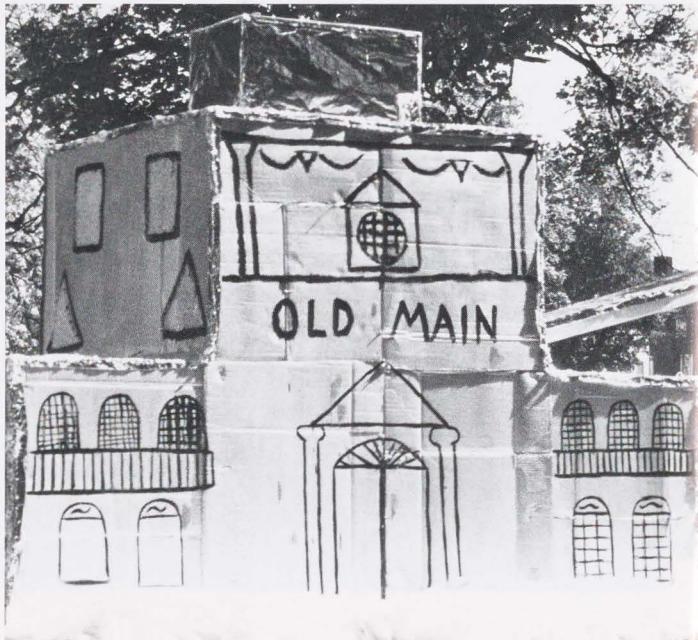

The campus came alive with the dawning of the 1983 Homecoming week. Shippensburg's progression from Cumberland Valley Normal School to University was depicted in the theme "You've come a Long Way, Ship." The week's many events ranged from a movie star look-alike contest to the annual bonfire/peprally followed by the firework display. Homecoming ended with the traditional football game and "Call an Alumni Friend."

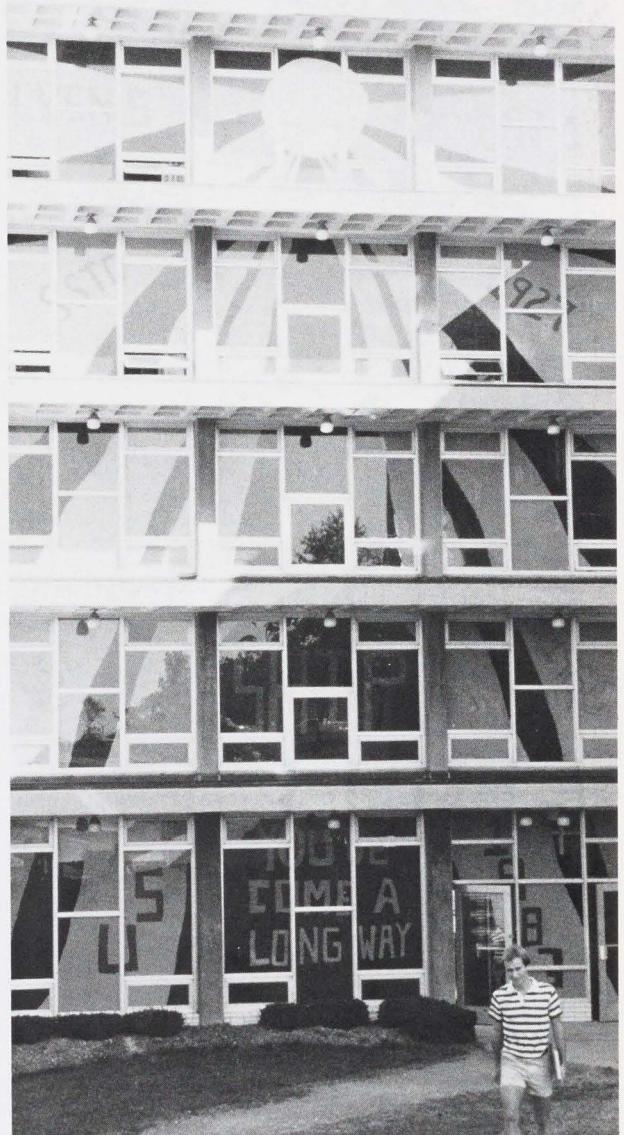

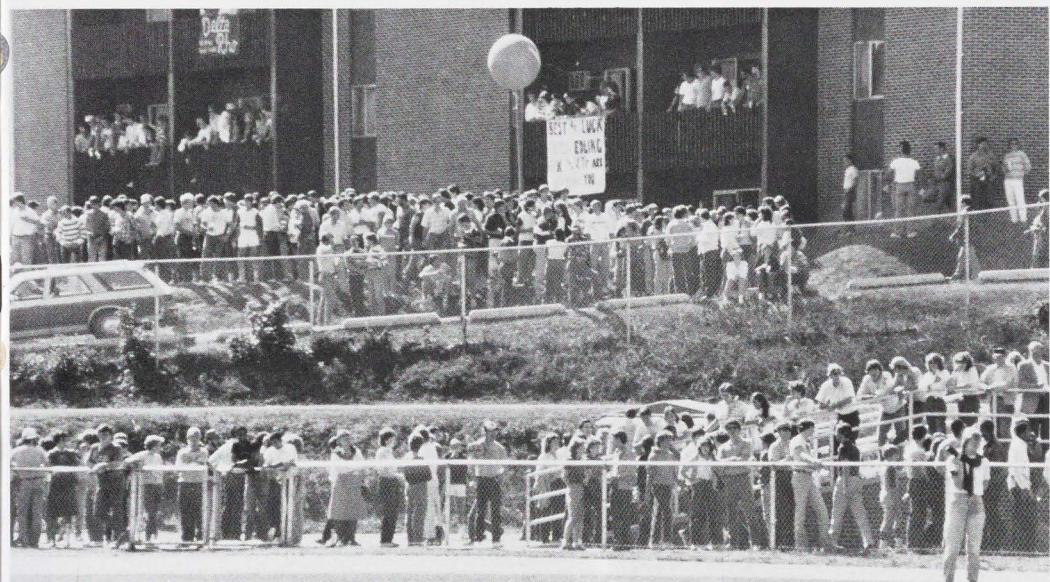

McLean hall won first place in the residence hall competition while Wright hall captured second place and McCune hall third. Wright hall took first place in the bonfire cheering contest.

The annual parade before the football game was kicked off by the SU Marching Band. Delta Zeta sorority and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity won first place in the float division. The vehicles' competition was taken by the Class of 1984. The Masquers received first place in the walking unit division.

Cindy Edling was crowned the 1983 Homecoming queen. First-runner up went to La'Tanya Burton. Other members of the court were Lori Loughlin, Renee Nelson and Patty Keeney.

The Homecoming celebration concluded with a Shippensburg 17-15 win over Lock Haven University.

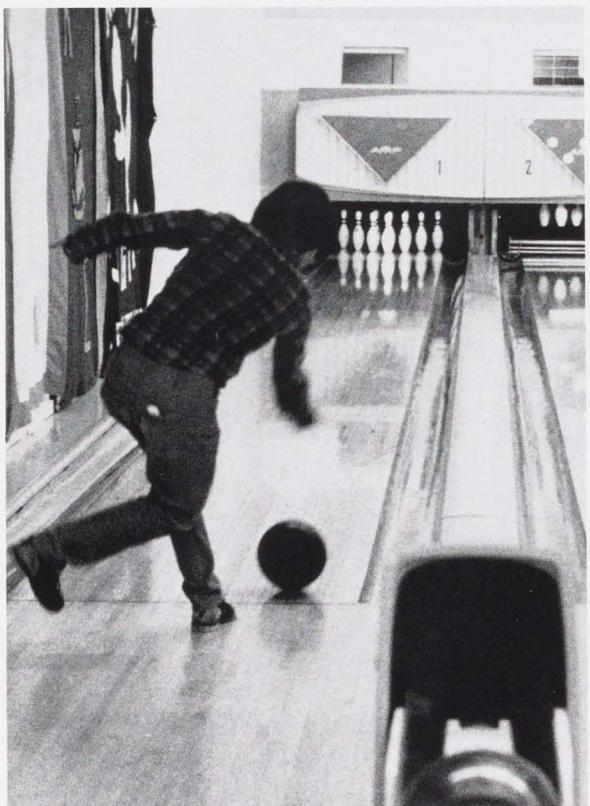

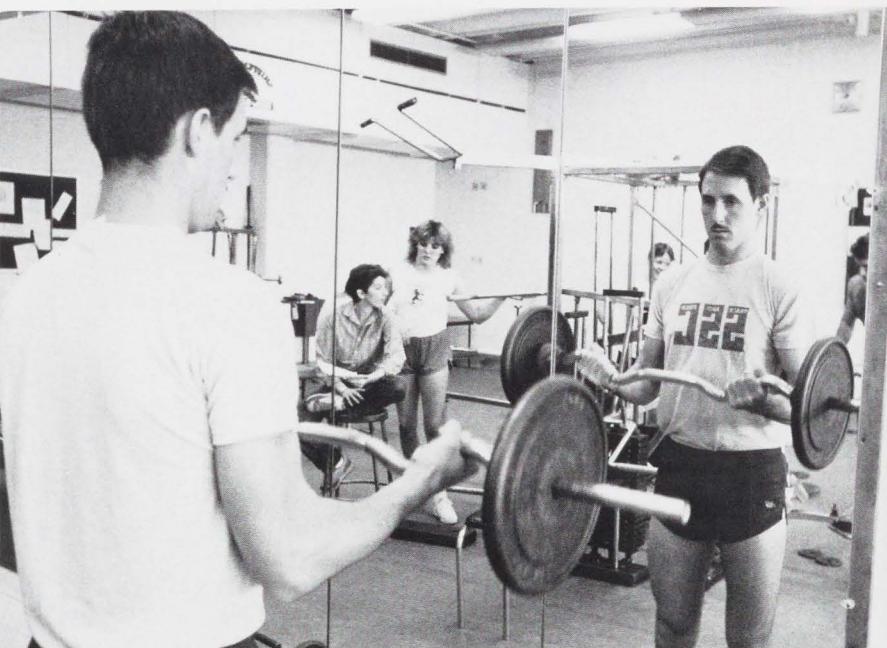

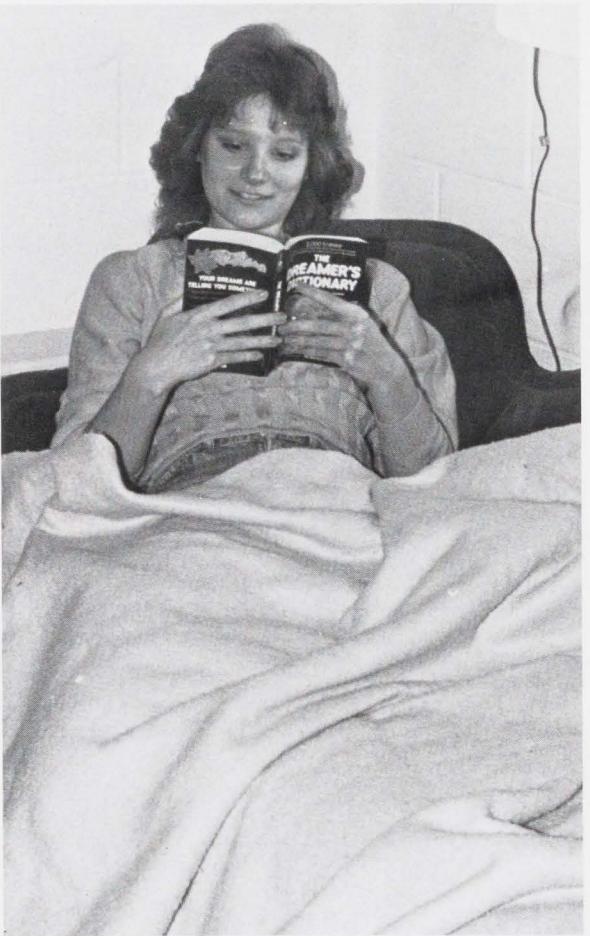

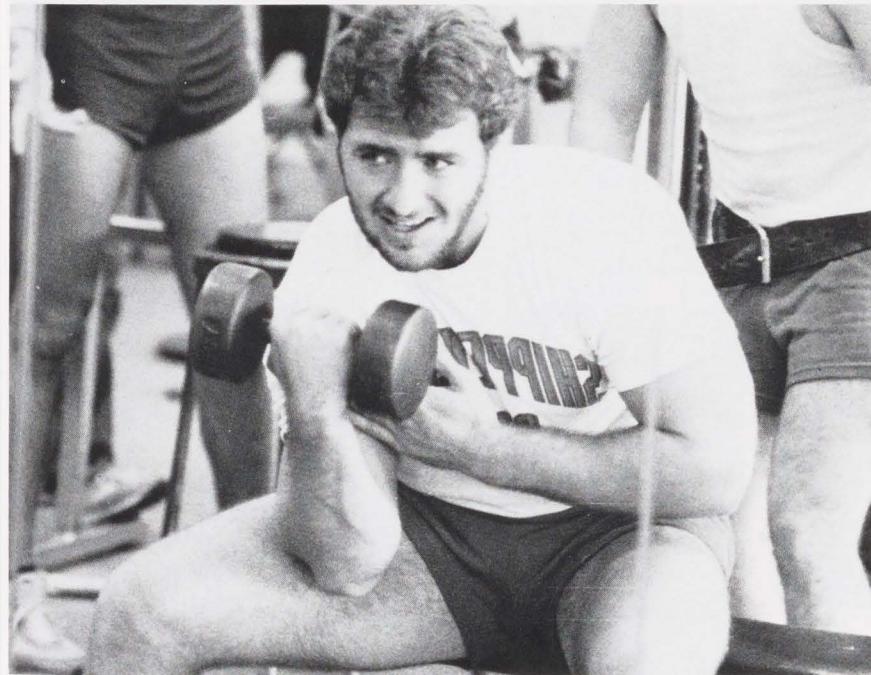

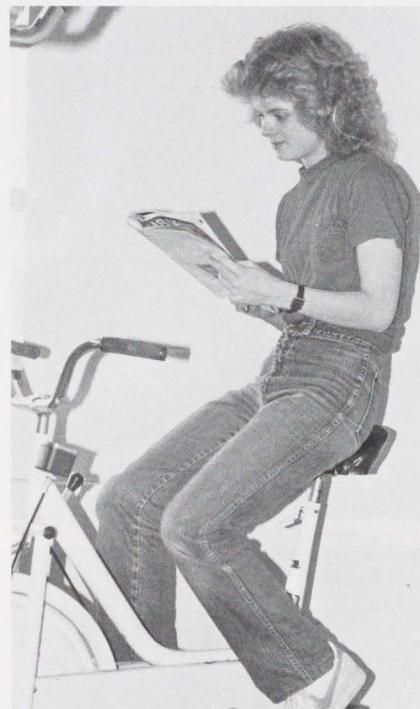

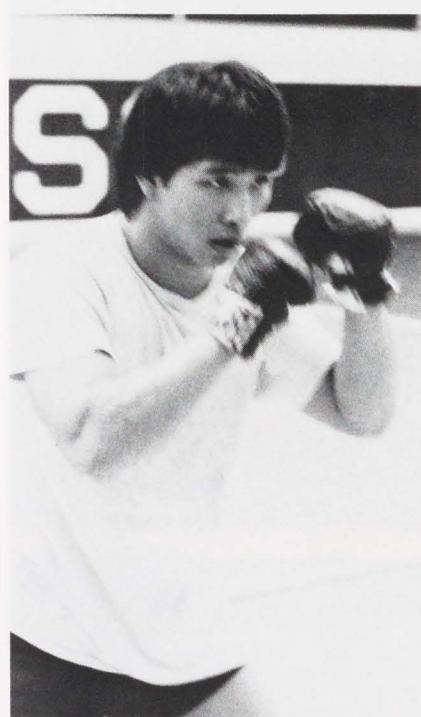

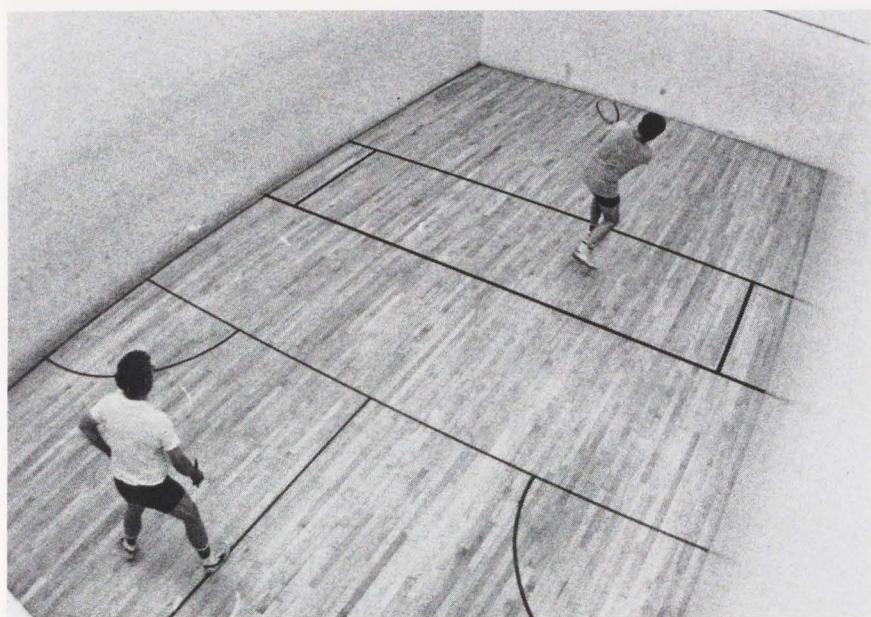

I nterests

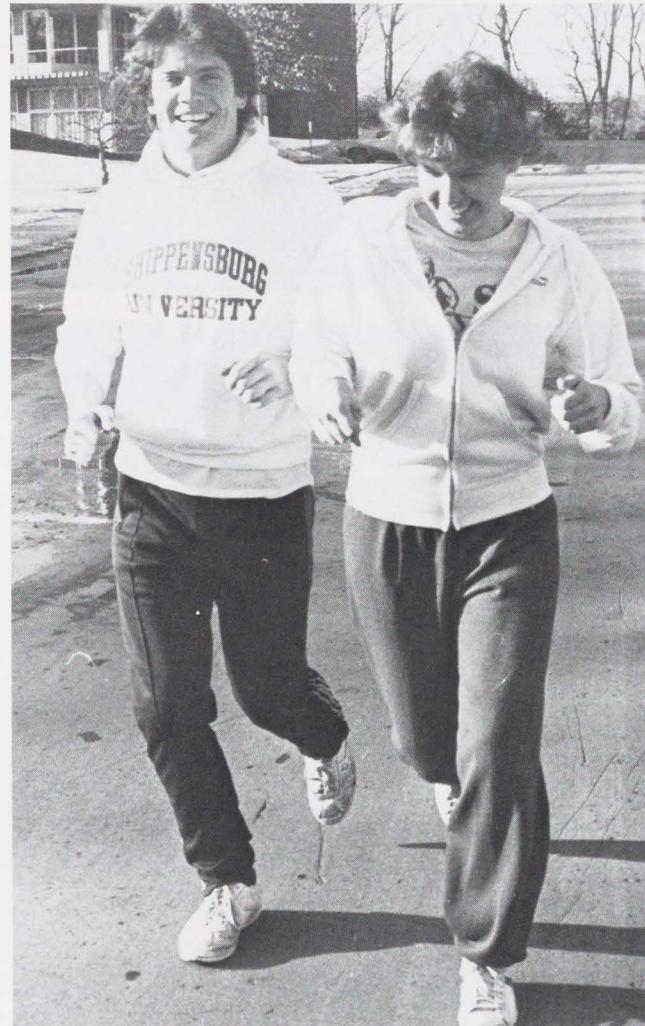

The 80's introduced to the world an age of physical fitness, and the students at Shippensburg did their part in setting the trend. The female population could be found in the field house or in the halls and lounges moving to the aerobic chants of Jane Fonda or Richard Simmons.

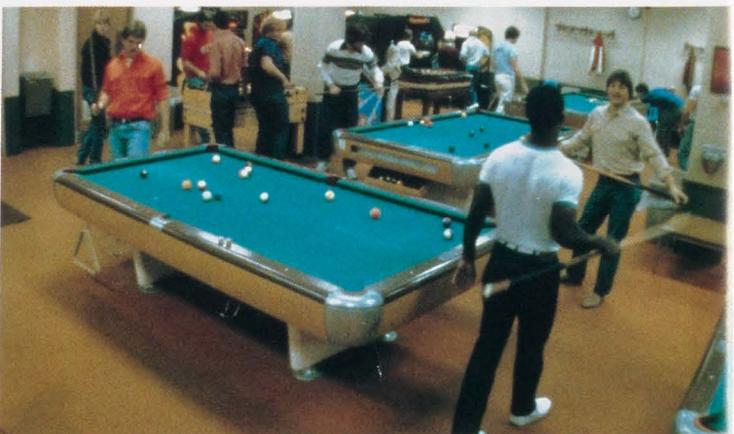

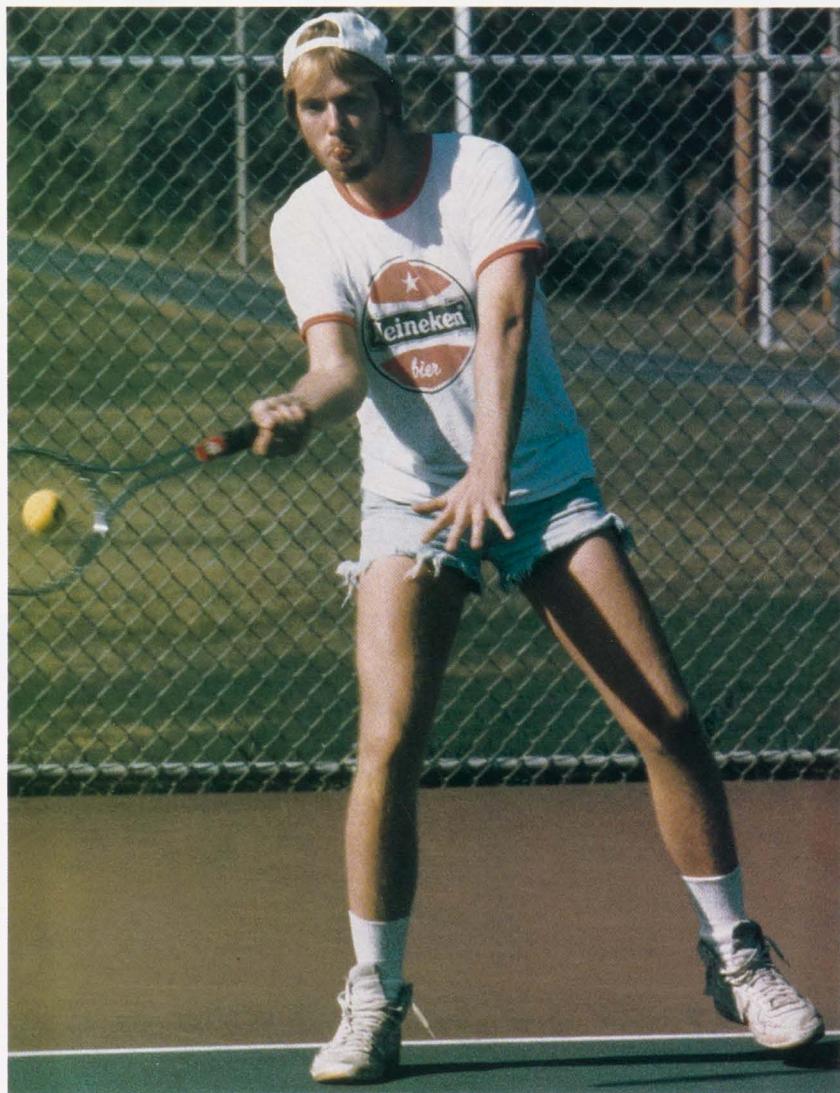

Males, on the other hand, moved to the sounds of grunts and heavy breathing as they pumped the magic iron in the campus weight rooms with the intent to create their own "Body Beautiful."

When the warm weather rolls around, the campus steps up to the pace with joggers of all shapes and sizes, while the more attractive shapes and sizes can be observed sunbathing on the plots of grass that survived the winter months.

The CUB, also a place of interest, is a popular meeting spot for students of the Greek persuasion, and an occasional professor. If pool isn't your game you could spend a few quarters fighting Clingons, jousting or releasing your aggressions with a quick game of fooseball. Of course if all else fails you could check out the daily special in the CUB Raider room and chow down for the afternoon.

Interests wouldn't be complete without mentioning the many clubs and organizations to join if you're not into the fitness kick.

Jobs

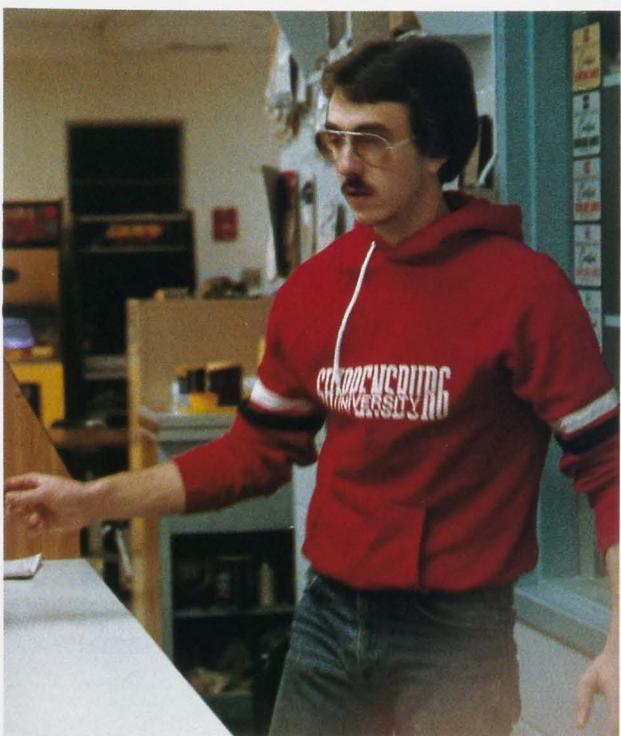

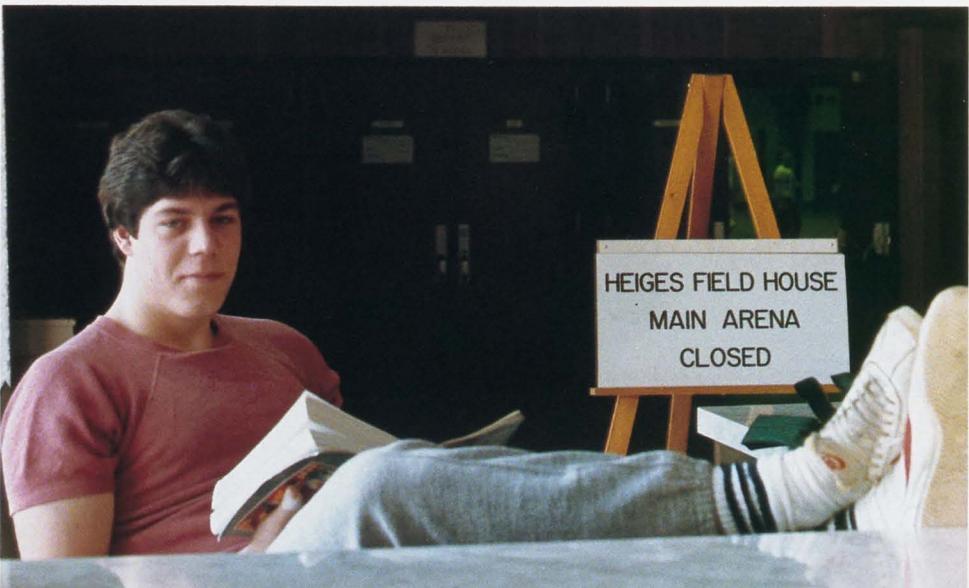

It's not exactly your basic, up in the morning, 9 to 5, coffee break and yearly raise type of lucrative employment. On and off campus jobs are more along the lines of part time, part break and impartial salaries. The humbled student employee, however intelligent, knows that anything is better than nothing.

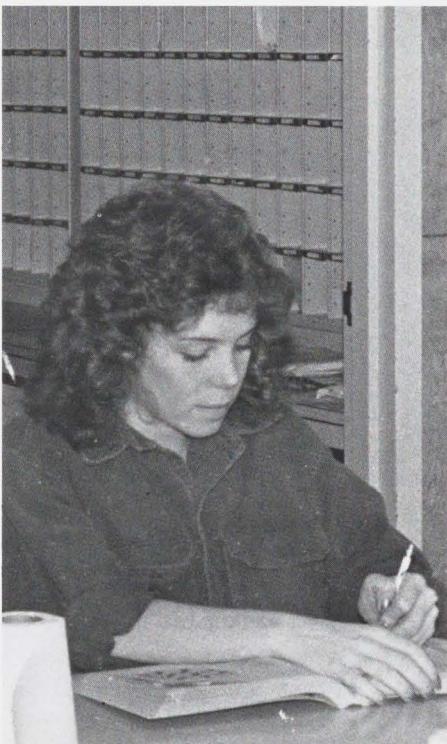

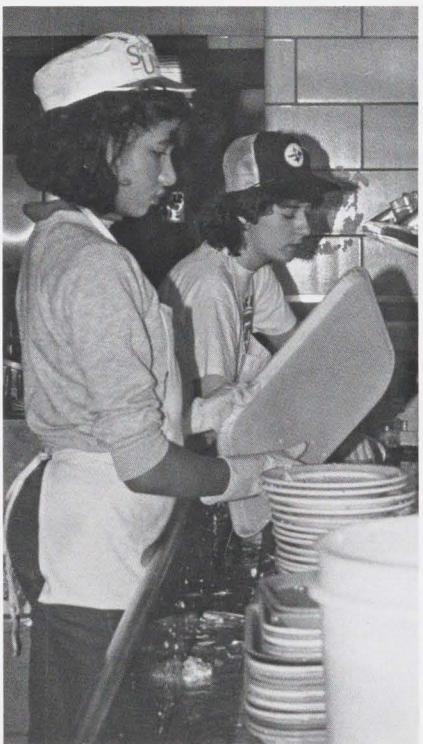

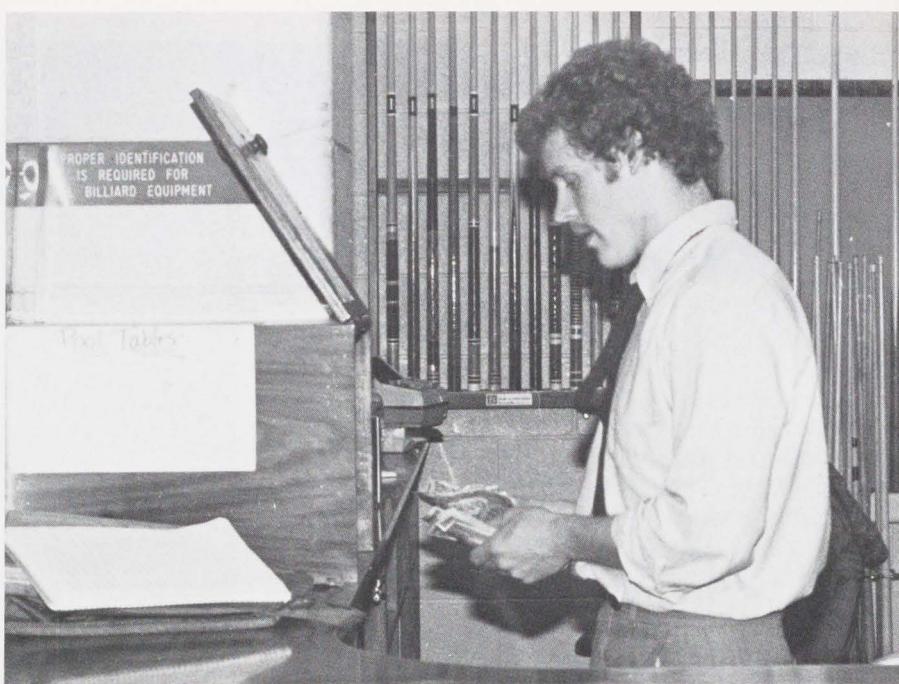

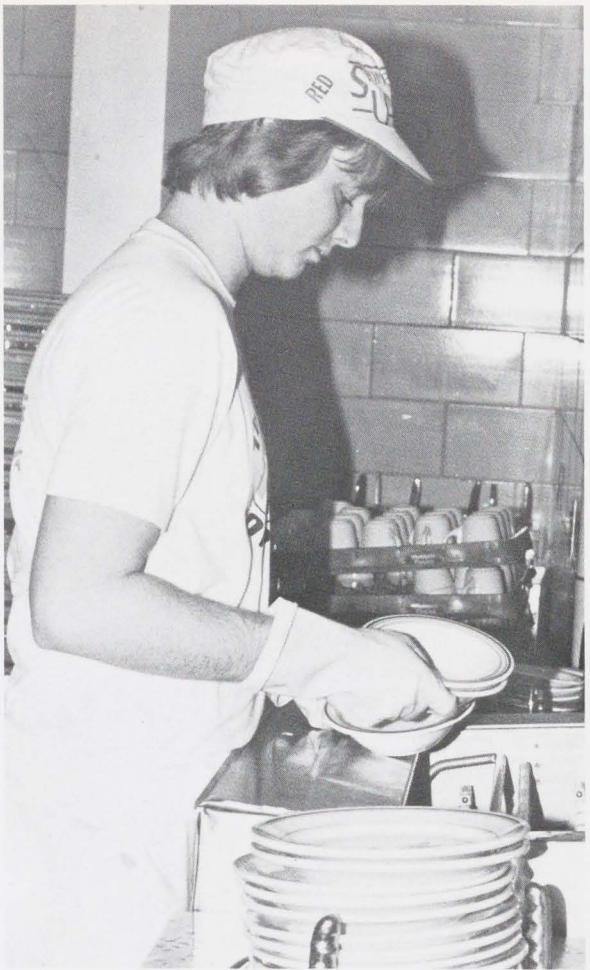

"Where's the beef?" "I don't think anyone is back there." Look again and you will probably find those Freshie Co. people, dedicated to the cause of capital cuisine and culinary cutthroats, either reheating something from previous meals or scraping leftovers off students' trays after they so delicately sculptured their dinner into works of art.

Could anyone possibly imagine what would happen on campus without the leadership of a competent staff of DAs, RAs, and GAs, who by nature are the babysitters of the college world. "Sorry kid I'm just going to have to write you up."

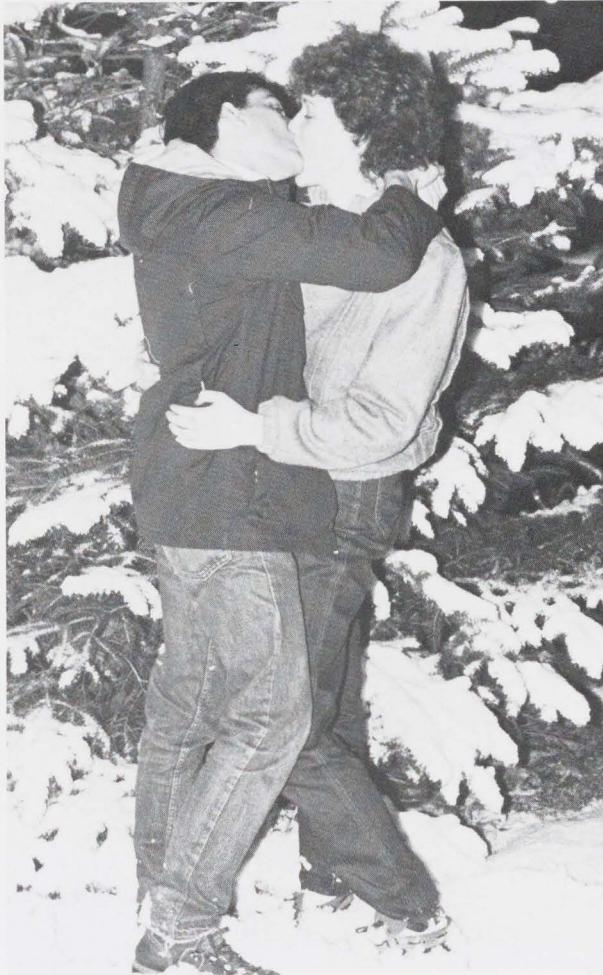

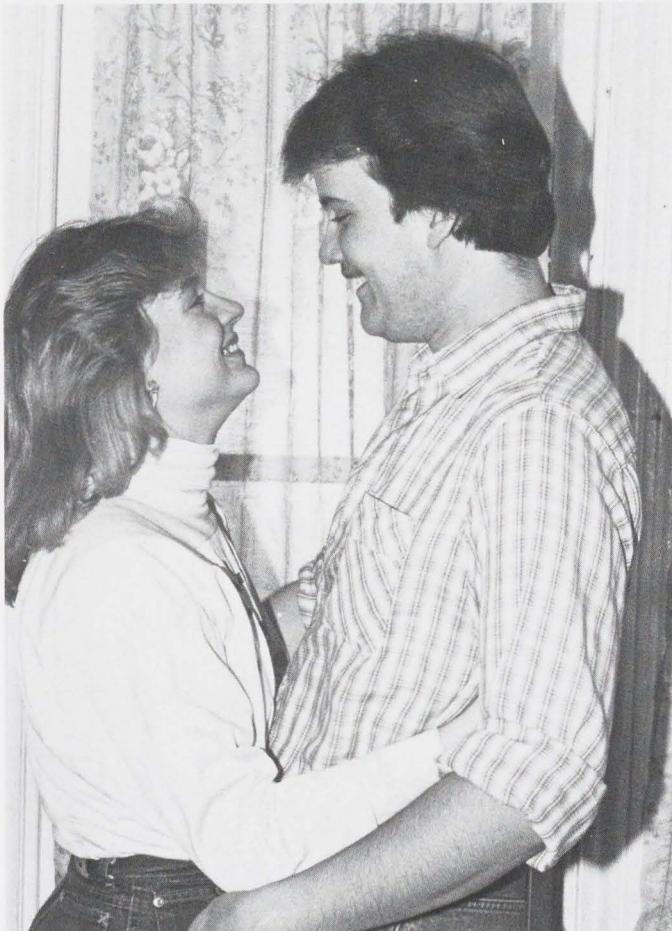

By far the more demanding jobs on campus are those whose primary function is to play watch-dog, study or sleep, in the CUB and the field house recreation rooms. I'm sure we would all like to get to know those secretarial assistants who are trustworthy with a capital "T" and are responsible for typing up a majority of the exams on campus.

Campus jobs, however menial and financially unrewarding, do serve to break up the drudgery of constant studying and allots time for the employee to think about things other than school work.

Kissing Keepsakes

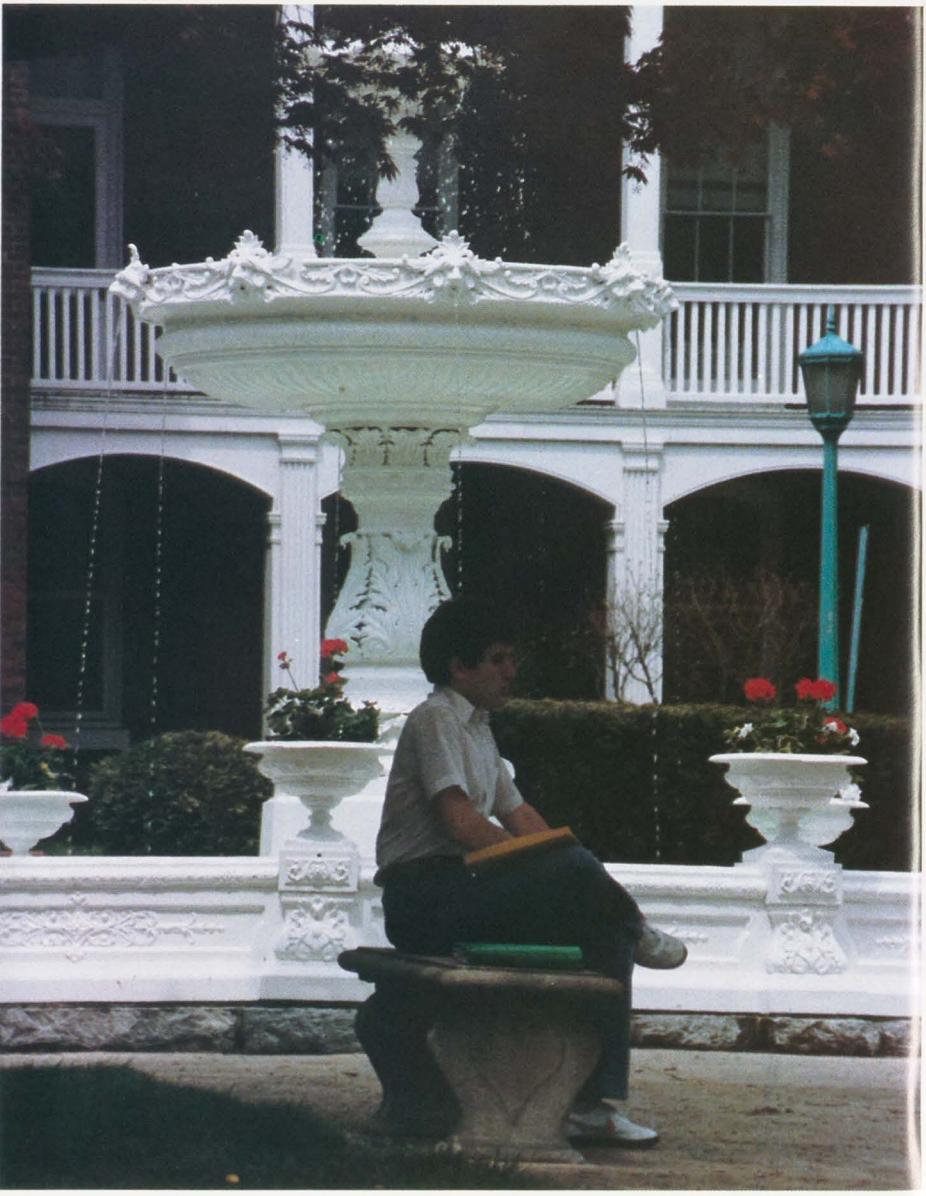

KISSING: The college romance, is it love at first sight or is it just two SHIPs that pass in the night? Whatever it may be, they will be dreams never to be forgotten.

It is the beginnings we all tend to remember, or choose not to . . . when, where and how . . . and later you may even ask yourself why? Were you picked up, blown off, trained, teased, terrified, tantalized and, or all of the above? All guilt feelings aside, did you or did you not have a good time?

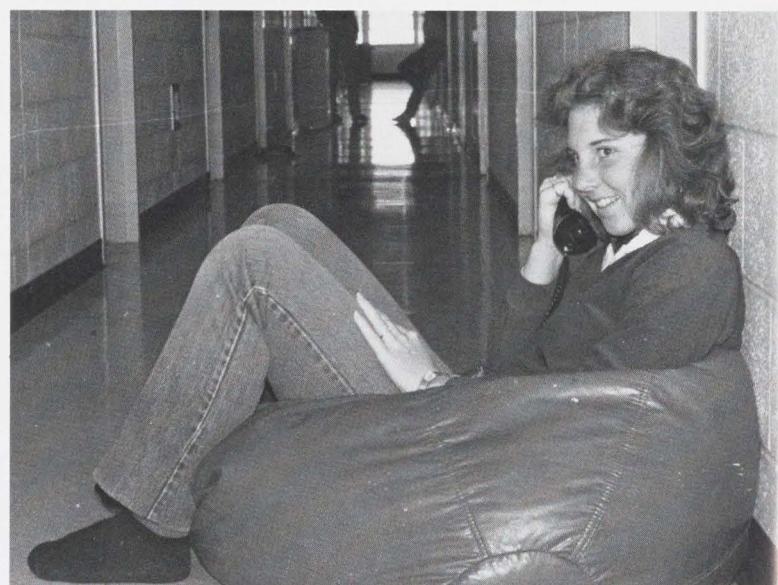

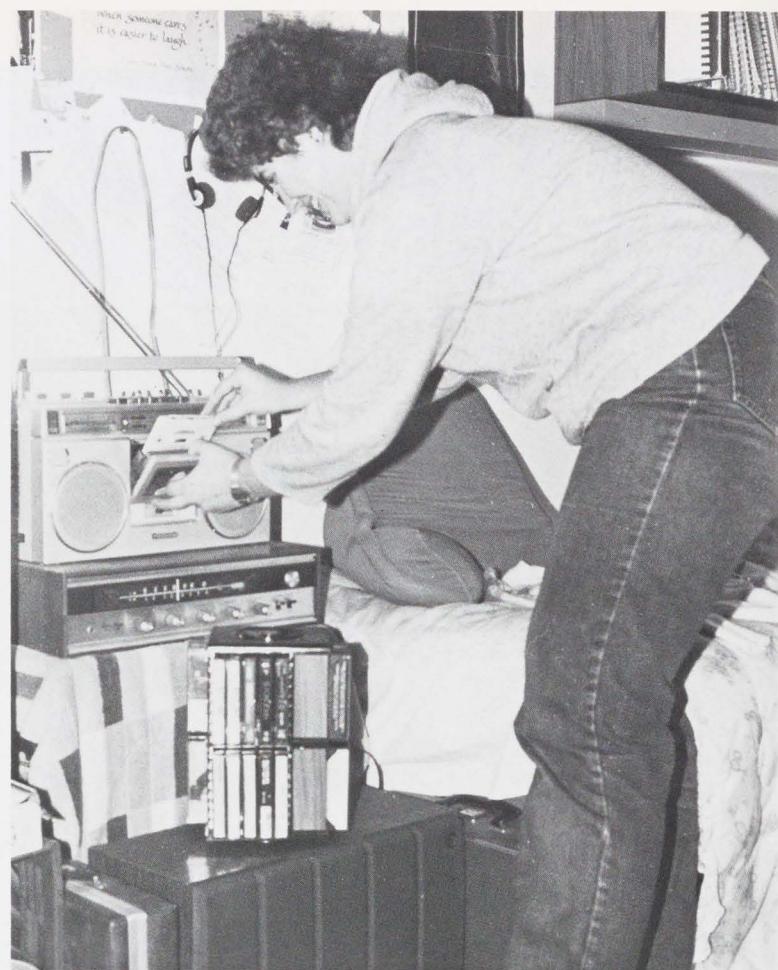

Seriously though there is no better place for one to discover love and more importantly, oneself.

KEEPSAKES: Keepsakes are without a question forever. You may ask why college students find it necessary to hang on to those fleeting moments that pass with four years of college life, never to be lost outside the "Ivory Tower." The college experience is one which can never be experienced again. Students seem to realize the temporality of the situation, and are always conscious of the impending future which will mean a break from the security of college life. This may be the reason why keepsakes are romanticized and cherished by both giver and receiver. It is those precious moments, lavalieres, dozens of roses, engagements, date parties, birthdays, Christmas parties, road trips and who can ever forget Spring break in the Florida sun. It's those faint glimpses, filled with warmth, hope and dreams that will always keep a part of us at Shippensburg University.

Living Laughter

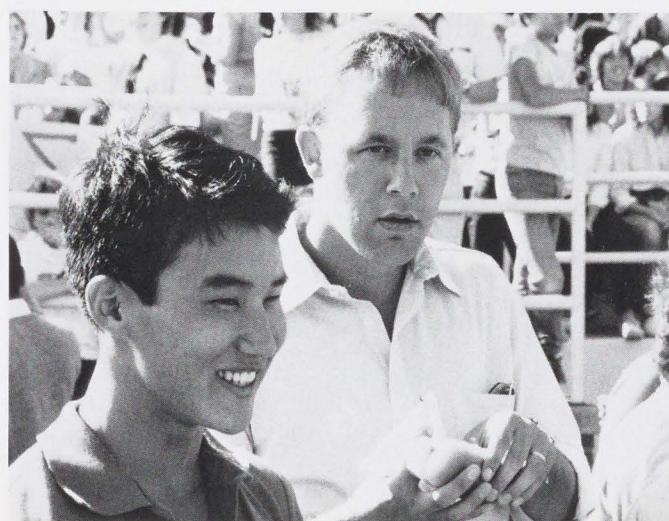

Living on campus is a special time for students. The door is always open, inviting new friends and neighbors in for a chat. Dorm rooms are often jampacked with people watching the saga of Luke and Laura, splitting stromboli, or can even be used as pledge headquarters.

Remember how hearing a phone ringing could send three or four people scurrying down the hall to see if they had a call? Or did you ever wake up at 3 am to the sound of your neighbor's phone?

The noisy evening announcements coupled with the sound of a neighbor's new stero is often enough to force dorm residents into the ironing room or to the library. In warm weather, the men from McCune can be heard across campus, chanting one, two, three, and just imagine what comes next. But a Mowry-McLean tuck-in was always (well . . . usually) a nice way to settle for the night!

Music memorabilia asque

MUSIC: During the 1983-84 year two popular groups rocked SU's Heiges Field House. The B-52's had a disappointingly small audience dancing to the tunes of new wave punk selections on November 6. Later in the month the sounds of Robert Hazard's "Escalator of Life" filled the air of Heiges Field House compliments of Theta Chi Fraternity.

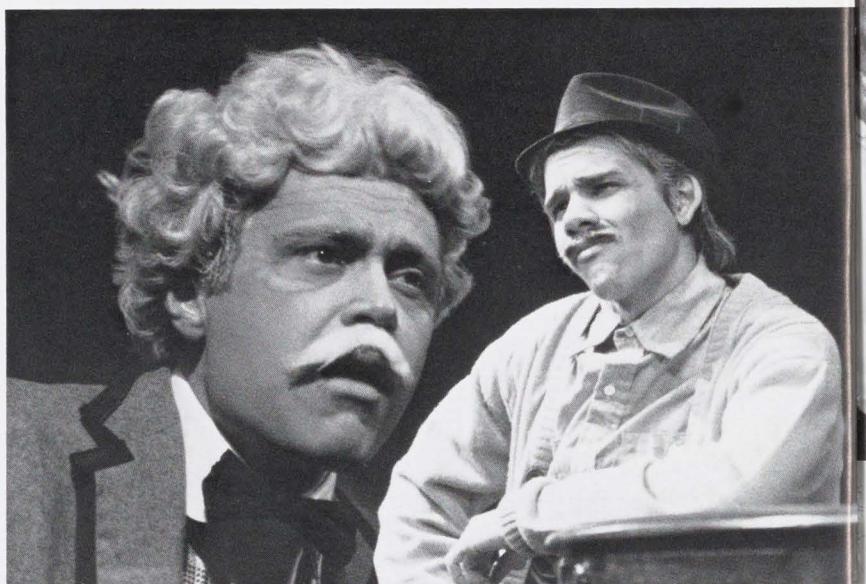

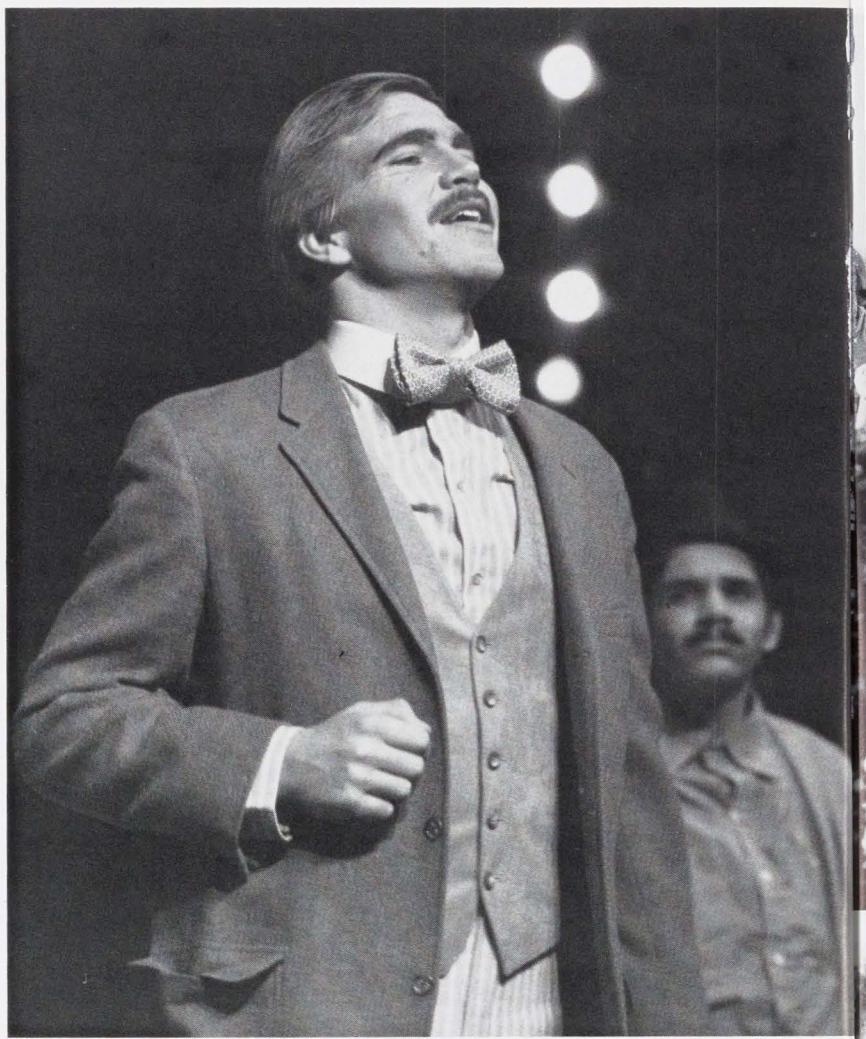

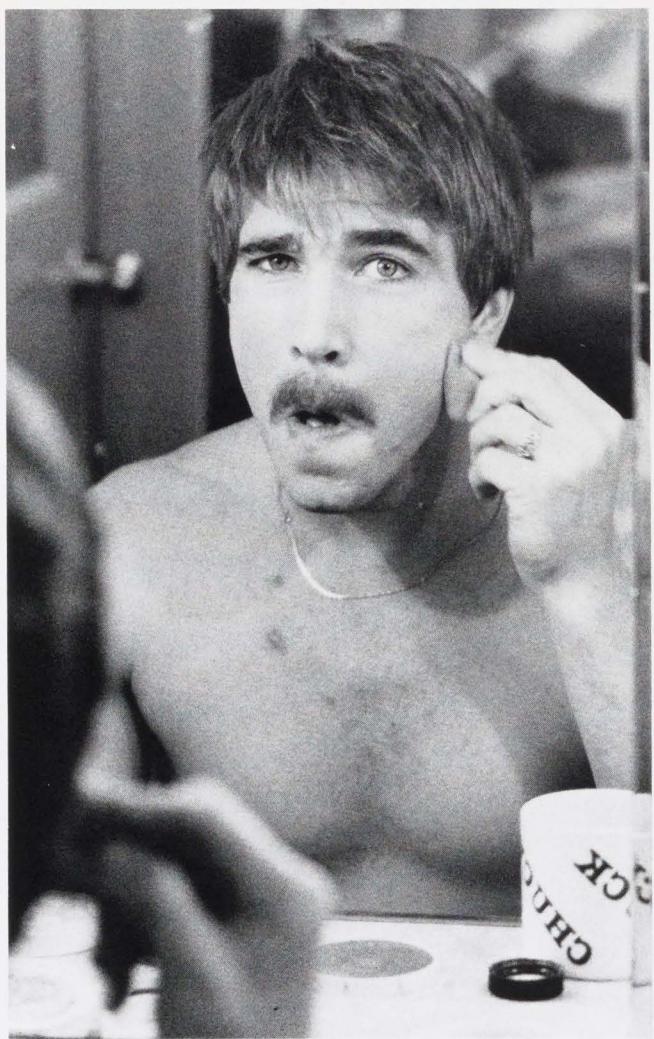

MASQUERS: The success of SU's Masquers/Music theatre continued to unfold on the stage of Memorial Auditorium during the 1983-84 year. The large audiences were once again absorbed in the diverse choice of productions sparked by talent, creativity, and dedication.

The production of Thornton Wilder's Our Town was given in the beginning of November followed by The American Dream and Two White Chicks Sitting Around Talking in February. The Masquers presented the musical The Bells are Ringing in March.

MEMORABILIA: The college experience with its triumphs and failures, dreams and frustrations, security and anticipation represents to us a time of continuous adjustment. The lasting friendships, parties, activities, and accomplishments share in the molding of an individual and later resolve to be a memory of a time never felt again.

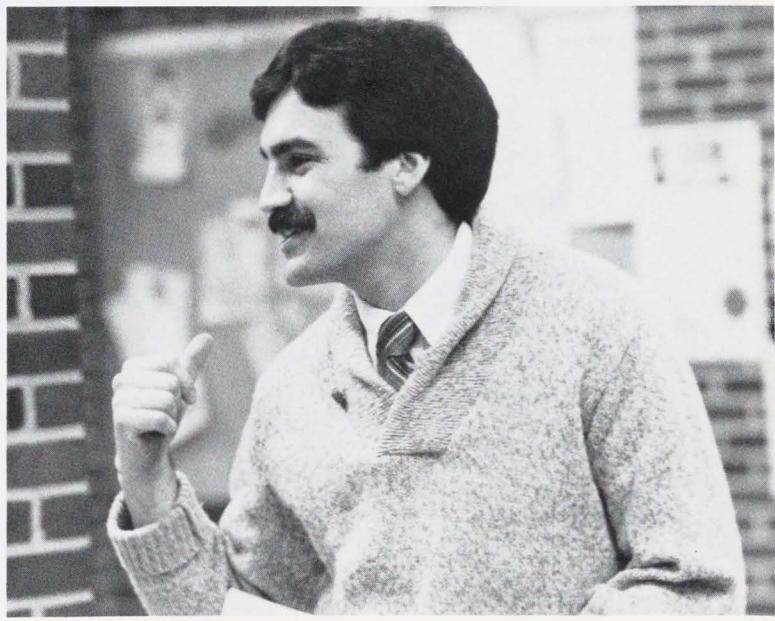

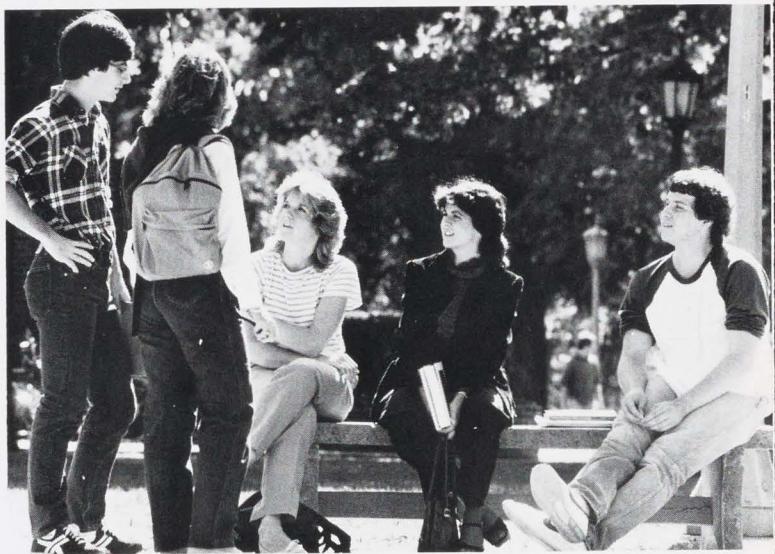

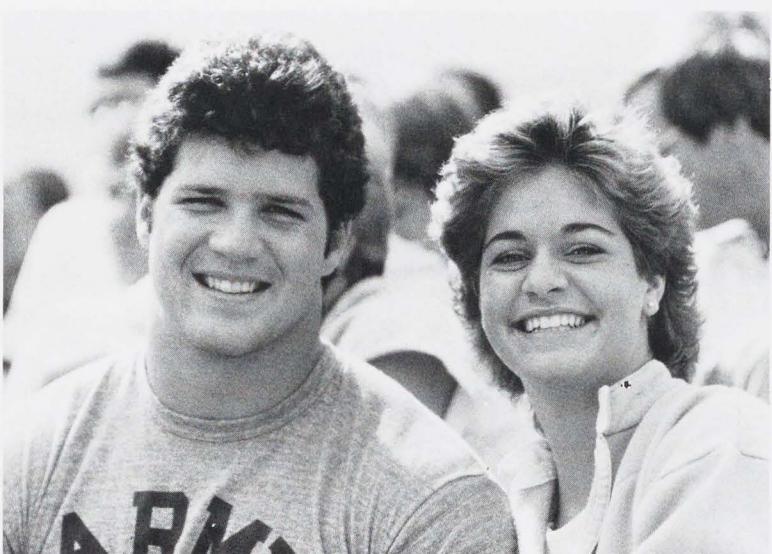

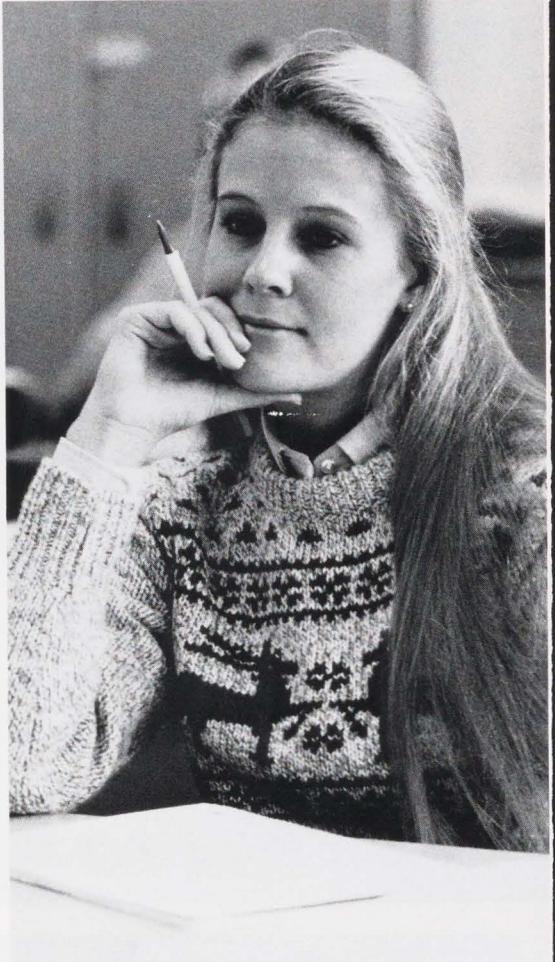

The time will come when you will find yourself digging through boxes of college memorabilia attempting to relive "the best years of your life." Maybe the S.U. sweatshirt reminds you of the football games spent screaming for a Raider victory, followed by an after-game party. Greek letters, back-signs and name tags signal many sleepless nights spent getting signatures; that final day when you "got in." How about the pictures of you and your roommates crowded around the miniature Christmas tree set up in your apartment. Whether it's the "Ship is it" bumper sticker, S.U. beer mug, or collection of S.U. T-shirts you managed to accumulate over your college years, it is certain that they will stir in all many unforgettable memories of the past.

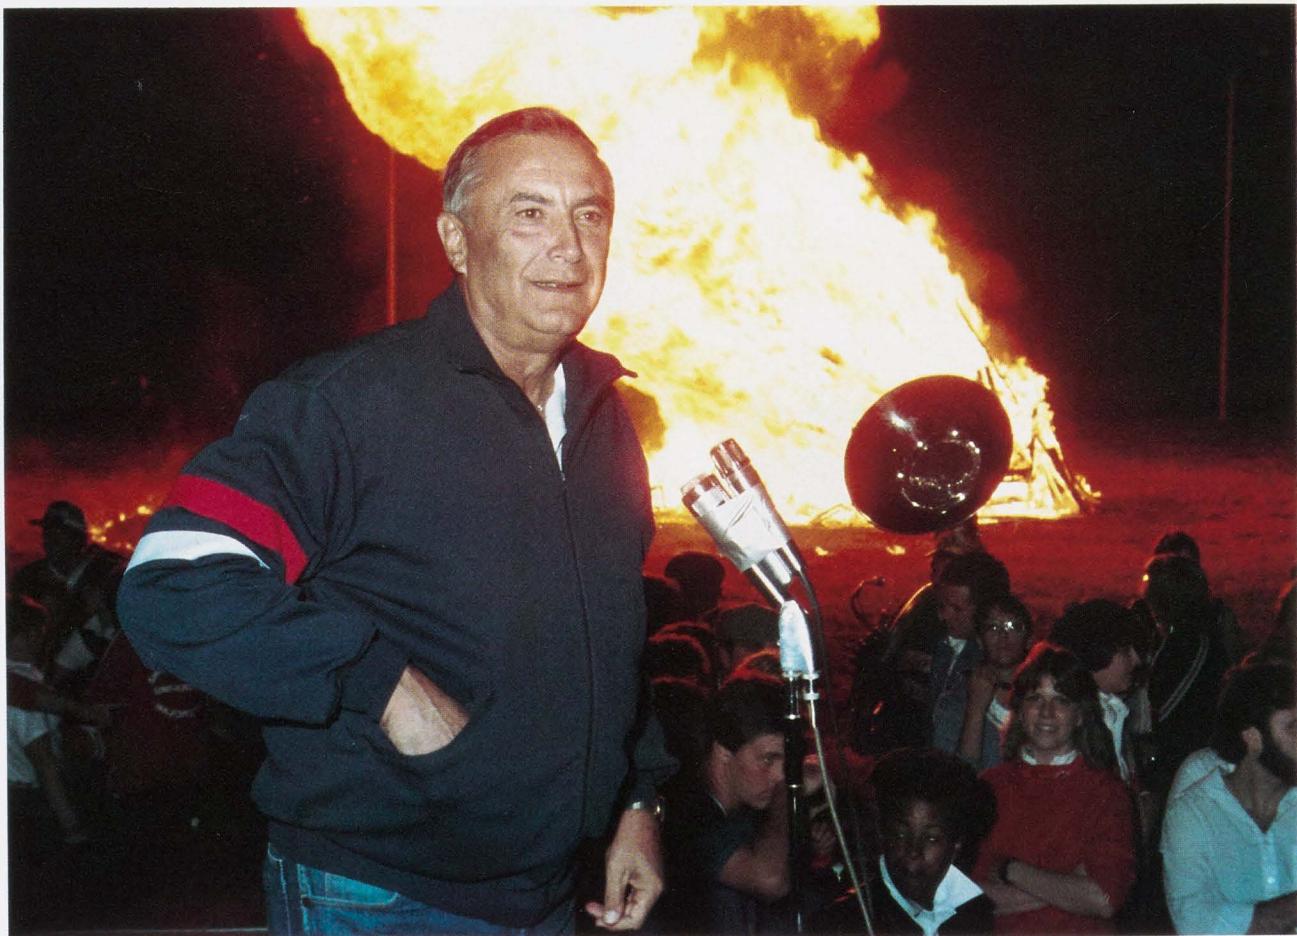

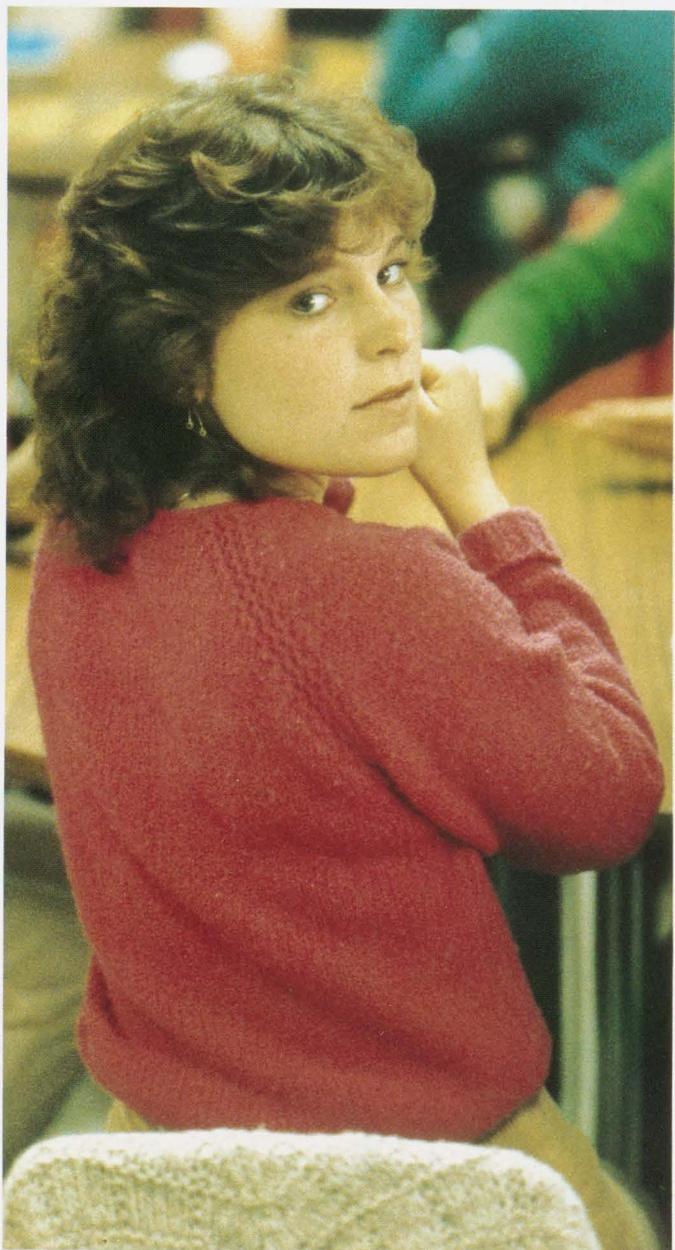

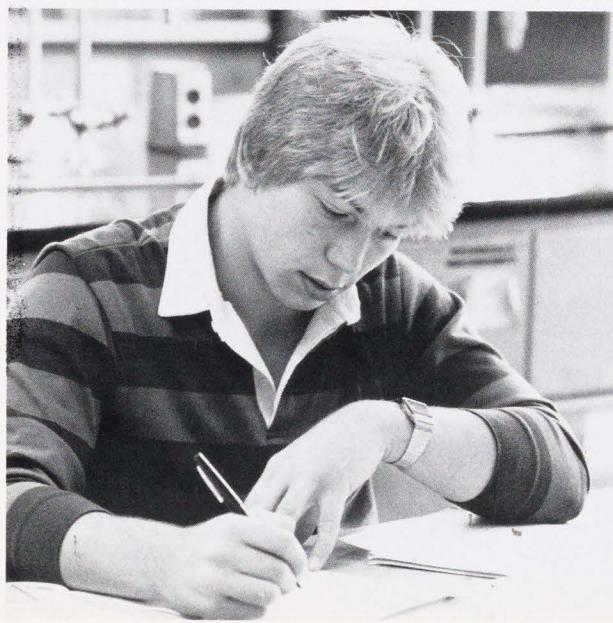

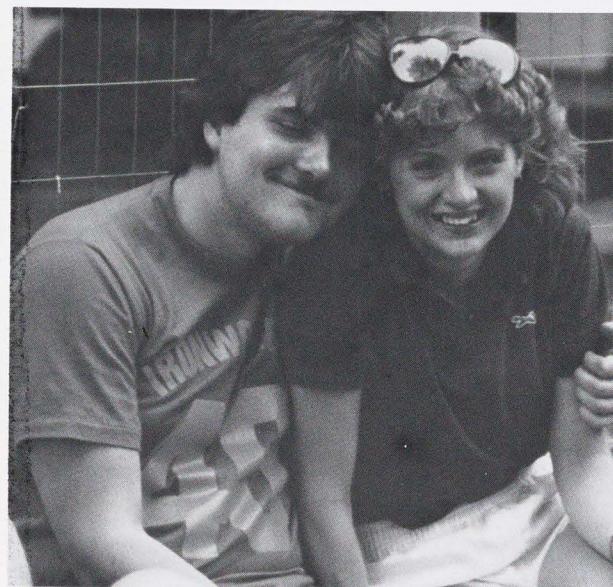

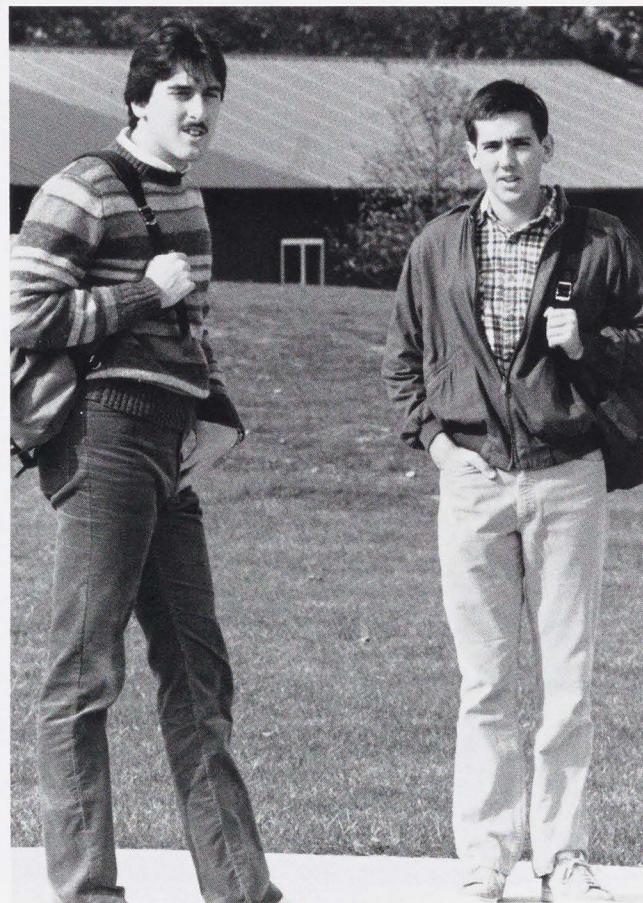

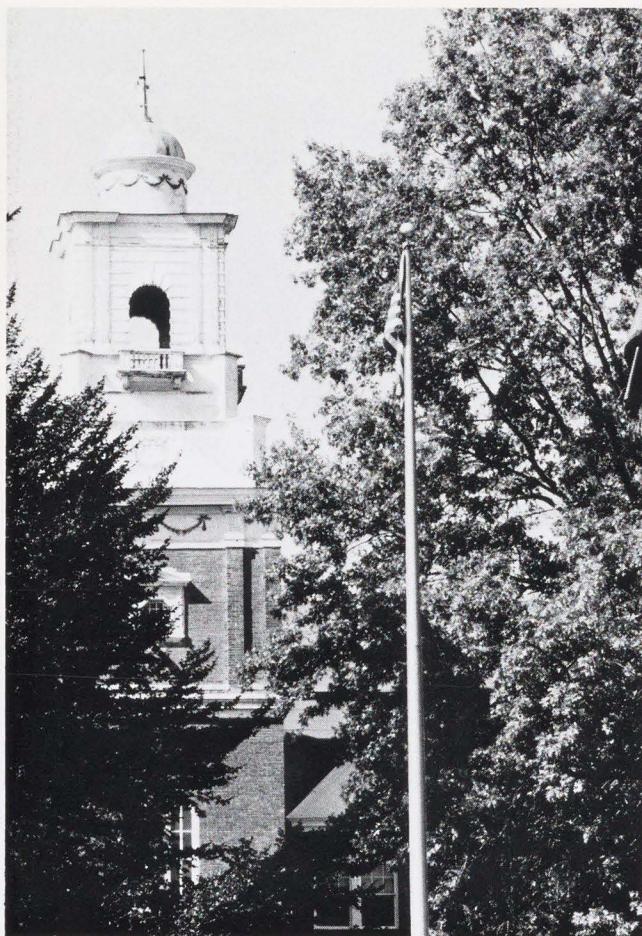

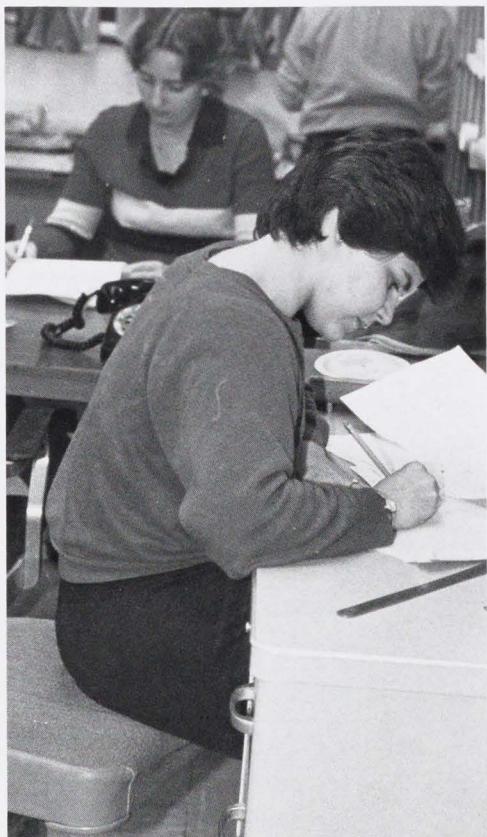

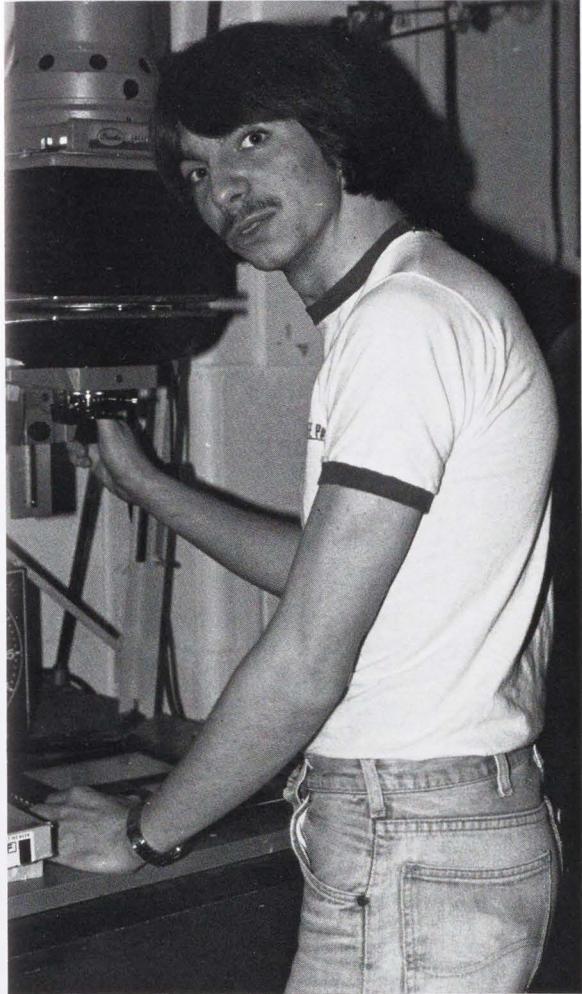

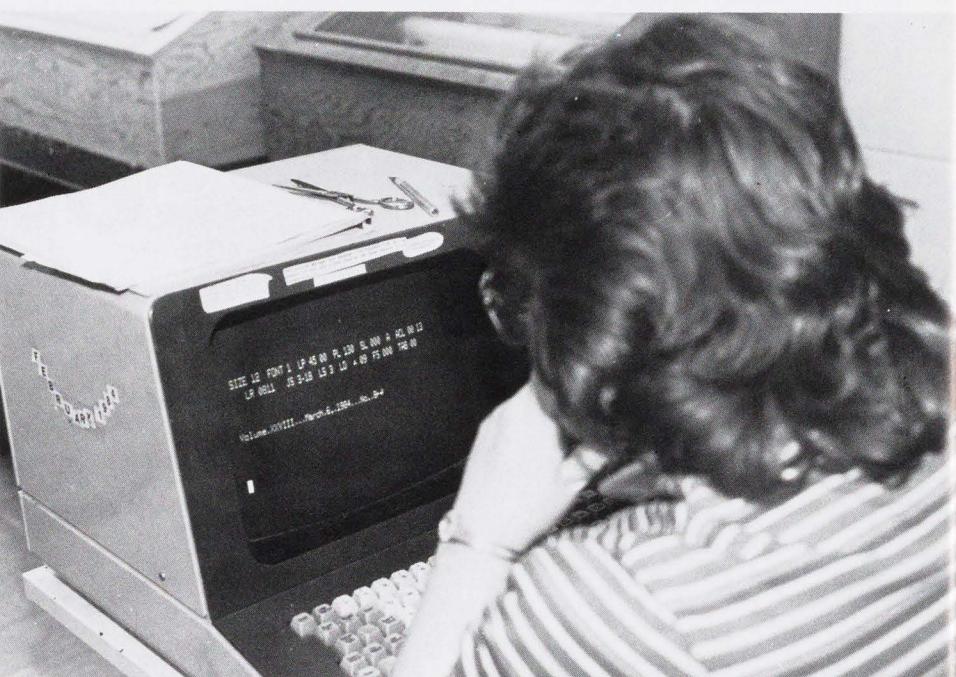

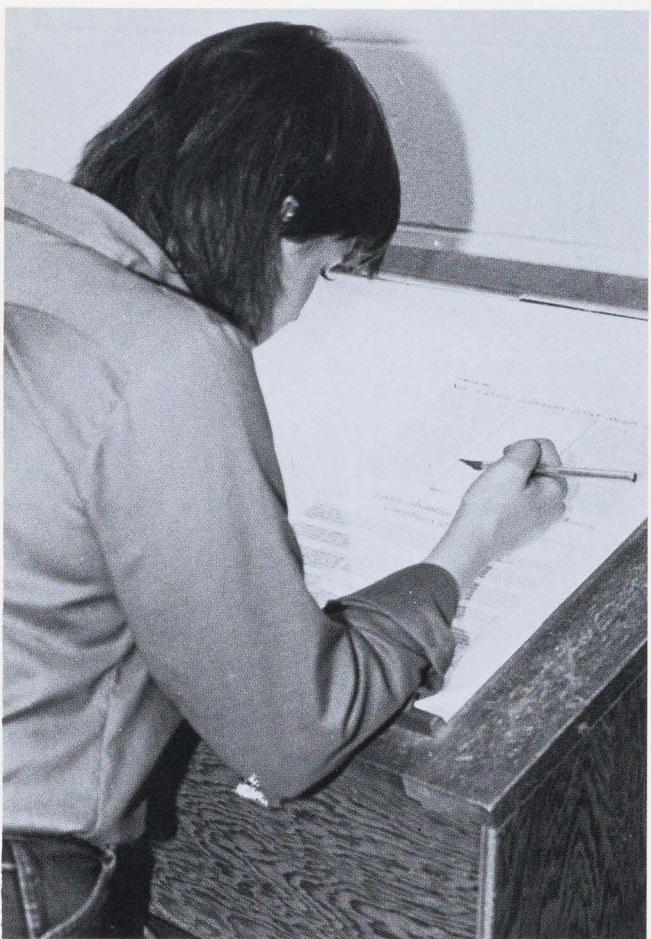

Newspaper

The key to any successful institution is communication both within itself and with its immediate surroundings. This is especially true of a university which must accommodate countless occupations, attitudes and personalities, whether they stem from a large group or separate individuals. It is for this reason that a university newspaper is a necessity if everyone who participate in the college experience is to be informed.

Once a week a university publication is circulated to all of those people who are interested in what is happening and also what activities are scheduled for the future. It is the one substantial opportunity for any member of the college community whether it may be an administrator, faculty member, or student to gain attention. Without the dedicated and hardworking coverage, much of what is presently significant on campus would probably remain unknown.

Off campus living

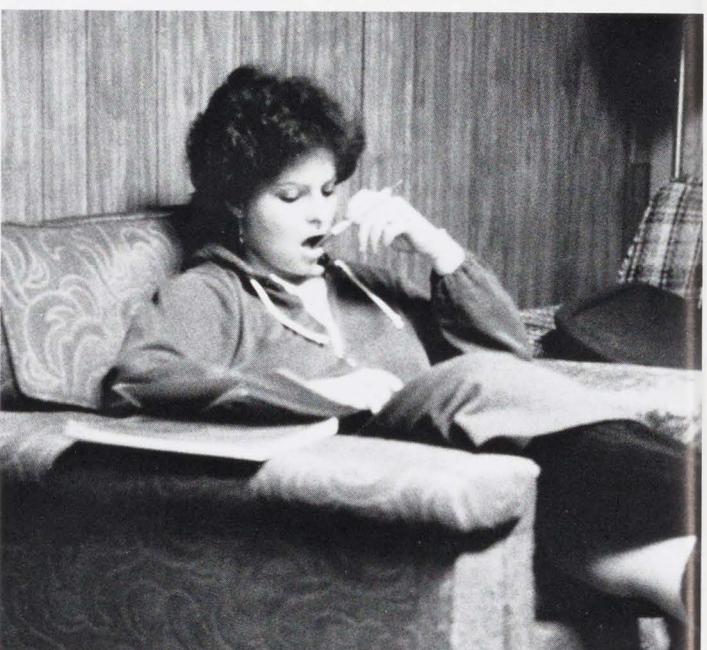

An added attraction to the life of a Shippensburg University senior is the chance to flee from the corridors of the dormitory and wave goodbye to the R.A. who never failed to grab your unescorted guest. Instead, you can savor the freedom which flavors the life of an off campus student with excitement and spontaneity.

The additional responsibilities of grocery shopping, cooking, cleaning and landlords are only minimal when you consider the opportunities which abound. Remember the last minute parties you threw to cover the electric bill or the rent? The many cooking lessons your roommate gladly volunteered might have resulted in a masterful culinary delight or perhaps you discovered that you have hidden talent for decorating a drab apartment with everything you accumulated since freshman year.

Whatever you recall from your college years, the time spent living off campus is definitely the most challenging. It allows the individual to experience a lifestyle which defies convention and yet provides for a terrific learning experience.

Parties pledging

Contrary to popular belief (or is it?), the life of a Shippensburg University student does not consist of all work and no play. While academics dominates a majority of a student's schedule, the time spent doing other things has its share of rewards. What better way to escape the monotony of endless studying, tests, and papers than to get together with friends and party the night, or even the day, away.

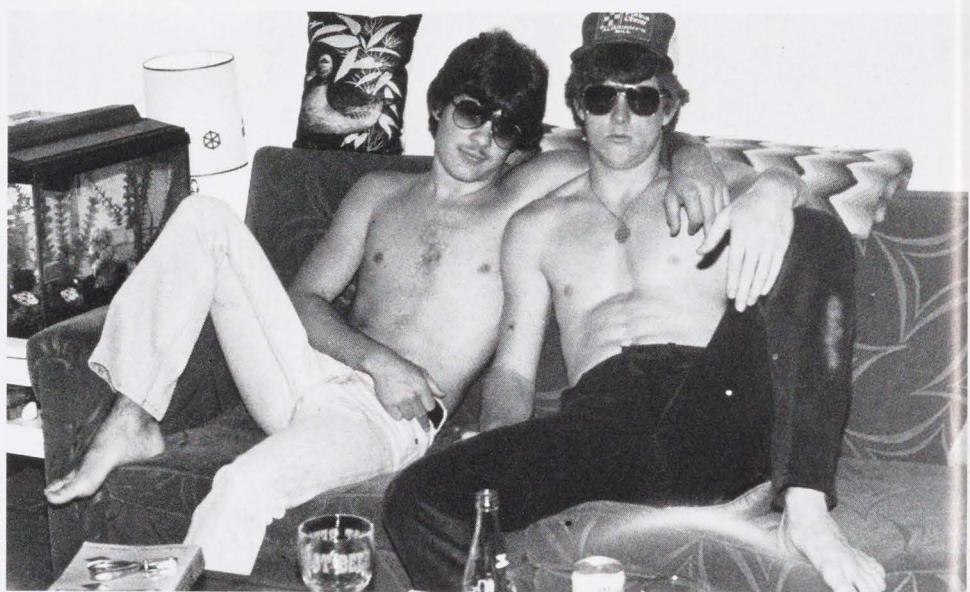

Everyone's idea of a good time differs. The key to a successful college social life rests upon the diversity and creativity of its students in providing a niche for everyone.

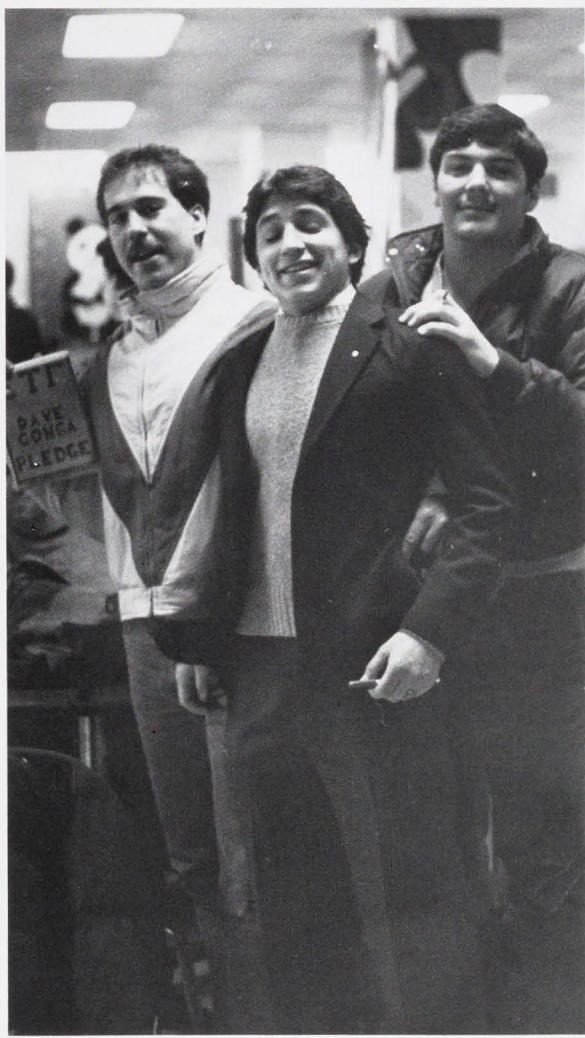

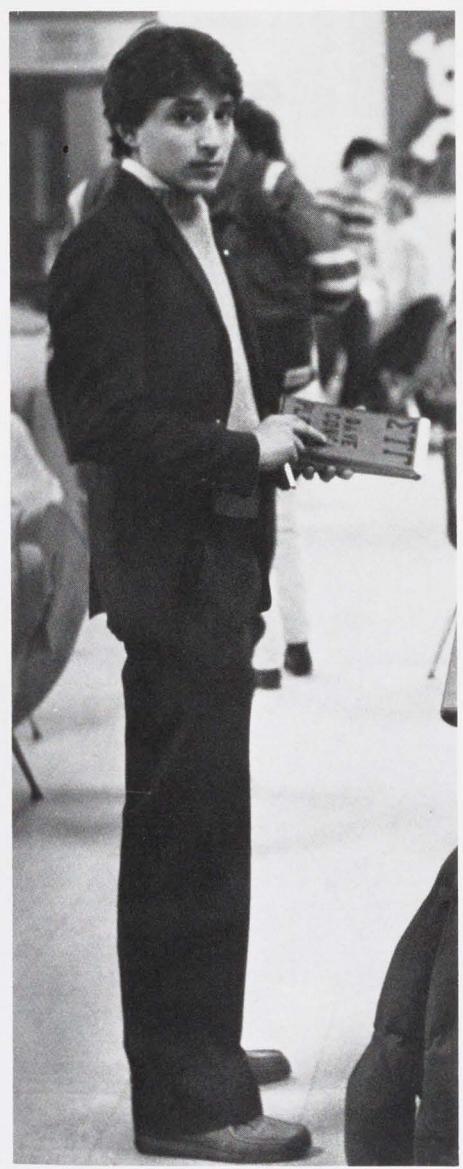

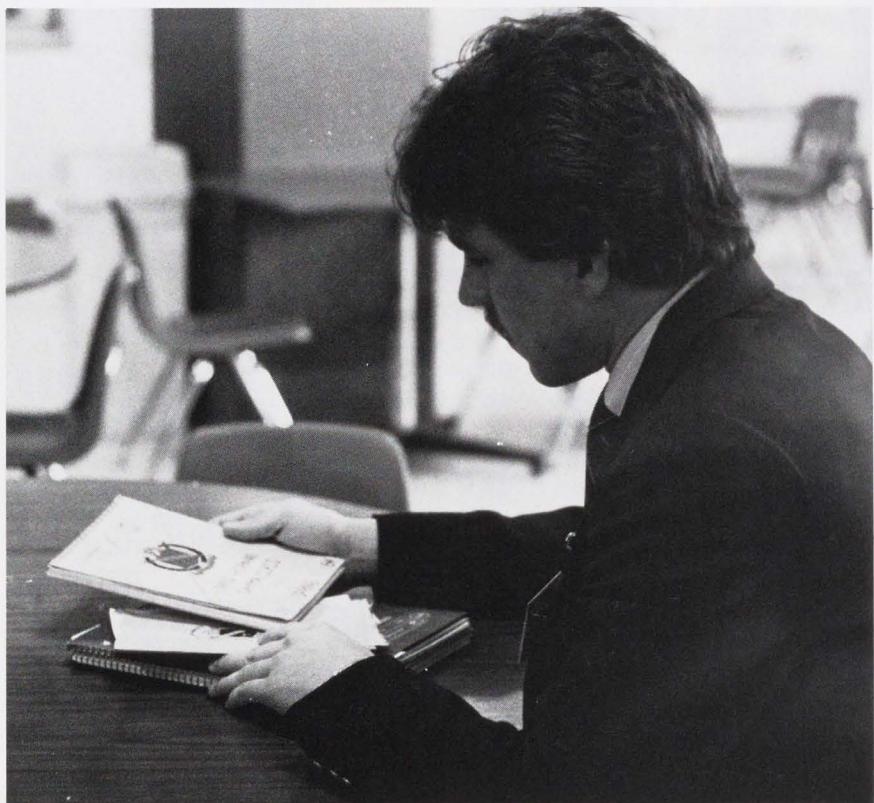

The Friday and Saturday night fraternity parties are often the highlight of the underclassmen's week. Depending upon the stamina of the person, they can also find themselves at some interesting midnight parties. Then again, there are always the impatient partiers who hate to waste any time. This is how the Friday afternoon "Happy Hour" came about. Or you might like to try a rush and decide whether or not the Greek life is for you. Party hopping through Chateau or College Park or maybe back and forth between both, is open for the energetic student. Of course date parties and formals provide the ideal opportunity to get to know that special someone who has been distracting you for so long. Whatever your pleasure, its out there just waiting to be enjoyed.

PLEDGING a fraternity or sorority is a unique experience for those who remain spectators as well as those who accept the challenge. It is not surprising then that word pledging sparks different emotions in different people.

To those who decide not to 'go Greek' the exhausting and extensive ritual may be difficult to comprehend. Who can honestly predict how they would react to six weeks of back signs, greetings, CUB duty and pledge meetings culminating in one week of pure hell. All of this must be accomplished while one is in a daze brought on by lack of sleep.

However, to someone who actually pledged a Greek organization, the meaning behind the six week ordeal is clearly understood. It represents a huge sacrifice in order to achieve a goal. Simply stated, it is day to day survival in order to form some special type of unity with other people. Once obtained this unity lasts for a lifetime.

Anybody for a game of quarters? How many times did you succomb to that fateful request during your college career? More importantly, did you ever survive the bounce of the quarter or were you always forced to concede to defeat? Regardless of any personal skill which you might possess, everyone must agree that any party is enhanced by a friendly game of quarters.

Yes, the college student has discovered many ingenious uses for the quarter. Besides providing the focus of a party, quarters are constantly sought for washing machines. Remember how they always seemed to disappear as soon as the laundry began creeping out of the closet? How many desperate searches resulted from late night munchy attacks or nicotine fits? Besides the necessities, a quarter could also buy you a game of pool or a try at a videogame. Being surrounded by so many temptations, it is no wonder that the quarter was always so scarce.

Raiders renovations OTC

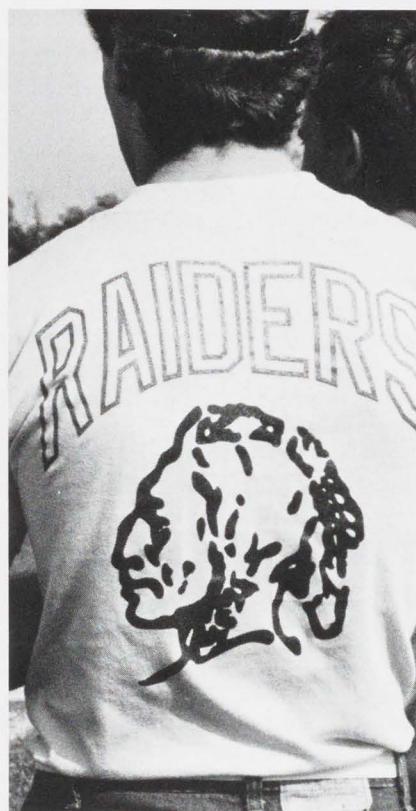

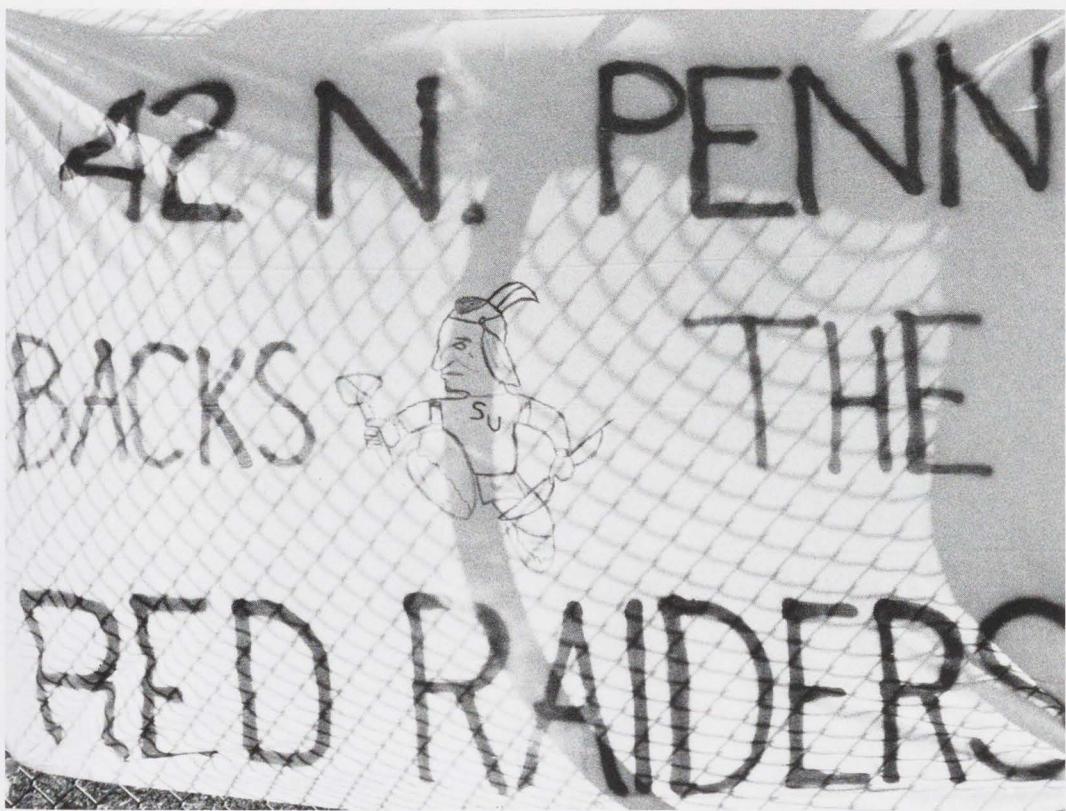

The SU Red Raiders are cheered by a chanting crowd. R-A-I-D-E-R-S!
Raiders! Raiders!

The support of the teams and the anticipation of the coming event are evident. The adrenaline is flowing within the crowd and each team member. Victory is on everyone's mind. But more importantly, everyone wants a well-played game.

The Red Raiders strive to give their best. One hundred percent plus one. And for the most part, it is working. The Red Raiders have demonstrated their abilities. Opponents realize their strength. The Red Raiders are not to be taken lightly.

They have boosted the morale and recognition of SU. They have consistently placed well in the season rankings. And the Raider fans stand behind their teams all the way.

The $3.7 million renovation of Old Main which began on May 31, 1983 is in full swing. Complete renovation and refurburbation of the building and chapel are planned.

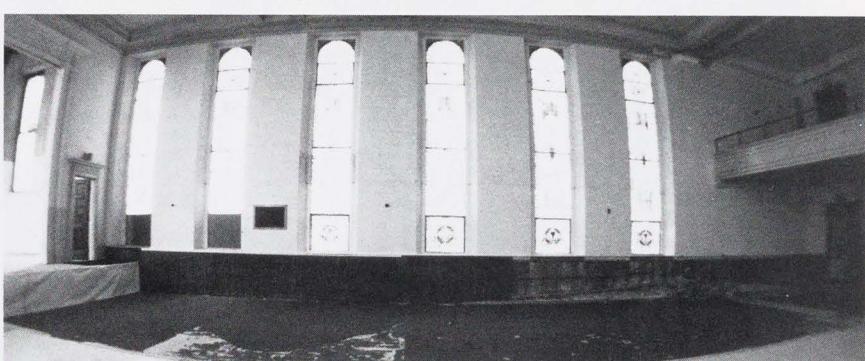

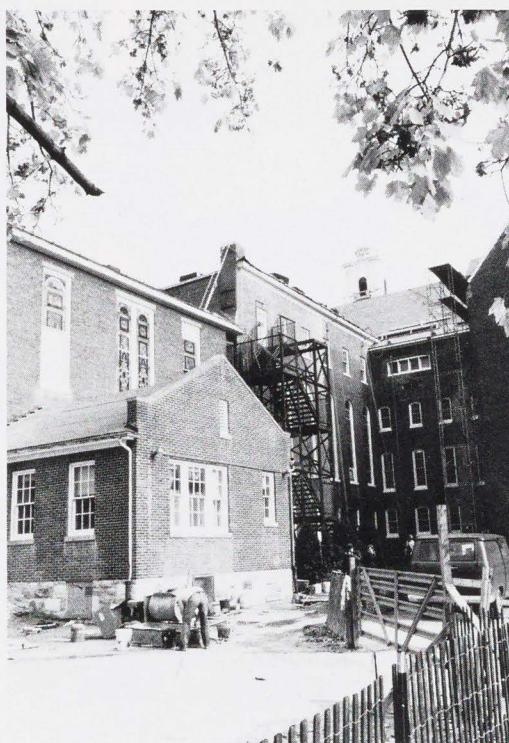

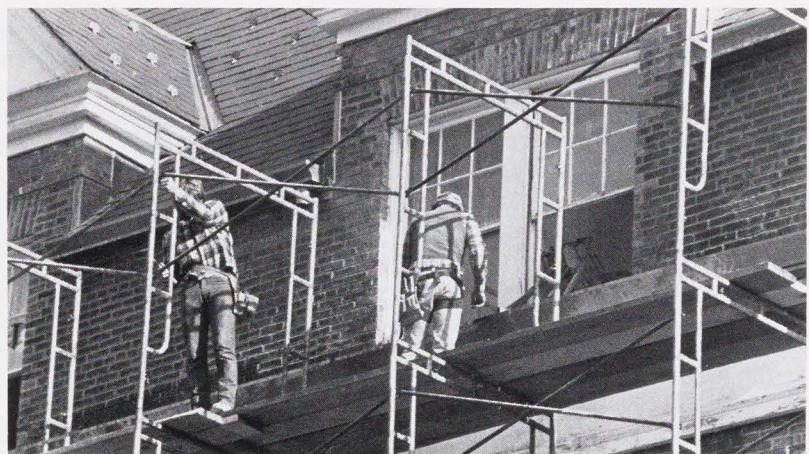

Old Main's facelift includes repointing exterior bricks and preparing the windows for stripping inside and outside. In addition, a new slate roof will be constructed.

Interior renovation of administrative offices is also planned. This includes dry walls for the remodeled offices and complete air conditioning, heating, ventilation and electrical system.

The original chapel will also be renovated including restoring the stain glass windows and brass chandeliers. The balcony will consist of four tiers of theater seats. The chapel will be used as a multi-purpose room to hold banquets, lectures and special stage performances.

The final stage will be selecting the furniture and equipment for administrative and student services offices. To date, the sixteen month project is running as planned. By the end of 1984 Old Main's new look will be complete.

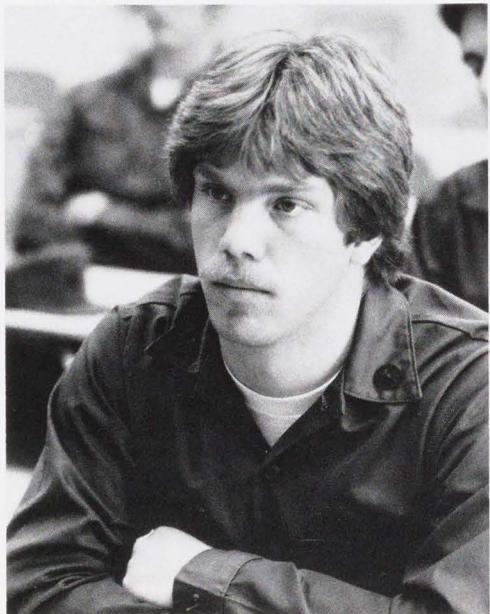

Ever notice how the Shippensburg campus gets "greener" on Wednesdays and Thursdays? This is due to the ROTC cadets and their Battle Dress Uniforms which must be worn to class. Working above and beyond the call of duty, these students participate in weekend training, field leadership exercises and physical training at 7a.m. three times a week in addition to taking a three hour, one credit classroom training session.

However, the students aren't in ROTC for the credit. When they finish the ROTC program they'll have the honor of being commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the United States Army and that makes all the hard work pay off. The cadets have then met the challenge and are ready to lead. Shippensburg ROTC is a challenge, but definitely a worthwhile one!

Seniors

Where to begin . . . These days I've been thinking along the lines as to where it all will end, and when? The dreams and hopes I still carry with the same enthusiasm, though at times they seem to fade and become visible as the day turns to dusk and the night to dawn. As I cast another stepping stone into the sea of my seemingly infinite past, with the nearing of graduation, I reminisce with silent expression the roads I dared to travel and the bridges that have brought me thus far. Could I ever forget the late summer days as a newcomer within the 'Ivory tower' walls of Shippensburg State. Those precious moments filled with excitement and of subtle fear found their way unexpectedly into the scenario of my freshman year, only to launch me into the outer limits of higher education. Earnestly I planted the seeds that would in four years blossom and be fit for harvest, hoping it would produce fruitful capital for the future, pending. Earnestly too, I labored with my studies while growing and expanding my social and personal horizons toward a more responsible, mature level of thought and deed. I breached its border on a road traveled by many, and now that I have become familiar with this institution where academics and reality are measured, tainted with knowledge benifiting those who've reached the crossroad of graduation, I choose now to leave SU on a road less traveled by.

Spring Commencement Program

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

Saturday, May the Fifth, Eleven O'clock

Nineteen Hundred and Eighty-Four

Seth Grove Stadium

Once upon a time, a high school graduate decided to take the intellectual plunge and dive into the academic pool of higher education by enrolling full-time at Shippensburg State College. The beginning of the new decade also marked the beginning of a four year journey into a world of academia and a very different social status.

The 80's brought with it a bit of the romantic. A movie star found his place perched behind the desk in the oval office at the White House. New sound waves were broadcast in a more visual mode of entertainment in the form of stereo MTV. The nuclear issue, not a new one on the scene, was on the minds of many as their protest was heard throughout the world.

The first year of college was over before one could get the swing of things. Buying books and carrying meal tickets were the new responsibilities of the college freshman.

Three years pass by and graduation is in sight. The race to fulfill major course requirements is a crucial factor determining whether the finish line will be reached. When the last bridge is crossed and the diploma is securely in your possession, once again you find yourself back at the beginning. At home the pictures, posters and trophies in your room bring back memories strangely distant.

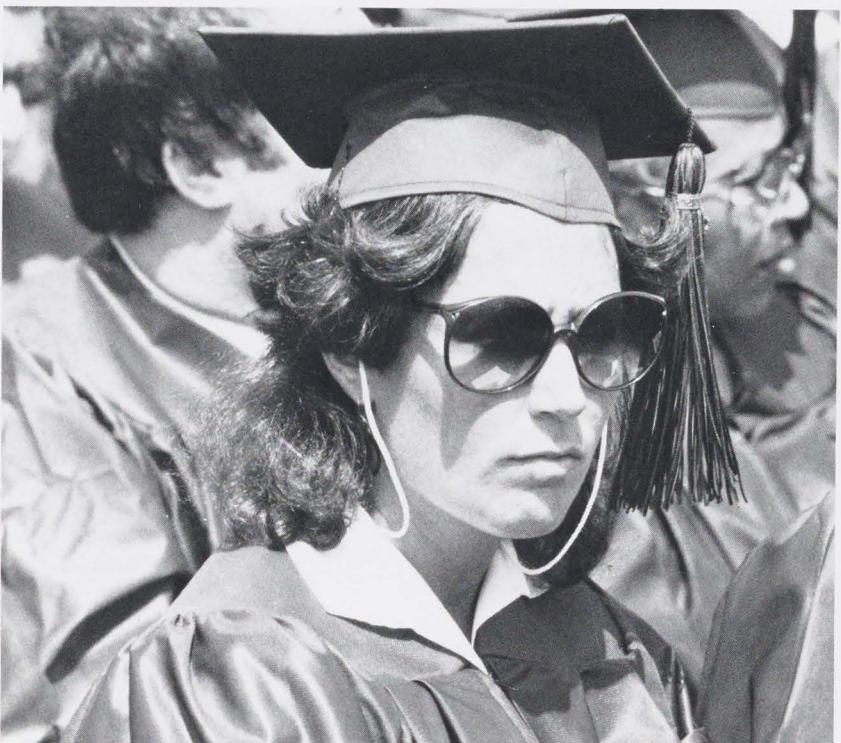

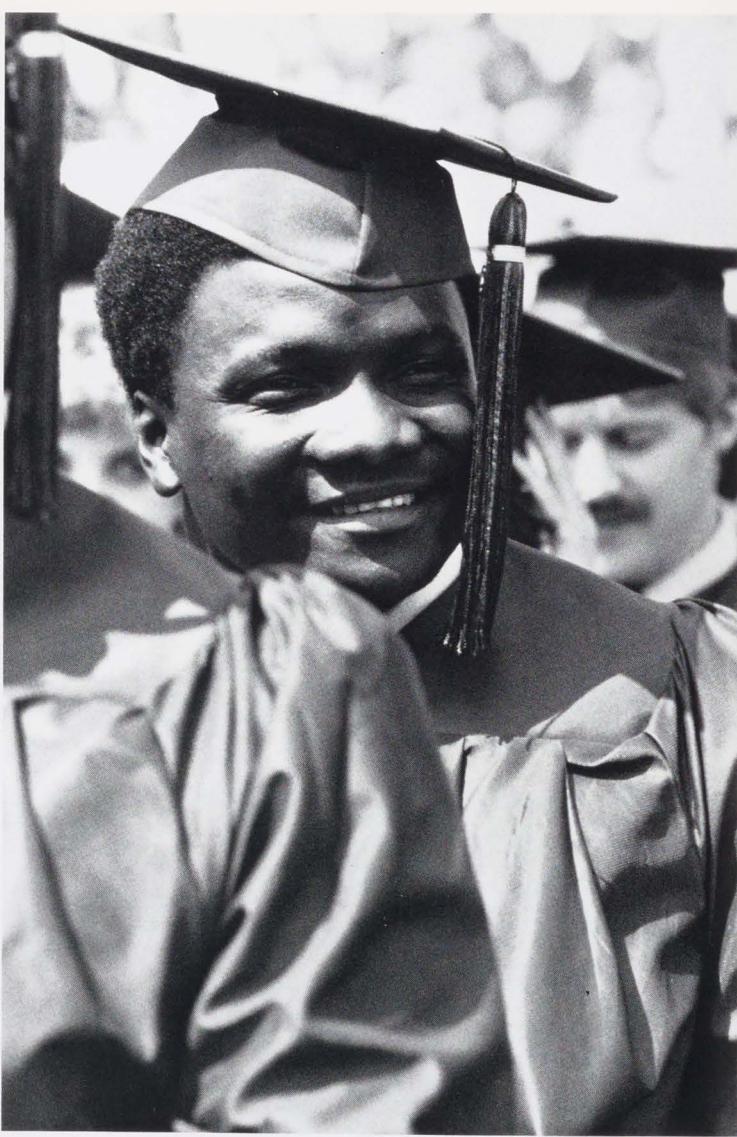

The little kids who lived next door before you went away to college are no longer screaming at the souped up Camaro's passing by the house. They are driving them.

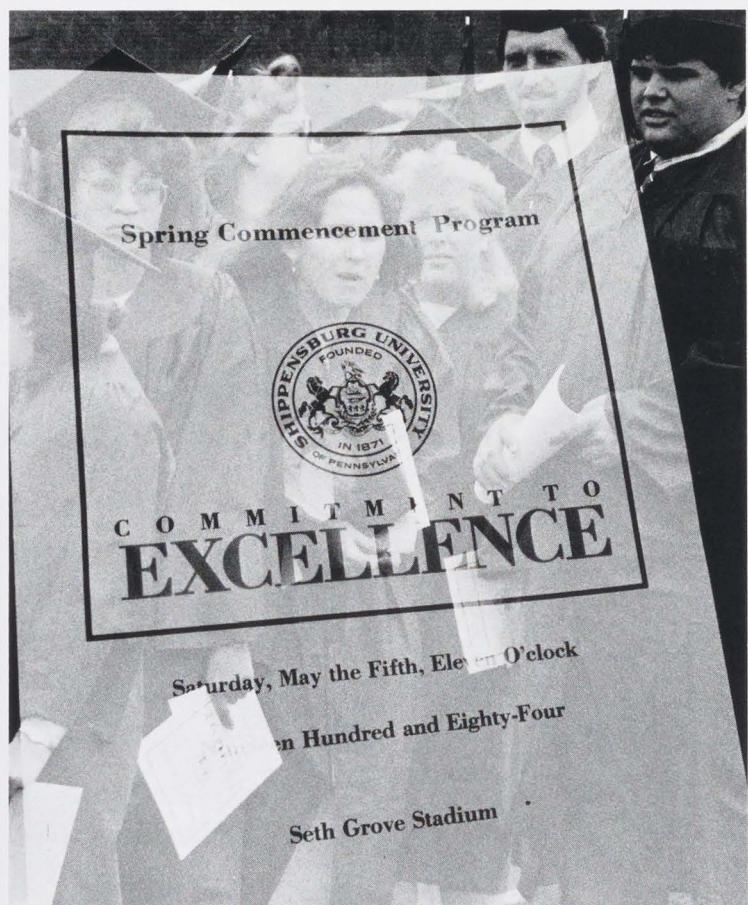

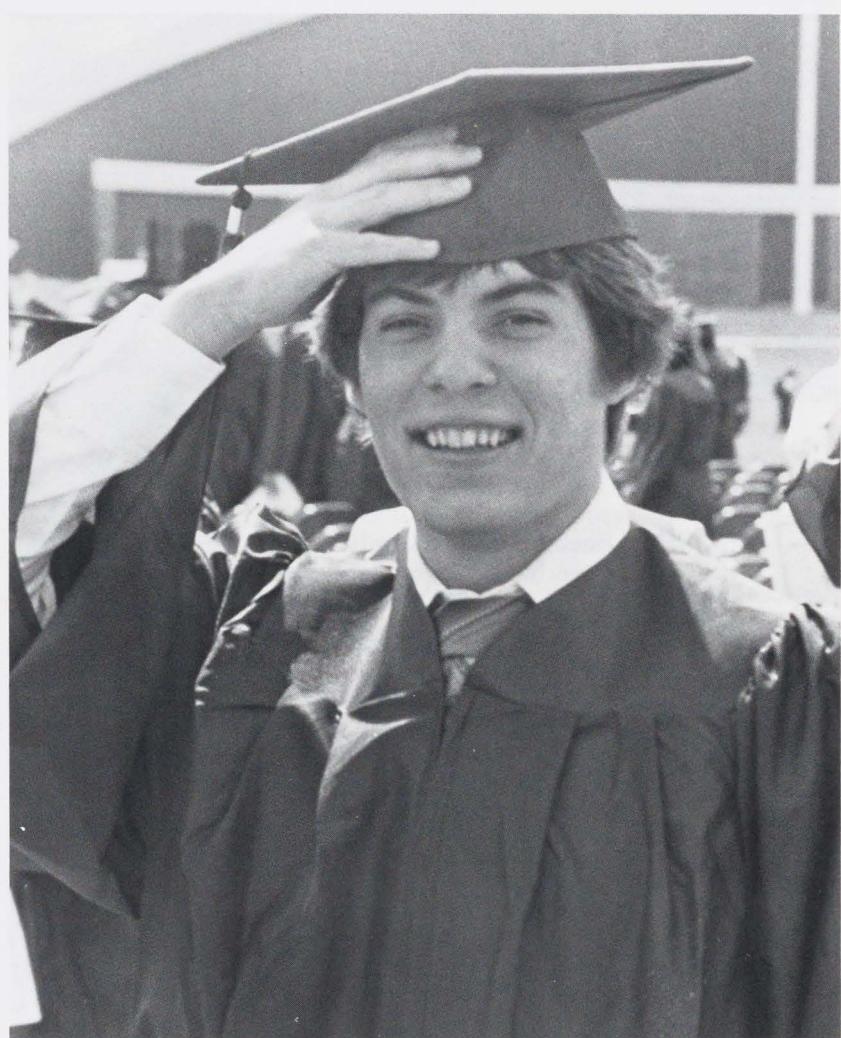

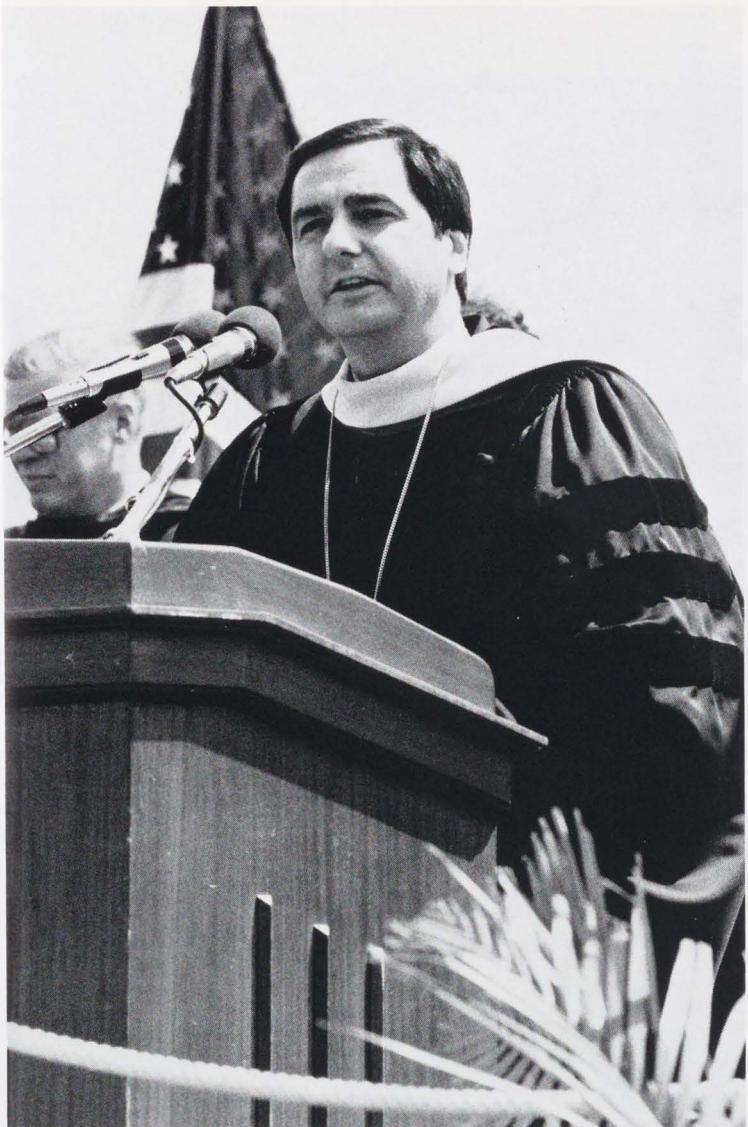

If there were ever a more appropriate time to grow up and take on the responsibilities of a mature adult, the time would be now. If being the oldest, young adult on the block doesn't break you into the real world, job hunting will.

T V own unes

By the time you finish studying, attending classes, doing wash, or whatever else consumes your time, it is unlikely that you will have much time left to watch TV. However, sometimes it is possible to watch an episode of your favorite show even if you don't remember what happened the last time.

General Hospital and Hill Street Blues seem to have captured the attention of students and many arguments ensued over when Laura would decide to meet Luke. M-TV has also become a major distraction and the competition between videos is widely followed. So, whenever you feel like entering the vegetable state, simply switch on the TV and try to discover what the various video stars are doing.

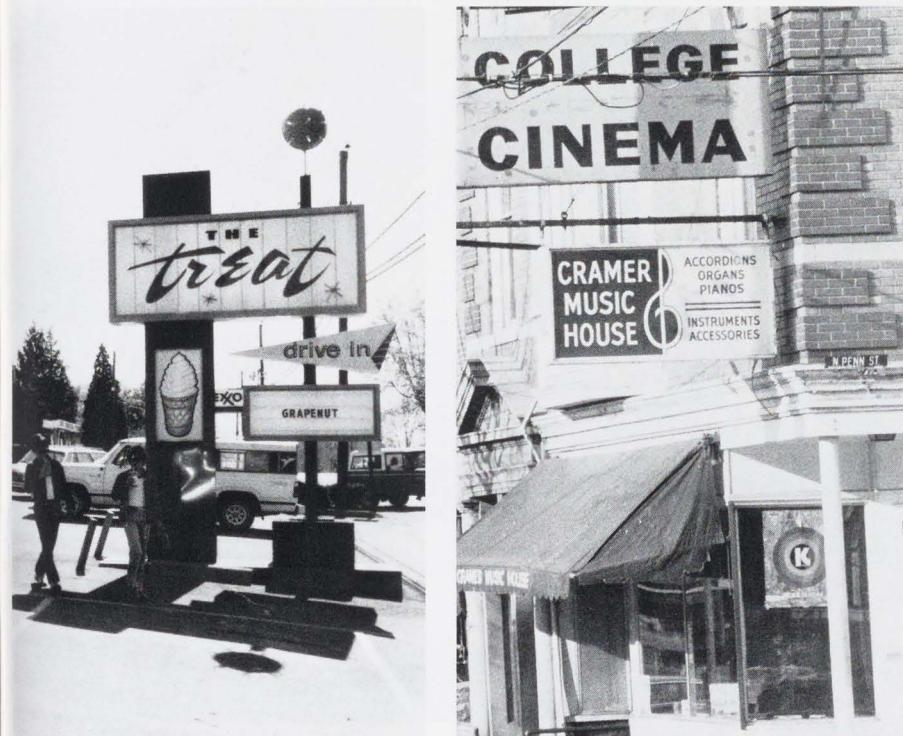

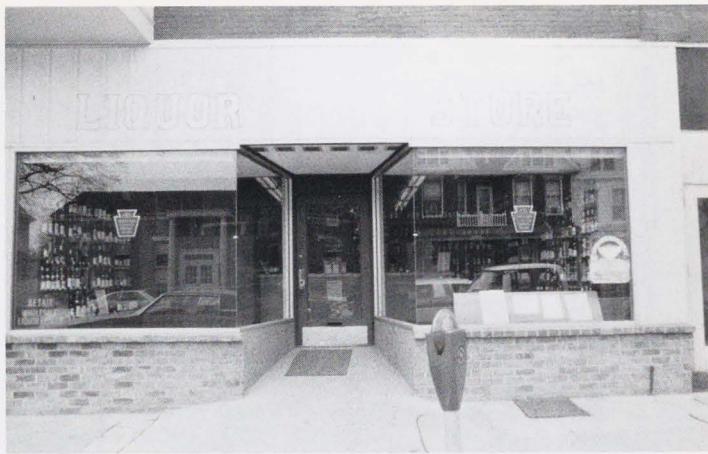

One of the unique qualities of a university town is that besides providing a home for its established residents, it also serves the diverse needs of the university community. Shippensburg is a small town so it is not long before the university students, who have traveled from a multitude of distant communities in order to achieve further education, begin to call it home.

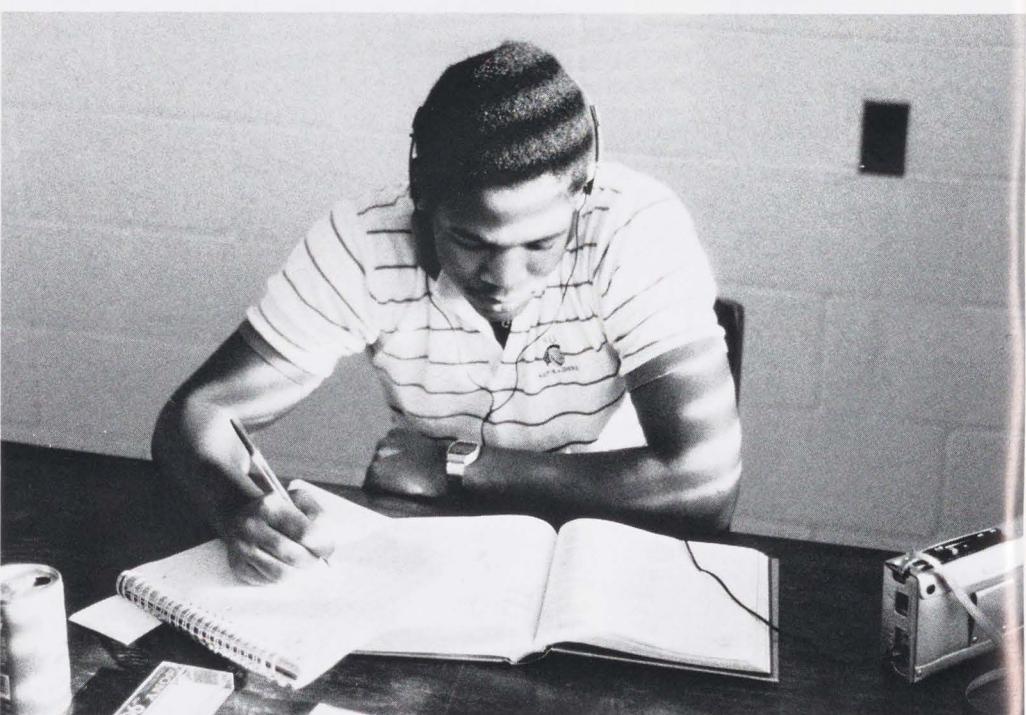

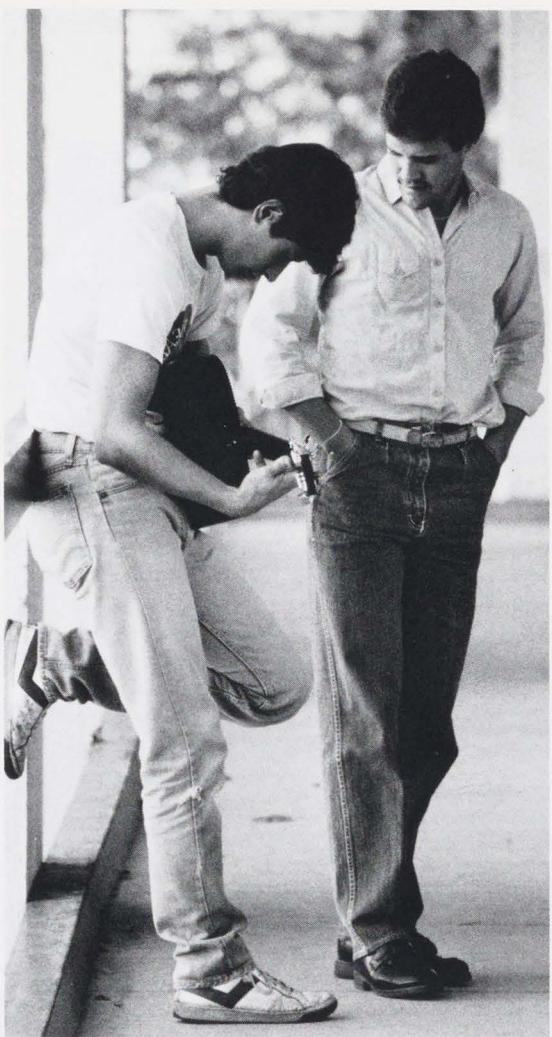

Even though you probably spent most of your first three years living on the campus, you might have chosen an apartment in town for your residence in your senior year. In that case, you probably became quite familiar with the local merchants, and restaurants who rely on university students for most of their business. Chances are you choose your own favorite business to frequent whether it be Maxies, the Coffee Shop, Burkhart's or Dollar General.

Good tunes are almost always the basis for a good time no matter what your particular taste. This may be why nearly all dorm rooms, and apartments automatically become equipped with the necessary systems in order to produce them.

It would be interesting to know how many hours a university student actually spends listening to favorite tunes. Whether it fills the dining hall, dorm, fraternity basement, or when the weather gets warmer, the outside—music is the means by which much pleasure is achieved.

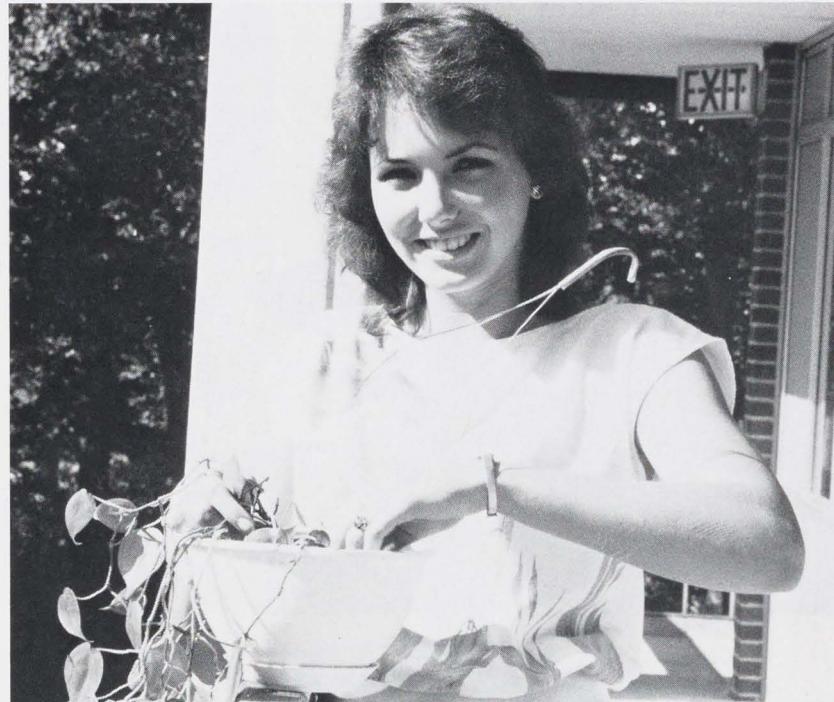

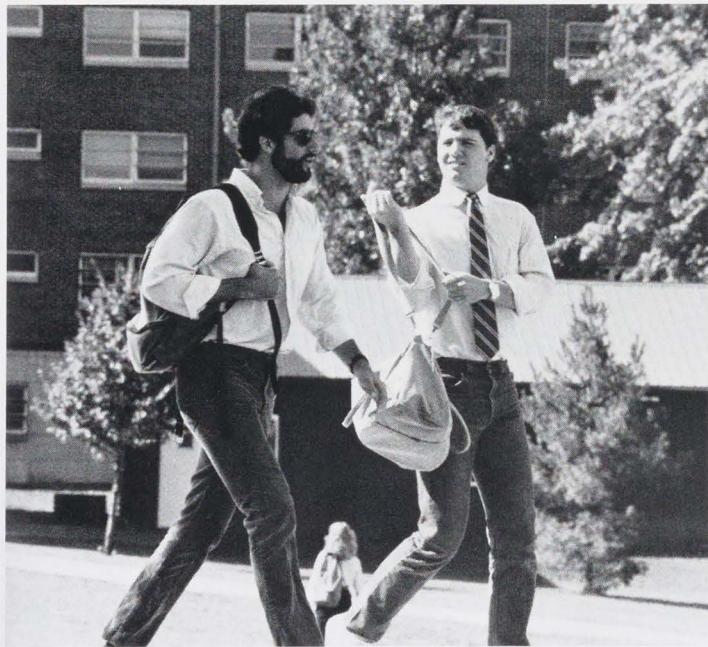

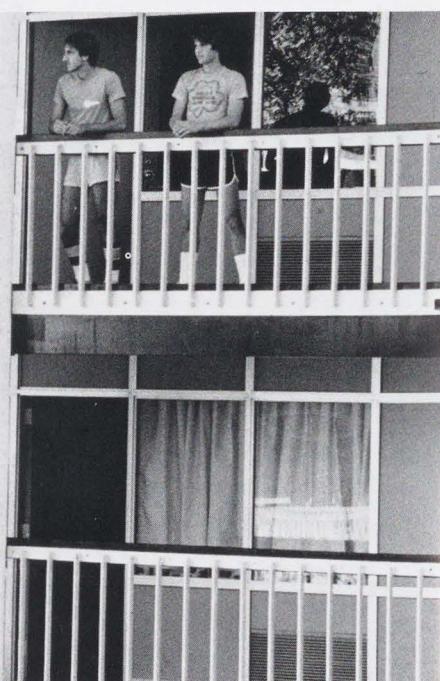

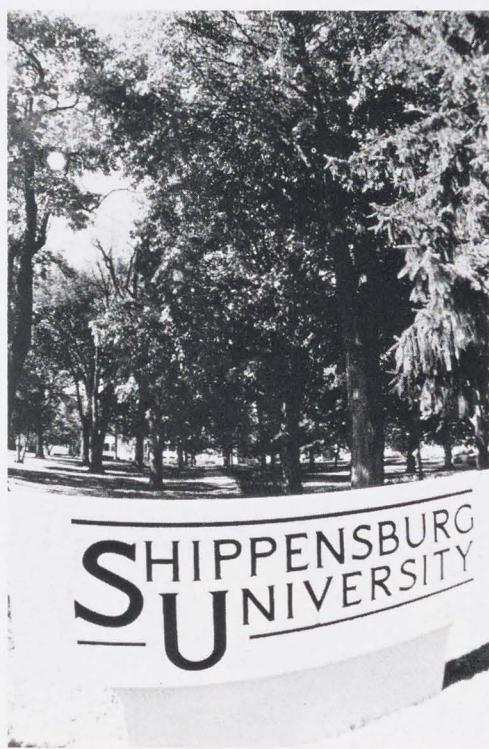

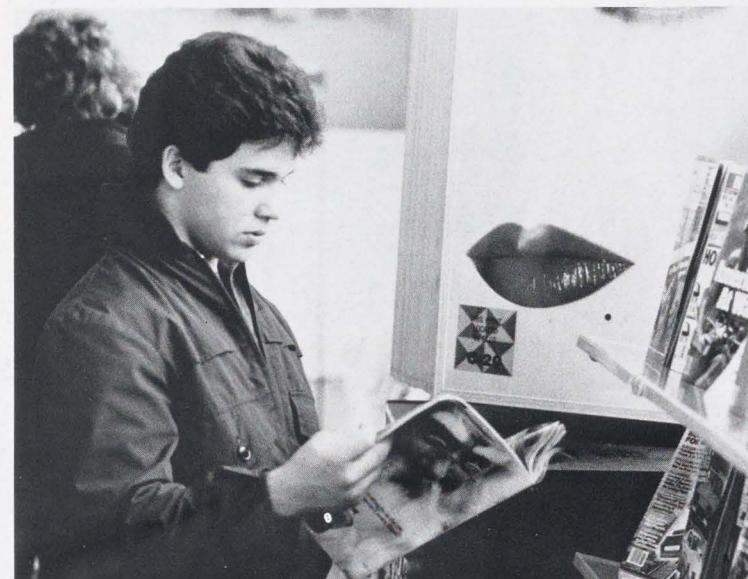

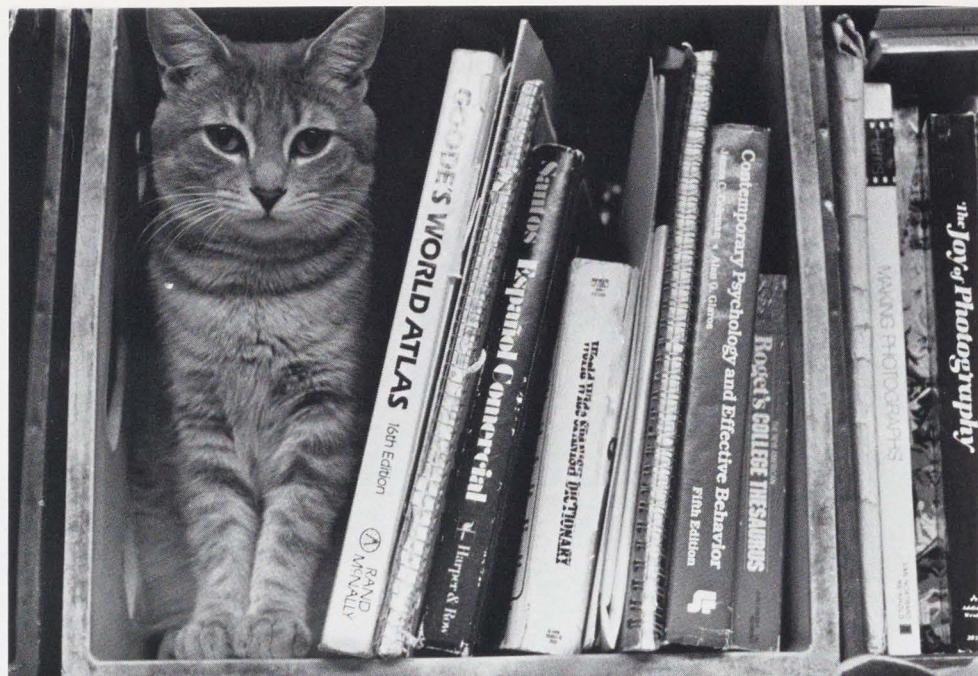

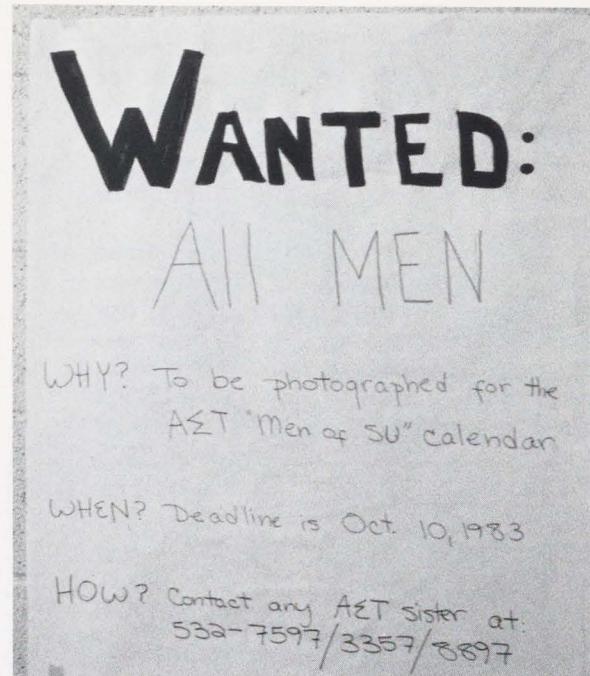

University life

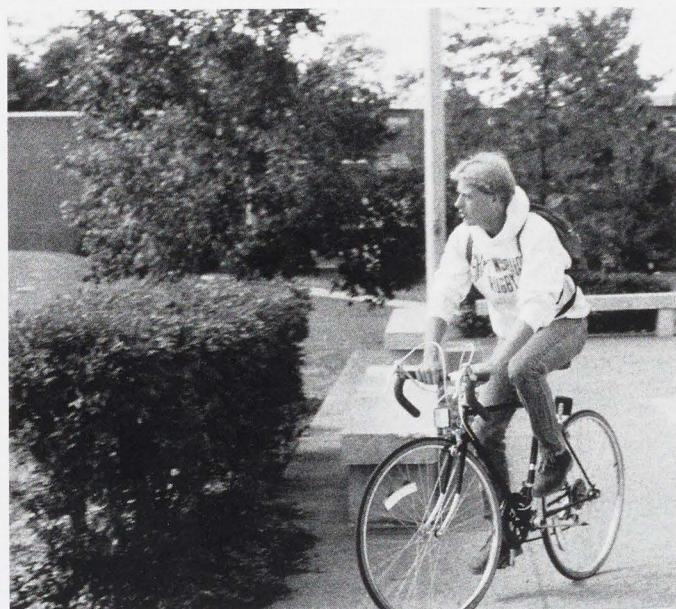

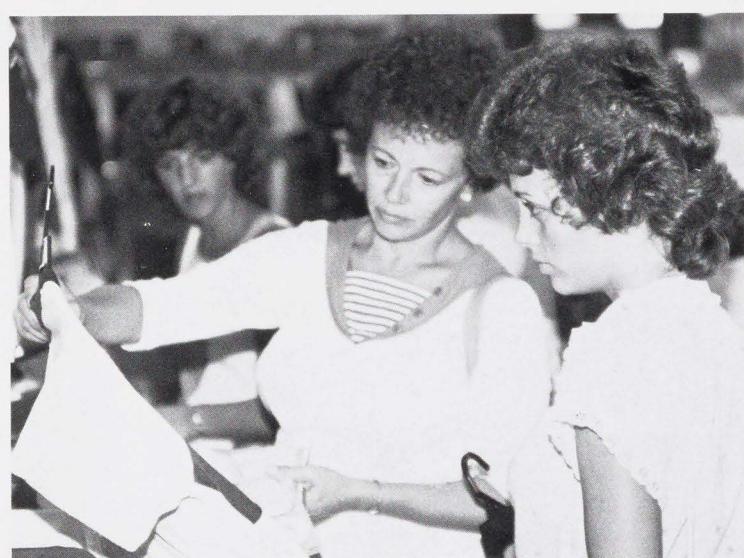

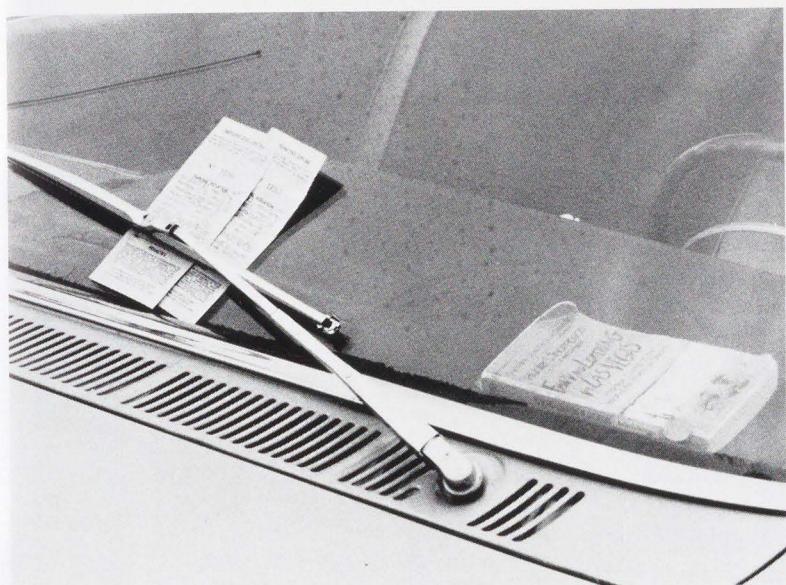

The decision to leave home and accept the challenge of university life marks the onset of extensive development for an individual. From the moment the campus of Shippensburg looms into view, the freshman student is confronted with an endless stream of new situations. Therefore it is no wonder that a dramatic transformation can be perceived in the individual who graduates four years later.

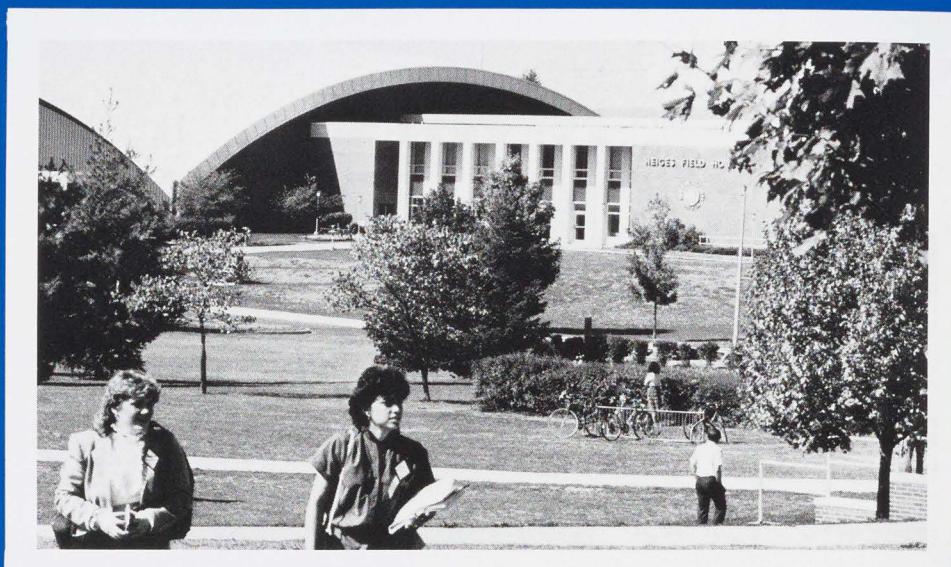

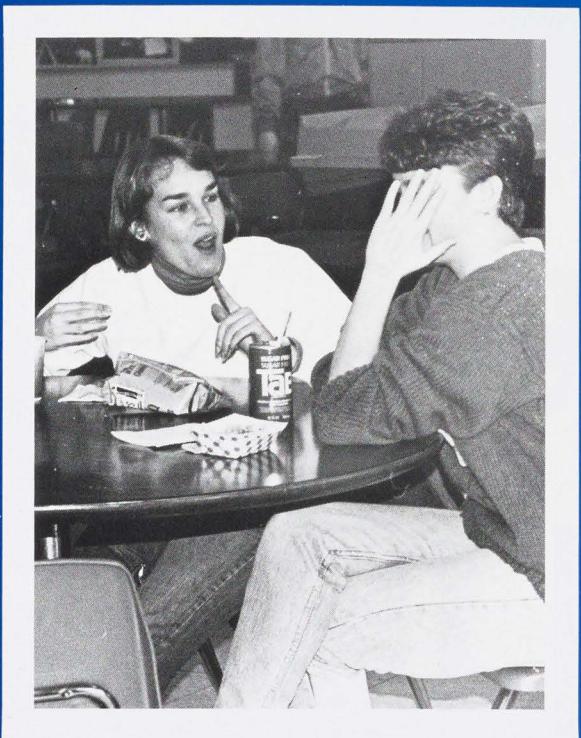

It is not long before friendships are made which often determine the pace of the next four years. By the time you cram all of your belongings into a cramped dorm room, the nervousness from being in strange surroundings disappears. After all, who has time to worry when you suddenly have so many obligations. Pictures must be taken for an ID and meal card, orientation meetings are scheduled, the dining hall must be investigated, and the party circuit moves into full swing.

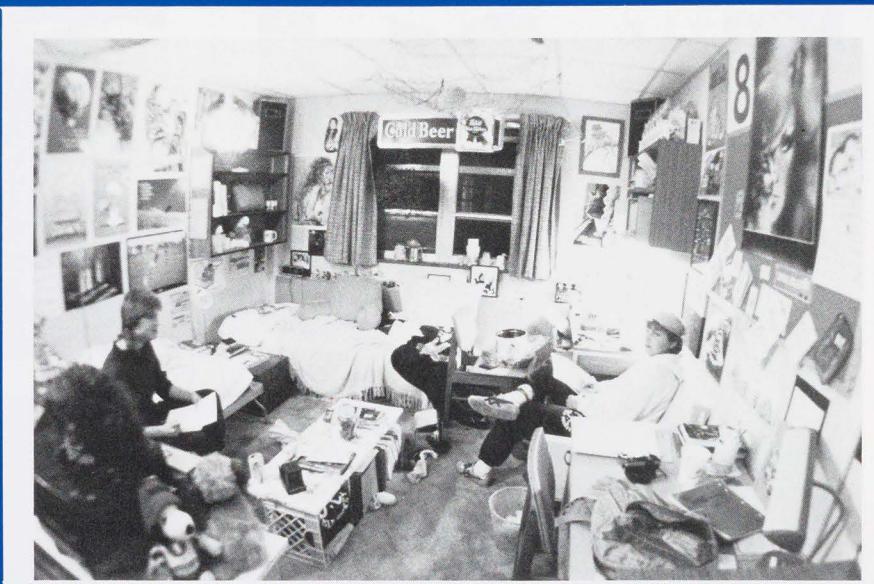

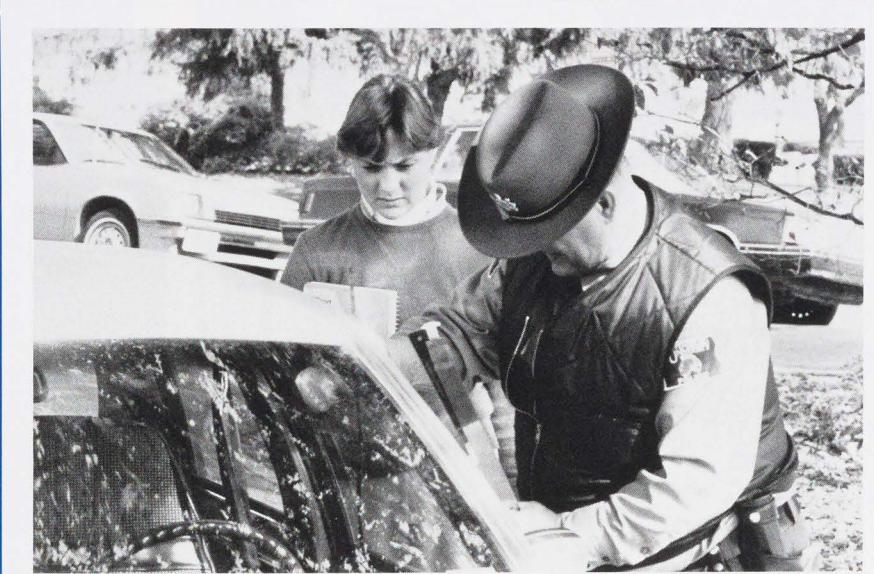

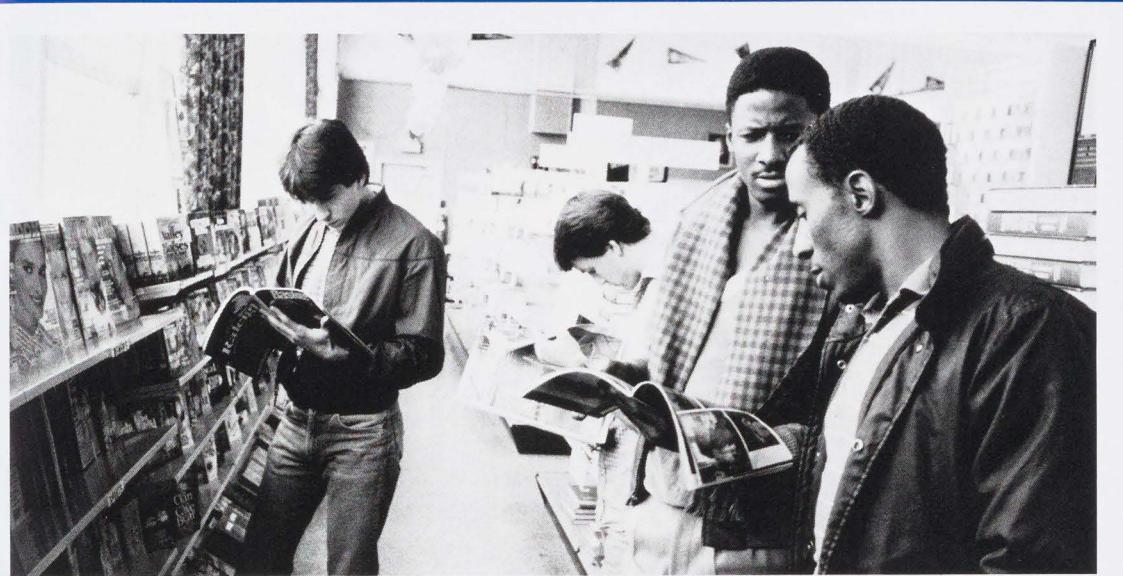

After one semester of university life, the routine is familiar and you probably wondered how you ever survived living within the confines of a home environment. Without curfew or parents hovering nearby, the lifestyle of a university student is solely of his or her own doing.

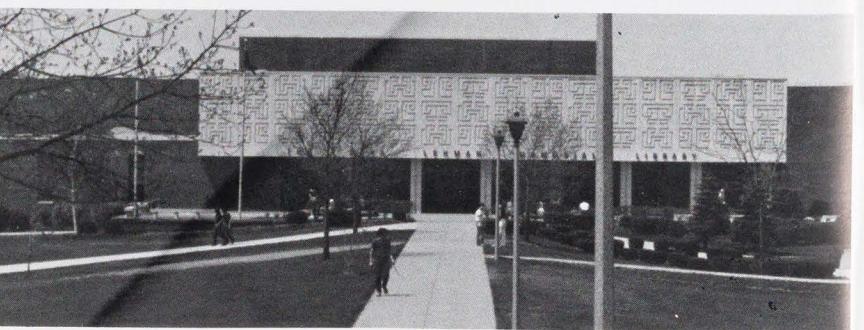

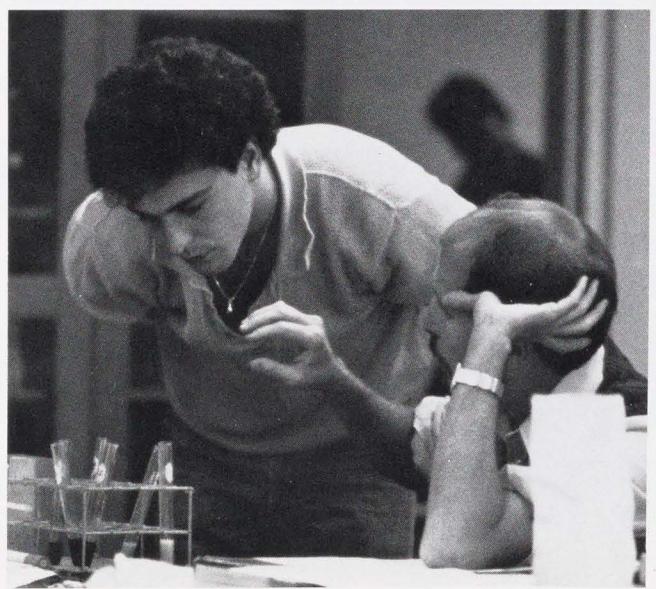

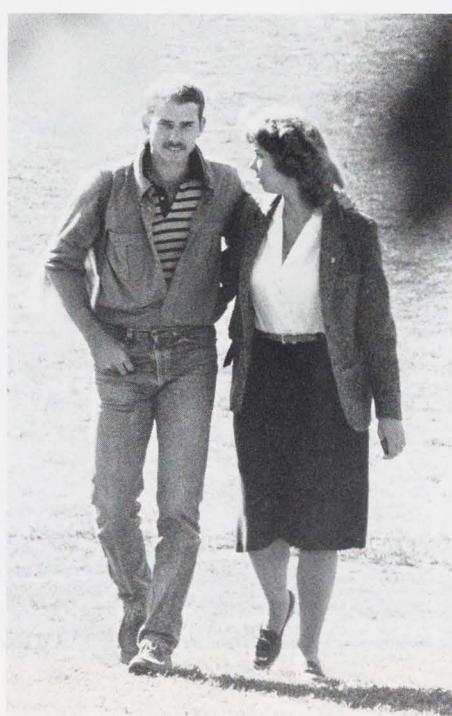

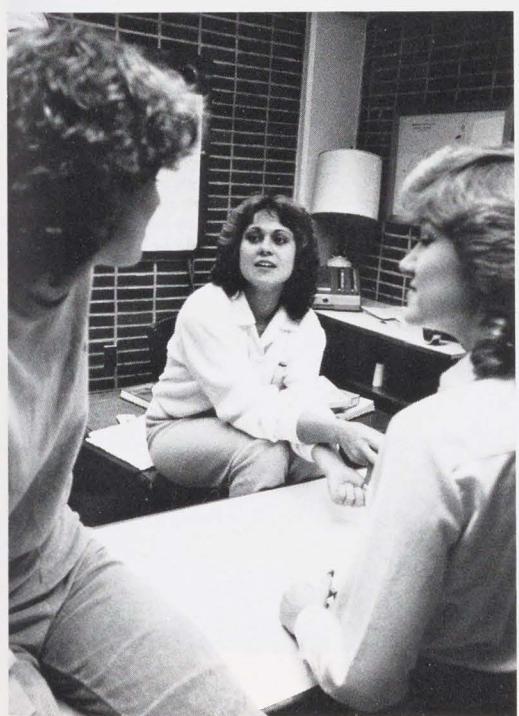

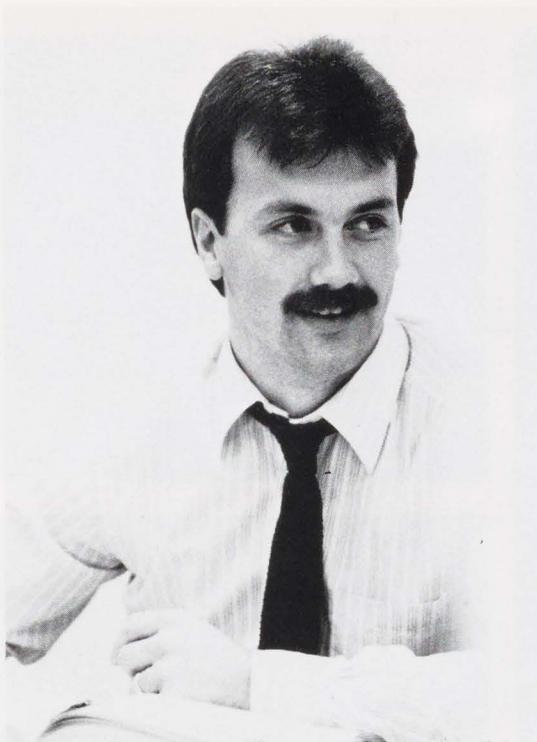

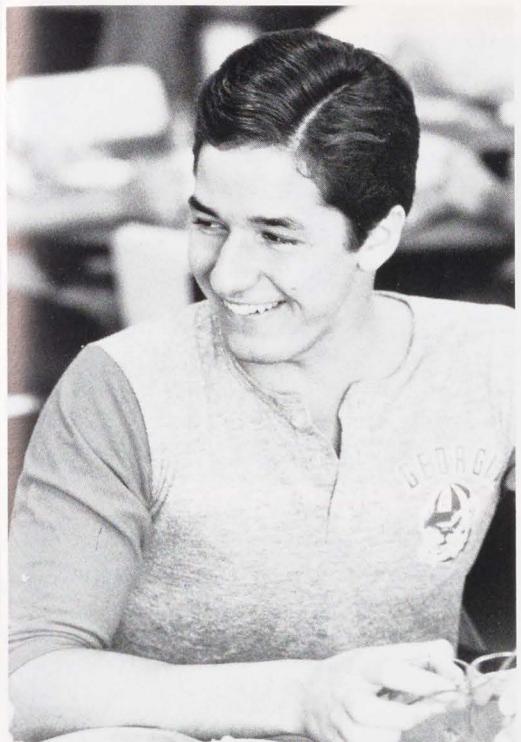

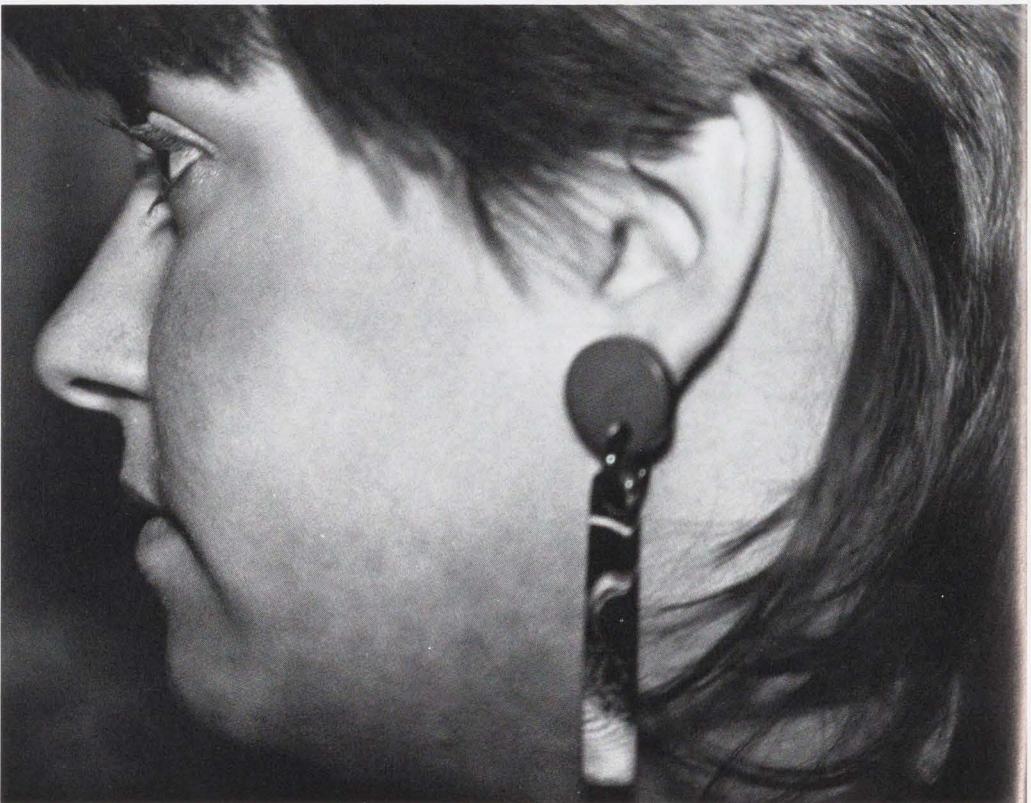

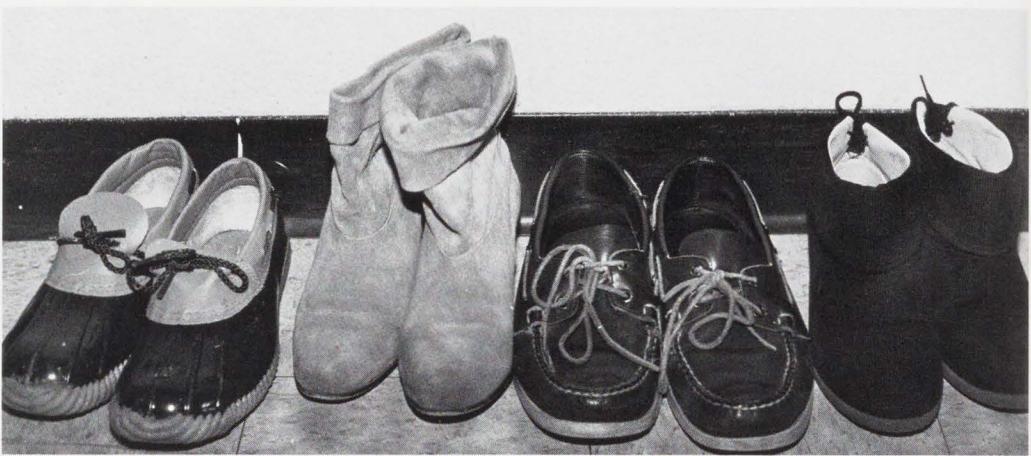

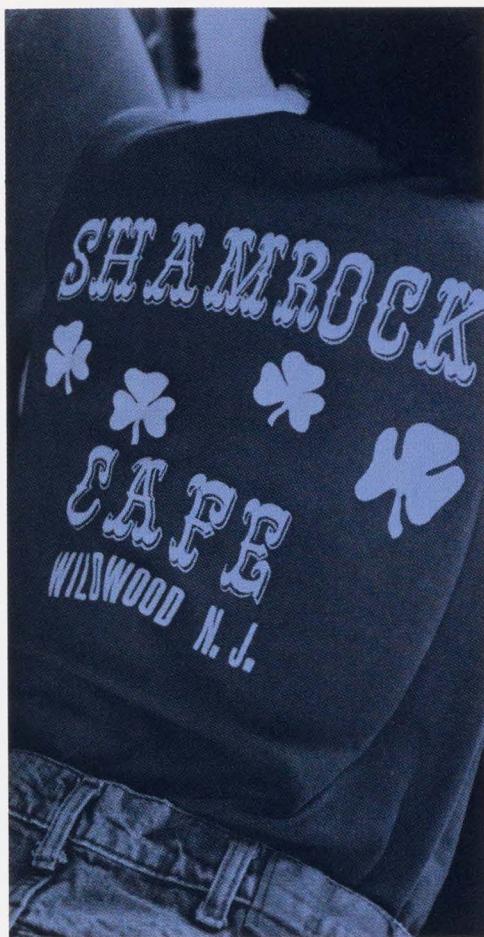

Vogue

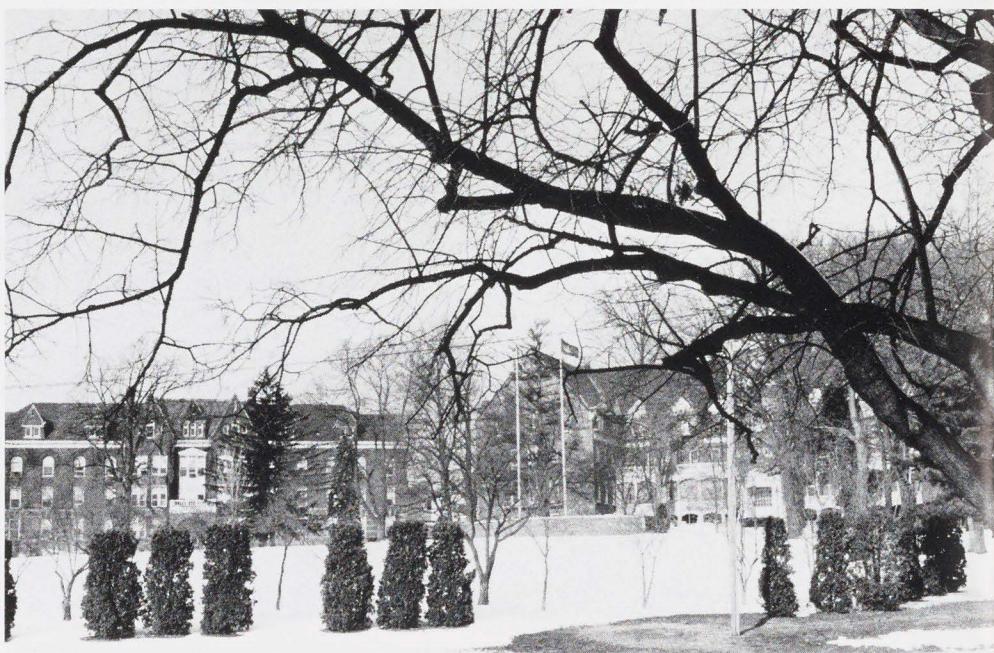

Vogue. The current fashion. What do SU students like? Well almost anything goes.

Some prefer the 1950's fashion of oversized sweaters, flat white sneakers and tight jeans — others follow the latest fads like a new punk haircut and miniskirts. Many students have attacked their favorite sweatshirts to achieve the flashdance look. Naturally the preppy look lives on as students don their docksiders, oxfords or Izods (with collar up at all times). Still, the All-American Levis and sneakers can set the standard for some. Accessories such as multicolored bandanas, hats, junk jewelry and even three or four earrings in one ear may be the newest trend. As long as a girl leaves her pocketbook at home, she can wear whatever. Because at SU, the current fashion is whatever fits you!

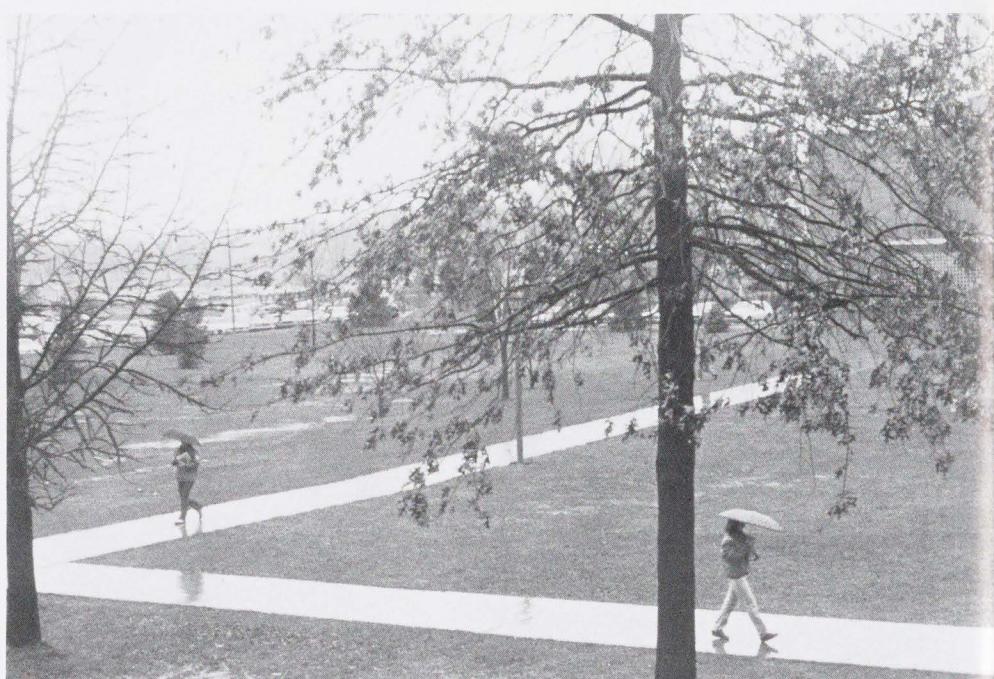

Weather

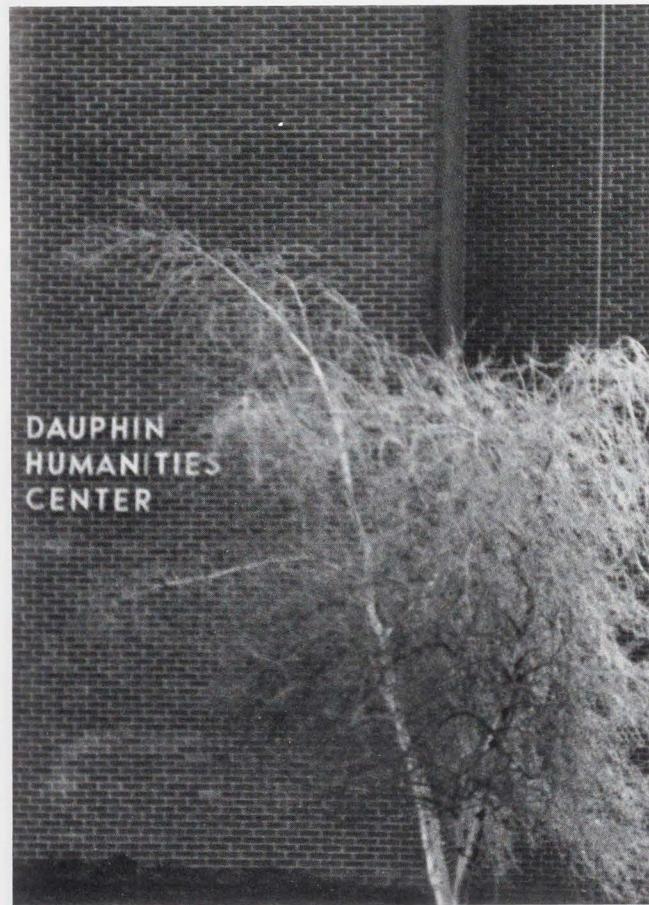

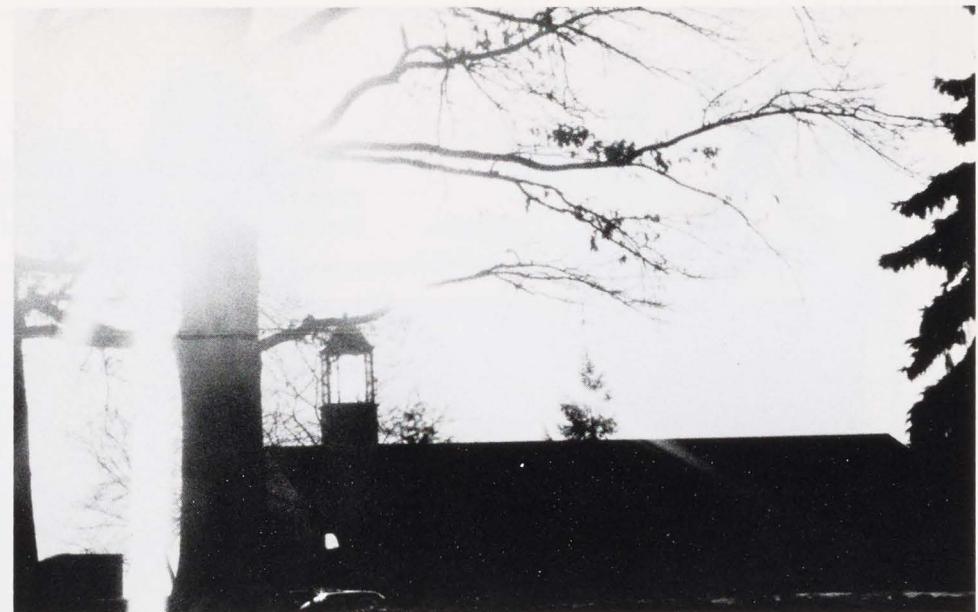

Even though the University catalogue may lead you to believe otherwise, Shippensburg University is not situated within a tropical rain-free weather zone. On the contrary, one year in Shippensburg provides a person with a wide range of weather-related stories, some of which would rather be forgotten.

A Monday morning is simply not complete without a heavy downpour, gusty wind, and chilly temperatures so you look like you stepped out of the shower when you enter the dining hall. Who can resist the mud slides on the way to a midnight party which happens to be across town? The freezing rain which covered the campus with a crippling sheet of ice this past winter hindered even the more dedicated student who did not have the proper ice skating attire.

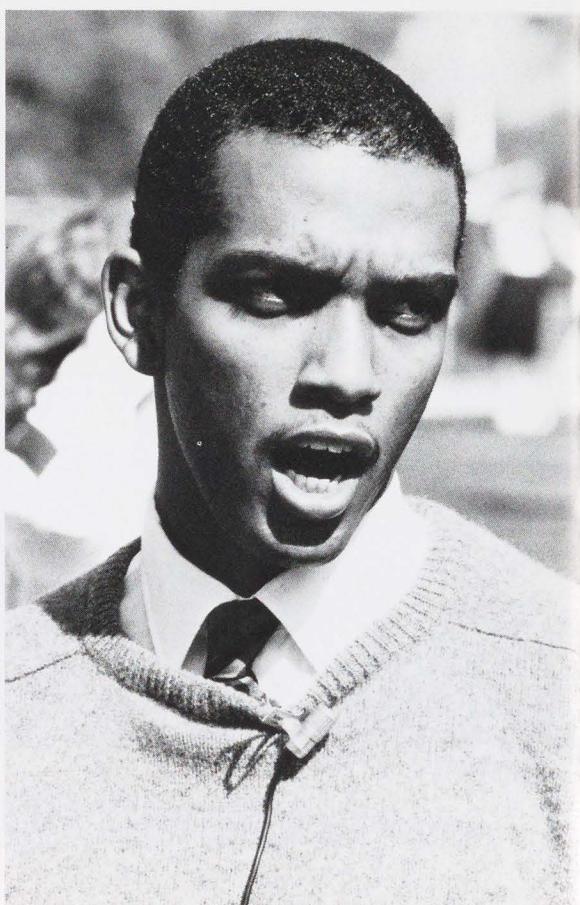

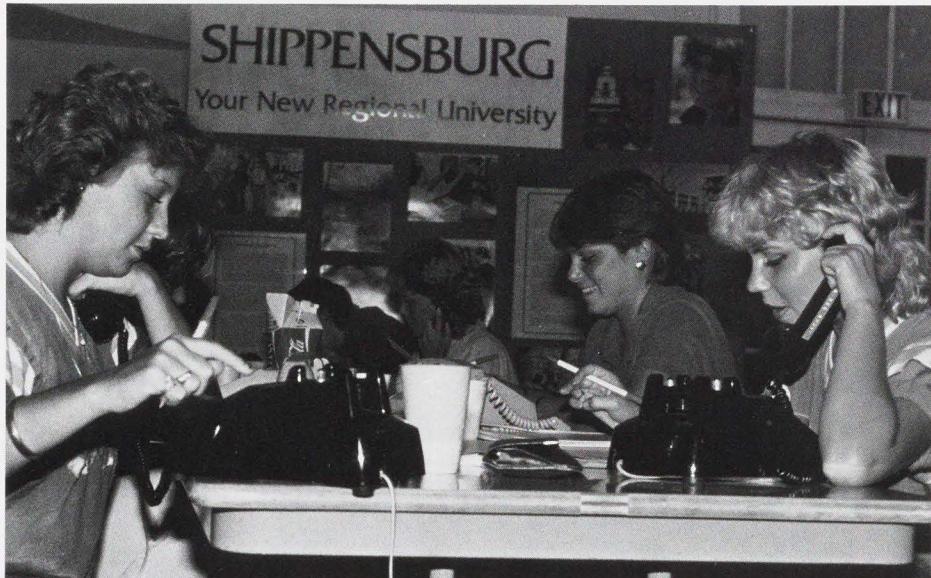

Oh, but don't let the winter doldrums deceive you. By the time you have become bored with the midnight snowball battles along with the subzero temperatures, spring will emerge and the campus sunworshippers will be out in full force.

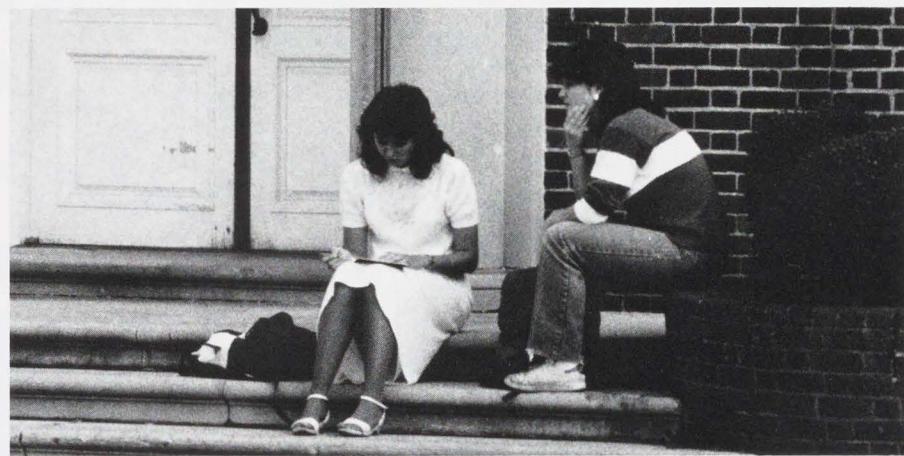

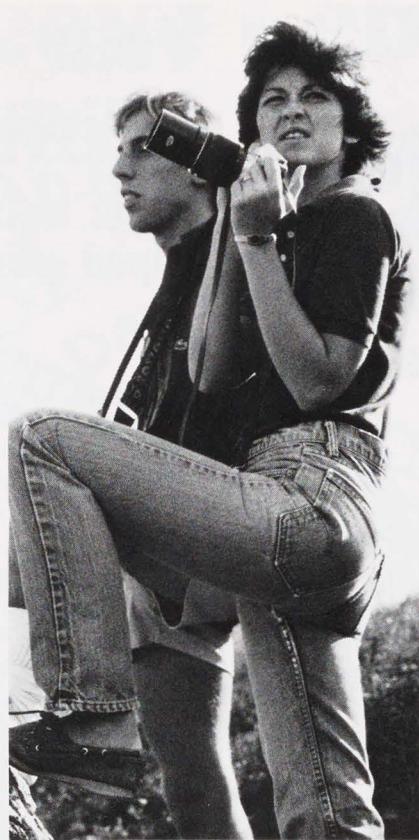

X-tras

The X-tra pepperoni on a pizza from Richard Avenue makes each slice taste even better, just as the pictures on the x-tra pages represent the "x-tra spice" that makes a college experience at Ship one to long remember.

Z zz's

The one illness faced by every student, professor and administrator at S.U. is the lack of ZZZ's. The dreaded ZZZ's attack at the most inconvenient time, like finals week, during a boring class or the morning after an all-nighter. The only cure for ZZZ's is a cup of strong coffee or a soda and a Twix bar from vender-ville.

And just as ZZZ's represent the end of the alphabet, so too they are the end of the 1983-84 edition of the Cumberland.
