Message from the Presidents

At last count, there were 3,559 colleges and universities in the United States. I would venture an estimate that most of them now have or have had on their individual campuses a distinguished or even revered personage of one sort or another. Only one institution, however, has on its campus the first American wrestler ever to win three Olympic medals. Only Edinboro University of Pennsylvania can on this day claim Bruce Baumgartner, who is truly a national treasure, as one of its own.

While the world knows Bruce as an Olympic champion and, by unanimous account and acclaim, the finest super heavyweight wrestler in American history, we at Edinboro University are privileged to know an added dimension of his world-class stature. He is a rather quiet, self-effacing, articulate, mild-mannered and often humble young man who is an outstanding scholar, teacher, coach, friend, and role model for young and old alike. And all who witnessed his performance in Barcelona and his arrival home know well that he is also a devoted and beloved husband and father. In the sometimes violent world of international wrestling competition, he is clearly a gentle giant. In life, he stands for everything a world-class athlete should represent.

At a special banquet the University held to welcome Bruce back from the Games of the XXVth Olympiad, a new scholarship bearing the name of Bruce Baumgartner was announced. It was most fitting that the lead gift establishing the scholarship should come from the Edinboro University Alumni Association.

The Edinboro University community, its Alumni Association, the State System of Higher Education, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the nation are proud of Bruce for all that he has done and continues to do as a world-beating wrestler and a world-class human being. He is our man for all seasons and all publics, and he will forever be our Olympian and our champion.

His story begins on page three of this issue.

Foster F. Diebold, President
Edinboro University of Pennsylvania

Making higher education a top priority for the 1990s is a growing concern for both professional educators and for the public charged with the challenge of funding it. Over the past several months I have reviewed several documents produced by the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education about the 14 System schools.

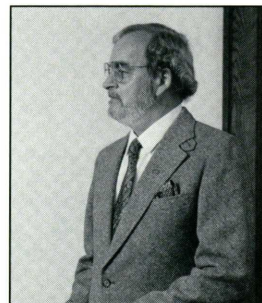

One of those documents, a recent State System planning commission report entitled Priorities, re-emphasized the System's responsibility to offer all citizens of Pennsylvania access to higher education. Rising university costs for student instruction, housing, food services, and activities make meeting that responsibility more challenging with each passing year.

The recommendations stated in the report were put forth to guide the Commonwealth's future actions on behalf of higher education. Among those recommendations is a summary on the aging of the System's facilities. Funding for new construction ceased several years ago, and capital funds for needed renovation and repair have not been included in recent state budgets. Monies earmarked for instruction often must be deferred to critical maintenance. In the maintenance area alone there is a statewide shortfall in excess of $200 million.

It is vital that each of us take some time to make the members of the state legislature aware of the urgent need for support and funding for the 14 universities of the State System of Higher Education. We need each of you to call, write, or visit your state representative and state senator. They must understand that we all feel the pressing need for positive legislative action to keep higher education accessible to all Pennsylvanians.

We must not lose sight of the necessity for education beyond grade 12 in our changing world. Increased scholarships, coordinated teaching and learning, faculty development, global awareness and an extended emphasis on ethics will be critical aspects in our continued quest for excellence in higher education. Together we can ensure the future role that Edinboro University can play in that process.

BRUCE!

Bruce! Bruce! Bruce!

No other word was needed. Thousands of friends and fans chanted the name of one of the world's greatest athletes as he stood before them in Edinboro University's McComb Fieldhouse. In his left arm he held his two-year-old son Bryan. By his side was his wife Linda. He raised his right hand to acknowledge the standing ovation that went on and on, echoing throughout the building and out into the warm August evening. As the band played, the Olympic flag and the Stars and Stripes were raised behind him, recalling a moment just days before in Barcelona when he stood victorious before all the world, gold medal resting proudly on his broad chest.

Now, Bruce Baumgartner was home. He had been met at Erie International Airport by his family, the mayor of Erie, the media and more than 300 well-wishers. A motorcade, escorted by police cars and fire trucks, drove Bruce and his family through the streets of Erie and down route 99 to Edinboro. Along the way, hundreds of people lined the road. Some waved, some cheered, others displayed homemade banners and signs that read "Welcome Home, Bruce," or "Way To Go, Bruce." The General McLane High School band played for him as he rode by. In Edinboro the sidewalks were packed with people who wanted to witness his triumphal return.

That evening the University and Edinboro communities gathered in the Fieldhouse to hear him speak and to hear others praise his accomplishments. And when the adulation was over, Bruce stayed on to autograph pictures for the ones who look up to him the most – the children.

Who is this giant of a man, who prefers the peace and quiet of his home to the glitz and glamour sought by so many of his fellow superstars of sport?

To the rest of the world he is a three-time Olympic medal winner, and perhaps the greatest super-heavyweight wrestler of all time. To those who know him he is unassuming and down-to-earth – a family man whose most important priorities are his wife and son. If he had lived in medieval Europe, it would not be hard to imagine him as a knight in armor, champion of all things fair and good, riding out to joust against the forces of darkness and evil.

In an age of egotistical athletes who measure their worth not by their accomplishments but by the size of their contracts, Bruce's personal values are refreshing.

First there is his relationship with his wife. Linda is a certified athletic trainer who met Bruce while taping his ankles at Indiana State University, where they both were students. He sends her flowers once a week; she calls him a teddy bear. When he lost to David Gbedjishvili in the 1988 Olympics, she openly cried as an international television audience looked on. When he avenged himself by winning the gold at Barcelona, they celebrated arm and arm.

Second is his son Bryan. Linda accompanied Bruce to Barcelona, but two-year-old Bryan remained in Edinboro. Bruce said the nearly four-week separation from his son, during which he missed Bryan's second birthday, was the roughest part of the Olympics. From the moment Bruce and his son were reunited in Erie, Bryan was seldom out of his father's arms. As Bruce met the cheering crowd at the Erie airport, at the news conference, during the long motorcade, and even at the noisy reception at McComb Fieldhouse, Bryan was right there with his father.

Third is his garden. A 1988 Los Angeles Times story noted the Olympics that year would cause Bruce to miss the first crop of melons. He spends much of his summer time in his 30' by 60' garden raising eggplant, tomatoes, asparagus and potatoes.

Two-year old Bryan is intrigued by his father's newest medal, as Bruce and Linda talk to the media at an airport news conference.

Fourth is his integrity. Even before winning the gold in Barcelona, Bruce had been approached by the "professional" wrestling industry and tempted with large, six-figure contracts. Would Bruce the teddy bear become Bruce the Braggart, Bruce the Barbarian or even Bruce the Bizarre? How about a Bruce and Bryan tag team in a few years? Might we see Linda leap into the ring at a critical moment and strangle Bruce's opponent with his Olympic ribbon?

Not a chance. Bruce's world is wrestling – real wrestling. The other kind is show business, and Bruce is not a show biz guy.

Fifth is coaching. The evening before he was to wrestle for the gold, he called Edinboro Vice President David O'Dessa to check up on a promising recruit. At one of the most important moments in his wrestling career he was thinking more about his team than he was about his gold medal match.

In a story in USA Today, Bruce talked about using coaching skills to improve his own wrestling. "Coaching has really opened up my mind to the overall mental picture," he said. "When you teach you have to break things down into parts."

The person who knows Bruce the best may be his friend Doug Watts, coach of Edinboro's track and cross country teams. Watts has known him since Bruce came to Edinboro in 1984, but it was the arrival of Bryan that really solidified their friendship. When Bruce and Linda went to Barcelona, it was Doug and Margaret Watts who kept Bryan. A family photograph of the three of them hangs in Watts' office.

According to Watts, Bruce is the personification of honor. "He would never do anything – not even contemplate doing anything – that would tarnish his image. He's a dinosaur in today's world of sports. He still holds onto the ideals of the Olympics. He absolutely will not compromise on principles of the Olympic creed."

Watts has two images of Bruce: one is that of him very gently playing with Bryan on the living room floor. The other is one he saw for the first time nearly two years ago at a USA/USSR wrestling match in Pittsburgh. "When he got on the mat to face his opponent he scared me to death," said Watts. "The look on his face was scary. He was not the same person that I see playing with his son."

Watts saw that same look again when Bruce wrestled Canadian Jeff Thue for the gold medal. "As soon as I saw that look I knew the match was over."

To fully understand Bruce and the motivations that made him a gold-medal Olympian, one must understand his roots. Bruce grew up in Haledon, New Jersey. His parents did not push him into sports, but did instill in him the philosophy of commitment. "They didn't care what sport I played," said Bruce, "but they told me whatever sport I chose I had to stick out. I didn't have the option to quit."

He was something of a late bloomer in wrestling. Introduced to the sport at the age of 13 by his older brother Bob, Bruce gradually improved until he took third in the state championships in his senior year in high school. A respectable showing, but not indicative of the greatness that was to follow.

There was, however, another sign of Bruce's athletic abilities. He joined the track and field team to stay in shape for wrestling and placed third in the state in shot put in both his junior and senior years.

It would have been easy for Bruce to follow in his brother's footsteps to play football, but Bruce had no interest in the sport. He is motivated by competing one on one, man against man. "I enjoy the battle, the combat," he said.

He accepted a scholarship offer at Indiana State University and suffered through a lackluster freshman year both in the classroom and on the mat. As he was about to enter his sophomore year he thought about the advice his father had given him: "Do your best, make something of your time."

Bruce took the advice to heart. He became a three-year NCAA All-American, finishing second in his sophomore and junior years before winning the national championship as a senior. He finished his collegiate career with a 134-12 record. His only loss in his junior year was in the national championship finals and his record in his senior year was 44-0.

He devoted himself equally to his studies and graduated with a 3.78 grade point average. "The difference between getting a C or getting a B is not that much," he said. Bruce realized that all it took to be an A student was an extra hour or two of study each week.

He became an assistant coach at Oklahoma State where he earned a master's degree in industrial arts education in 1984. That year was a milestone in Bruce's career. Not only did he win the gold medal at the Olympics in Los Angeles, he also was named the assistant wrestling coach at Edinboro.

Bruce believes he is world champion in large part because he took his parents' advice.

He always tries to do his best in whatever he does. "I want to be the best father, the best husband and the best wrestling coach I can be," he said.

Since his triumph in Barcelona, Bruce has become northwestern Pennsylvania's international celebrity. Hundreds of organizations and individuals have asked Bruce to speak or make an appearance. He accepts only one or two a month and tries to choose those which will benefit the most people – especially the youth.

Bruce said he doesn't have heroes, and he doesn't want to be a hero. "I'd rather be a role-model to people than a hero," he said. "I want people to appreciate me for my lifestyle."

Whatever words one chooses to describe the influence of Bruce Baumgartner, he stands now and for ages to come, as a brilliant point of light, a living example for others to follow. He is proof that having principles and sticking to them is important, that hard work and dedication do pay off, and that a loving wife and family are greater reward than fame and fortune.

And, above all else, he is proof that nice guys do indeed finish first.

On Saturday, September 12, the University honored Bruce with a dinner in Van Houten Dining Hall. More than 400 friends shared the special night with Bruce and his family. During the ceremony, Vice President O'Dessa announced the creation of the Bruce Baumgartner Scholarship.

As of this writing, more than $10,000 has been raised, making it a fully-endowed scholarship. Anyone interested in making a donation to the scholarship fund may do so by calling the development office at 814-732-2856.

Trainer George Roberts Serves in Barcelona

One of the nation's leading athletic trainers, George Roberts is pictured here helping wrestler Nick Pedockie strengthen his knee following surgery.

While U.S. athletes vied for the gold on the world stage, Edinboro University's Head Athletic Trainer George Roberts worked behind the scenes at Barcelona to make sure that America's Olympians were fit to compete.

Roberts was a member of the U.S. Summer Olympics Medical Staff – 34 volunteer physicians, trainers and other medical professionals – which provided 24-hour-a-day medical care and training to 600 U.S. Olympians.

In going to Barcelona, Roberts became the first American athletic trainer to be invited back to a second Summer Olympics. Roberts' first Olympic experience was at the 1984 games in Los Angeles, where he was the first high school trainer chosen for the Olympics. Usually, medical staff only serve at one Olympics and then are "retired" to allow others the opportunity to participate. This year however, Bob Beeten, the senior manager of sports medicine for the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC) and founder of the volunteer program, decided to bring back a former Olympic trainer to help coordinate the new medical staff. The person he chose was Roberts.

Fittingly, Roberts' career began at Edinboro where he received his bachelor's degree in 1976. He then earned an athletic training certificate at West Chester University and M.Ed. degrees in health science from Slippery Rock and school administration from Edinboro.

In the fall of 1976 Roberts began teaching at Titusville High School and became its athletic trainer. About that same time he wrote to Beeten to ask to join the Olympic staff. Beeten rebuffed him by saying there was no way an unknown trainer could work for the USOC.

Roberts persevered and in 1979 sent a second request to Beeten. This time Roberts was invited to the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs for two weeks in July of 1980 – the same year as the U.S. boycott of the Games in Moscow. At the time he had no idea it was the first step in the screening process of becoming an Olympic trainer.

The next step was the 1981 National Sports Festival in Syracuse where he worked for nearly four weeks. Roberts still had no idea what it would lead to. In 1982 he was invited to the National Sports Festival in Indianapolis, and a year later he was called to the World University Games in Edmonton, Alberta, and a third National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs.

In a talk with Beeten, Roberts learned that all of these events were qualifiers for the Olympics. The USOC wanted the best medical team possible, and by successfully participating in these events, Roberts had proven himself. Thus, in 1984, Roberts became a staff member of the U.S. Olympic Team.

After his return home to Titusville, Roberts decided to make his career as an athletic trainer. In February of 1985 he left the high school to take a position with Hamot Medical Center's sports medicine program in Erie. Five months later he became the head trainer at Edinboro.

Although Roberts considered himself retired from the Olympics program he continued to participate in international sporting events. In 1987 he was invited to the Olympic Sports Festival in North Carolina where he was named coordinating athletic trainer. "It was a very demanding assignment," said Roberts. "I oversaw 14 doctors and trainers for four weeks. It gave me very good, intense experience in administration that I hadn't had before."

Prior to the 1992 Games, Beeten decided to ask a former Olympic trainer return to help coordinate the new staff. With his experience in North Carolina, Roberts became a natural choice for the job.

"When I got the invitation I thought about not going," said Roberts. "I told them I didn't want to be on an extended tour." With that understanding Roberts accepted the challenge.

His job began nearly four weeks before the start of the games. The medical staff spent one week in Tampa, Florida, for what is called out-processing – getting the athletes their physicals, supplying them with uniforms, and meeting with sponsors. From there the team flew to Barcelona for two weeks of preparations. Roberts said the athletes needed a period of acclimation to get used to the time change, the food and the environment.

The medical staff routinely put in 16-18 hour days taking care not only of the athletes, but also the coaches, administrators and even the news media. Roberts spent most of his time with the diving team and later the pugilistic sports – wrestling, boxing, and taekwon do.

Roberts promised himself that in Barcelona he would do something he hadn't done at the 1984 Olympics – enjoy himself. "I decided that I would do my job and work very hard, but I would also take time to enjoy the experience – look at the sights, talk to the people."

"Barcelona is a beautiful city. Our village was built right on the Mediterranean Sea. The boxers would run on the beach at sunrise and I would ride along with them on a bicycle."

There were several highlights for Robert's during the Olympics. He was in Bruce's corner when he won the gold medal and he helped wrestler Kenny Monday recover from a very serious arm injury. The greatest professional reward, however, came from simply working with his colleagues. "It was the most challenging thing I have ever done," said Roberts. "It was a great educational opportunity. I learned so much. It was something that very few people got to do."

Roberts has established himself as one of the nation's leading athletic trainers, and has worked with some of the greatest athletes in the world. Might he be interested in moving to a high-profile, high-salary position with a professional team or a major university?

"I have absolutely no desire for professional sports," Roberts said emphatically. "I have one of the best jobs in the country. We have excellent facilities and the support of the University. Unlike the big-name schools, there is not a lot of pressure from the outside. This is a very good job for a trainer and Edinboro is a great place to work."

fy her. Collet usually competes against other athletes who, like herself, have cerebral palsy. But Paralympics officials ruled she would also have to compete against amputees, who are generally better athletes than those in Collet's category. In her three events, Collet finished behind only the amputees – no athlete with cerebral palsy finished ahead of her. If she had not been reclassified she likely would have returned home with three gold medals.

Still, Collet believes it was an honor to represent the United States. The most thrilling part for her was swimming in the same pool that the able-bodied Olympians had competed in just a few days before. Her parents and her grandmother also made the trip to Barcelona to watch her compete.

Boyd said the Paralympics was one of the most moving experiences of her life. "I'll never forget the opening ceremonies, walking with the U.S. team through the tunnel into the stadium and looking up to see 65,000 cheering people.

"The people of Spain were wonderful," said Boyd. "Every venue was packed. People were standing in line to get into the events and scalpers were charging $60 for tickets."

Boyd had coached at international events before but had never seen anything of this magnitude. She said the three-hour closing ceremony was identical to the Olympic ceremony, including the 45-minute fireworks display.

She gives Edinboro much of the credit for her selection to the U.S. Team. Without the University's support of the disabled program, she doubts she would have gone to Barcelona. She said Edinboro has given her and the athletes the opportunity to travel and be competitive.

E dinboro University had more than one athlete in Barcelona this year. Suzanne Collet, a junior from Pittsburgh, placed fourth in three swimming events at the 1992 Paralympic Games, which were held September 4-14. Collet took fourth place in the 50-meter backstroke, the 50-meter freestyle and the 100-meter freestyle. She was joined by her coach, Robin Boyd, the physical activities coordinator for Edinboro's Office of Disabled Student Services. Boyd was one of the coaches selected for the Paralympic Wheelchair Sports Team.

The Paralympics were held at the same sites as the Summer Olympic Games. More than 4,000 athletes from 92 countries participated.

Collet, the only child of Richard and Carol Collet of Pittsburgh's South Hills, earned a spot on the U.S. Disabled Sports Team by winning eight medals in national competition last year in Long Island, New York. There she won four gold, two silver, and two bronze medals. Although she did not medal at Barcelona, she set personal best times in all of her events.

Her outstanding performances came in spite of the decision of the officials to reclassi-

Homecoming – Alumni Return for a Wonderful Weekend!

Whether it was playing in the Friday golf outing, performing "Scotland the Brave" in the alumni marching band, cheering on the Fighting Scots at the big game, running in the Sunday 5-K race, mingling with the throngs downtown, or a myriad of other possibilities, Homecoming Weekend 1992 at Edinboro offered something for every graduate returning to the 'Boro.

Quintessential autumn weather enhanced the weekend's activities: the trees had begun to change color and the air hinted at cooler weather to come, but the sun shone in a clear blue sky, creating the perfect setting for Homecoming. Two new additions to the festivities were well-received; both the Friday golf outing and the Sunday 5-K race and fun walk were thoroughly enjoyed by the alumni and friends who participated. Both are sure to be a part of Homecoming next year and in years to come. Special thanks go to the planning committees.

Bill Rohde '51 acted as chair for the golf outing, assisted by Al Huntley '52, Al Stone, Tom Come '50, Janet Bowker '84, Bill Reed, and Fred Burkey. Pre-outing coffee and rolls, a four-person scramble format for the outing, and post-game refreshments and an awards ceremony highlighted the event. Proceeds will benefit the General Alumni Scholarship Fund and the Alumni Football Players Scholarship.

Jeff Lemley '78 and '84 chaired the 5-K Run for the Clock and Fun Walk committee, working with Patty Moore '79, Cindy Patton '80, and Cheryl Blumenfeld '79. The 5-K race got underway at 8:30 am, beginning near the back of Sox Harrison stadium, and winding around campus and back into the stadium to finish. A number of age, gender, and other category awards were made, and a variety of raffle prizes were distributed to the participants. The Fun Walk, which began at 10:30 a.m., featured walkers of all ages, as Runners limbered and stretched in anticipation of the 5K Run for the Clock. There were 80 entrants in the race, ranging in age from 8 to 70. The race was won by Edinboro student Pete Fixler in 15 minutes, 42 seconds.

Joe Shrader '91 placed second in the 5K race with a time of 22:08. Race committee member Cheryl Blumenfeld '79 presented him with his prize.

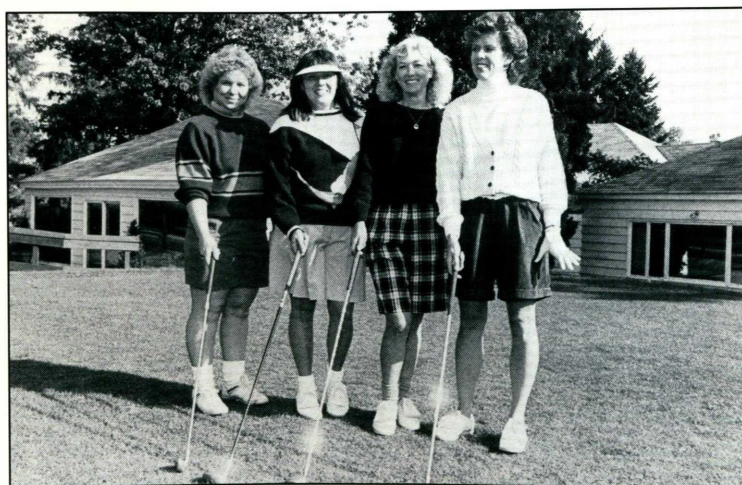

Alumni Board of Directors president Dave Sheneman '64 and vice president Dave Irlbacher '73 treated the children along the parade route to candy, compliments of the Alumni Association.

Even alumni kids got into the act as they carried the Alumni Marching Band banner in the parade.

well as babies in strollers and puppies on leashes. Special thanks go to Patricia Diebold ('82 and '91), Dr. Marilyn Shearer, and Linda Mukina ('74) of the Miller School for their enthusiastic support of this new Homecoming event. Proceeds from the run will benefit the Karen Snyder Wilson fund to purchase the clock for the Normal Hall Clock Tower.

At the Friday evening President's Reception, Bruce Baumgartner was presented with a plaque by alumni board president Dave Sheneman, naming Baumgartner an honorary member of the Alumni Association. Sheneman also announced that the Board of Directors had made a $1,000 gift to a new Bruce Baumgartner Wrestling Scholarship on behalf of the Alumni Association. The Saturday parade, called A Tribute to Dr. Seuss, delighted children and their parents with its floats featuring Horton, the Cat in the Hat, and other Seuss characters. At the football game, the Fighting Scots, who trailed the Clarion Golden Eagles 17-7, scored 19 points in the fourth quarter for a final 26-17 victory.

The weekend was also highlighted by countless reunions, both planned and unplanned. Smiles, cries of recognition, handshakes, and hugs abounded and really were what this favorite of all events for Edinboro's graduates is all about. Already many graduates are, no doubt, planning their return for homecoming next year. If you haven't already, mark October 8-10 on your calendar now for Homecoming 1993.

Rusty Pontiere '78 was one of more than 40 grads in the Alumni Marching Band, which provides one of the highlights of the parade.

Edinboro's First Black Homecoming Queen: A Twenty-Year Retrospective

The year was 1972: a burglary at the Watergate Hotel in Washington, D.C., set the stage for one of the biggest scandals in American history . . . Israeli athletes were killed by terrorists at the summer Olympics . . . the Miami Dolphins were on their way to an unbeaten, untied season . . . and Edinboro elected its first black homecoming queen. Some of the popular songs were The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face, American Pie, and Black and White. That last song, by Three Dog Night, could have served as the theme for Bonnie Ray Johnson's campaign as she became Edinboro's first black homecoming queen.

Bonnie and I were among the small group of minority students at the 'Boro in the early seventies. A speech and hearing major from Hershey, Pennsylvania, Bonnie was a very charming, warm-hearted, down-to-earth person. She was a member of several campus groups including Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority (AKA) and the Association of Black Collegians (ABC). A unified effort by these groups made her ground-breaking campaign a success.

In September 1972, the main order of business at the ABC's regular meeting was to select a homecoming queen candidate; Bonnie became our unanimous choice. Together, the members of ABC and AKA formed two committees: one to plan a homecoming party and the other to produce signs and posters for Bonnie's campaign. Being an art major and already in the habit of making colorful signs for football and basketball games, working on the publicity committee was right up my alley!

The themes we used for the campaign included "Bonnie for the 'Boro," "Brotherhood Means Bonnie," and my contribution (which became a predominate theme) "Bonnie – the Beautiful Experience." One of the posters our group created used the lyrics from the Three Dog Night tune I mentioned earlier:

A child is black/A child is white/The whole world looks upon the sight/A beautiful sight.

A photograph on that poster featured Bonnie with children of both races. I also made signs on the sides of my hat. (I got the idea from seeing buses in New York with long billboard signs above the windows on each side.) Professors, townspeople, and friends laughed but were impressed with my extra efforts. During the last week of campaigning, we led our caravans through campus. Despite my head cold, I managed to help our group shout slogans for Bonnie. While some of us were screaming our heads off, Bonnie quietly campaigned. She visited the dorms, took time to talk with many students, and left a favorable impression on everyone she met.

On Thursday night of homecoming week, a huge crowd gathered at the site of the pep rally. It was located behind the University Center, not far from Mallory Lake. I was too excited to study for an exam the next day, so I left my apartment and walked toward the site. Powerful loudspeakers carried the sounds of the festivities across campus. As I got closer, the three finalists were named. Second runner-up: Nancy Swope. First runner-up: Luci Smith. Homecoming Queen: Bonnie Johnson! All of us who worked on her campaign wildly congratulated each other. The fireworks were the equivalent of a 21-gun salute. What a joyful noise it was! It seemed to say to us, "Well done! You deserve this honor!" News of Bonnie's success made the Pittsburgh papers, including the city's well-known black newspaper, the Pittsburgh Courier.

On homecoming day, it rained, and the Scots lost the football game, 17-7. But the rains and defeat on the field didn't dampen the spirits of Miss Johnson and her supporters. We enjoyed a feeling of accomplishment and a sense of brotherhood. This hadn't just been an all-black effort. People of different races worked together for our victory. It isn't often you get to be a part of history, especially during your college years.

Seeing Bonnie Ray Johnson become Edinboro's first black homecoming queen allowed me to be part of Edinboro's history and proved that when people of all races work together, good things can happen.

– J. Gregory Olverson '74

Bonnie Johnson Glass '74 received her master's degree in speech pathology from the University of Northern Iowa. She and her husband currently live in Harrisburg, Pa., where they are raising their three children. Glass is a speech and language clinician for the Harrisburg School District.

James Gregory Olverson '74 lives in Pittsburgh where he was recently honored as a 10-year volunteer by the Radio Information Service, which broadcasts articles and books to the blind in the Pittsburgh area.

Legacy Weekend

Edinboro alumni brought their children back to campus on July 17-19 for the second annual Legacy Weekend. All were made to feel welcome across the campus. Bunking in Dearborn Hall gave the kids an idea of what dorm life is like, and wandering the campus and enjoying the sports and recreational facilities gave rise to the notion that college isn't all work. The grads were quite surprised by the meals they had at Van Houten Dining Hall – all agreed that cafeteria food at Edinboro has greatly improved since their days on campus.

Saturday afternoon featured a series of presentations about Edinboro University for grads and their college-bound children. Topics included academics, admissions, financial aid, student support services, and career planning. Younger children were entertained during the sessions with a variety of supervised activities that included swimming, bowling, arts and crafts, and games. Campus tours, a festive picnic, and a Sunday farewell brunch rounded out the weekend's activities at this increasingly popular alumni event. Plan to be here next year with your family!

Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter

Edinboro graduates who live in the Pittsburgh area enjoyed a family picnic sponsored by the Three Rivers Chapter of the Alumni Association on Sunday, August 16. The chapter planning committee – including Debbie Shearer Bicanovsky, Jeff Lemley, Jack Wisniewski, Bob Krut, Rick Getkin, and Art Guzzetti – is now planning future alumni gatherings in the Pittsburgh area. For more information, or to share your ideas for an alumni event in your area, call or fax the Alumni Office.

Jamestown (NY) Area Alumni Meet

Jim Alexander '73, has been hoping to see the organization of a Jamestown/Warren alumni chapter for a long time. This September, he and Pam Haugner '72 and '76 organized a kick-off event for a chapter in their area. An enthusiastic group of fellow graduates met with them at the Dynasty Restaurant in Jamestown, New York, for an early evening social hour, where all who attended joined in planning future events for the group. The special guests of honor were Frank Johnson, past Director of the Warren Branch Campus of Edinboro, and Wally Jewell, who taught at the Warren Campus. Look for information soon about future events in the Jamestown/Warren area.

Freshmen Welcomed by Alumni Association

Edinboro freshmen and their families were welcomed to Edinboro at a move-in day open house on August 30. More than two hundred attended the event, which was sponsored by the Alumni Association. Children and relatives of Edinboro graduates were specially recognized and received alumni t-shirts. All who attended were offered refreshments, campus information, and a brief respite during an otherwise busy day.

Calling All Grads from the Classes of 1969 to 1979!

A reunion for your classes has been scheduled on campus for the weekend of August 13-15, 1993 (the 24th anniversary of Woodstock!). Reunion committee members include George Gryak, Brett Rutherford, and Edward Ferrang. Early plans for the weekend include a festival of the films from that time, an alumni art exhibition, a dance concert, and seminars about those turbulent, exciting, unforgettable times. Mark your calendars and plan to come back for a weekend of nostalgia and renewing acquaintances, designed especially for the unique time that you were at Edinboro. We still need volunteers to serve on the planning committee. To volunteer, or for more information, write, fax or call the Alumni Office.

Spring Reunion Weekend Set for June 11-13, 1993

The classes of '33, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, and '63 will be honored at Reunion Weekend on the Edinboro campus next June. Don't miss the fun of your class reunion—schedule the weekend into your plans now. You'll be treated like returning royalty all weekend as you enjoy social hours, campus tours, dorm life, the Alumni Day Luncheon, and a gala dinner dance. Committee members include J. Robert Billings and Darwin W. Miller, both Class of 1938; Thelma Pieper Mongera '43; Jane Patterson Cook '48; Martha Rockmore Nelson and Jim J. Tindall, both '53; Jacquelyn Morron Mayer '58; and Marylyn Betz Barone '63. To volunteer to serve on your class reunion committee, or for more information, write, fax, or call the Alumni Office.

How Far Would You Go to Have a Good Time?

Each year the Edinboro Alumni Association coordinates many events throughout the country for grads who want to get together close to home. This year is no exception, and we would like your ideas and suggestions.

Would you enjoy a dinner/theater evening with fellow alums? How about a low-cost family picnic, or an after-work social hour? Would you be willing to coordinate such a program and act as a host or hostess? Please call, fax, or write the Alumni Office with your suggestions.

License Plates Still Available to Pennsylvania Residents

If you haven't gotten your Edinboro license plate yet, you still can. By now, more than 650 alumni and friends who live in Pennsylvania have special Edinboro plates on their vehicles. An Edinboro license plate would make a wonderful holiday surprise for your favorite Edinboro grad! Call the Alumni Office for an application.

Alumni Annual Fund Begins Second Year

ALUMNI ANNUAL FUND – PHASE II

In September 1991, the Edinboro University Alumni Association Board of Directors voted to undertake the most ambitious fund-raising program in its history. The three-year objective was to increase the percentage of alumni contributing to Edinboro University from 11 to 20 percent and to increase the dollars contributed from less than $120,000 to $250,000 annually. (1990-91 statistics were used as the baseline.)

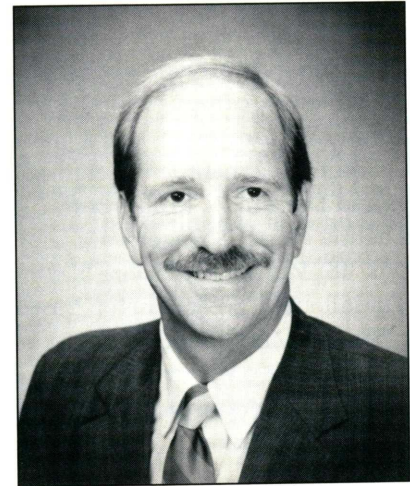

Phase I (the Alumni Annual fund 1991-92) was successful. Overall alumni giving increased by $45,184 or 35.22 percent over 1990-91 totals. At the same time, the number of alumni donors grew by 1,116 or 34.96 percent.

In the critical area of unrestricted gifts, revenue amounted to $99,460.69 compared to $66,023 in 1990-91. That increase of $33,000 enabled the Association to fund the Dean's Scholarship in Teacher Education ($25,000.)

As we approach Phase II (the 1992-93 Alumni Annual Fund) the challenge is to hold the ground we gained in 1991-92 (thereby ensuring funding of the second Dean's Scholarship for the School of Liberal Arts or Science Management and Technology) while raising the dollars needed to fund ten Alumni Merit Scholarships designed to bring excellent students to Edinboro.

The importance of these scholarships is evident when speaking with admissions personnel. In too many cases we have seen top students for whom Edinboro was the university of choice lost to other institutions because they received better financial packages there.

Alumni commitment to this new scholarship strategy underscores their belief that Edinboro is a quality university whose reputation deserves to be enhanced by attracting top scholars.

JAMES W. KIRK NAMED 1992-93 ALUMNI ANNUAL FUND CHAIRMAN

Following graduation from Edinboro in 1974, James Kirk remained in the Edinboro area and began working for Pennbank, formerly Security Peoples Trust Company, in the loans division. He steadily advanced with Pennbank and in 1983 was named the assistant vice president and commercial lending officer. In November 1991 Pennbank was bought by Integra Bank/North. Jim was then named vice president and head of the Small Business Resource Group.

Jim is very active in the community and serves on several boards of directors, to include those of the Northwest Pa. Regional Planning Commission and the Sox Harrison Scholarship.

Through his volunteer work to benefit the Sox Harrison Scholarship, Jim has come to realize the increased need for student aid. "I have seen first hand how the generosity of our alumni and friends can make a difference for these young people who need a helping hand."

Jim said he is pleased to be a part of Phase II of the Alumni Association's three-year plan to raise funds for student scholarships, because Phase I last year was such a success. Alumni across the country were committed to endowing the first of three $25,000 dean's scholarships.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank each person who made a gift to Edinboro University during the 1991-92 fiscal year. Unquestionably, these gifts provided much-needed support to students and faculty and enabled Edinboro to have a very successful year.

In this issue of the Alumni News we have included the annual Honor Roll of Donors. Each individual is to be commended for his or her assistance in preparing Edinboro for the role it will play in developing leaders for the 21st century.

Despite our efforts to avoid them, errors do sometimes occur. If your name has been accidentally omitted or misprinted in this publication, please accept our sincere apologies and notify us. Write to: Institutional Advancement, Reeder Hall, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, Edinboro, PA 16444.

Private Gifts From Friends

July 1, 1991 - June 30, 1992

The Friends of Edinboro University include a wide assortment of donors, including organizations and parents. The benefactors shown here deserve a special thanks from everyone connected with Edinboro University for a very special reason. Their levels of giving have been exceptional year after year. Without the solid base of the many individuals and families represented, Edinboro University could not maintain its tradition of offering an outstanding educational program.

The support of many fraternal, community, and educational clubs and organizations has been of great assistance to Edinboro University.

Memorial Gifts

July 1, 1991 - June 30, 1992

A gift given "In Memory Of" a deceased parent, child, spouse, admired professor or other Edinboro friend provides a thoughtful remembrance. Gifts from bequests or cash, stock, real estate, insurance and other property are used to fund scholarships, professorships, equipment or library needs, and building projects.

The following donors have contributed to the Memorial Gifts program. Not only have they helped students by such generous thoughtfulness, but they have also inspired others to follow their example when in a position to do so.

Employee Gifts

July 1, 1991 - June 30, 1992

Employees of Edinboro University solidly support the mission of the University through their contributions of time and talents. Further evidence of that dedication to our important mission in higher education is demonstrated by the more than 200 employees who provided crucial support through their gifts. They understand the need for external support in a time when state appropriations and tuition cannot begin to meet all the demands of the educational enterprise.

Corporate Matching Gifts

July 1, 1991 - June 30, 1992

Through the extra effort of 93 alumni, friends and parents, we have seen an increase in corporate support through matching gifts. The University applauds and appreciates the effort made by these individuals for requesting and completing company forms needed to process these gifts. The interest on their part doubles or, in some cases, triples the value of the original gift.

Normal Hall Clock Tower

July 1, 1991 - June 30, 1992

We sincerely appreciate the gifts of the many individuals who have so generously contributed to this special project. The campaign was launched to provide a touch of added beauty to the campus and to perpetuate the memory of one of Edinboro's most cherished facilities - Normal Hall.

This listing includes only the names of those donors who made gifts during the year July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1992. More than 500 donors have contributed to this fund over the past several years. We are grateful for each and every gift. Completion of this project is expected in the very near future.

Scholarships

Edinboro is proud of its many friends and alumni who have established and/or contributed to our scholarship program. We feel it is important for students to understand that it is this support that allows us to reward meritorious achievement or assist where financial need exists - and we tell them so! Each time an award is made from one of the following funds, the student recipient receives a letter informing him/her of the name of the principal donor.

As the Alumni Association enters the second year of a three-year plan to increase scholarship assistance to a higher level than ever before, we are pleased to provide the following list of scholarship funds that have been established to date.

This year's goals will require an even stronger commitment. The second $25,000 endowment will be created, and $50,000 will be added to award ten grants to incoming freshmen.

Jim's wife, Debbie, received her associate degree from Edinboro in 1991 and is employed by the University. They reside in Edinboro with their children: Jonathon, 16, and Regina, 10.

ANITA SORBO NAMED STUDENT CHAIR

Anita Sorbo, class of 1993, will serve as the 1992-93 Annual Fund Student Chairperson. Anita, a speech and hearing major from New Castle, Pa., truly enjoys being a student at Edinboro. Anita has been named to the dean's list every semester. This semester she is carrying 18 credits – a full load – including her clinical experience.

Anita has experience as a caller for the Alumni phonathon and will serve in a dual role this year as the student manager and student chairperson. Her duties will include assisting with overseeing on-site operations, training callers and preparing written communications for the phonathon.

The focus of the 1992-93 Annual Fund is Phase II of the Alumni Association's three-year plan to help strengthen the scholarship program at Edinboro. Anita is a perfect example of a student who has benefited from a stronger scholarship program. She is a very good student and has maintained a minimum 3.3 grade point average to stay on the dean's list each semester. Like many students, she is responsible for most of the cost of her education and needs other financial assistance. She does receive some federal aid, but has had to assume debts of more than $12,000 over a four-year period from various loans.

Many current and former students have had to secure loans to pay for their education. But the cost of a quality education increases every year. In attempting to boost the scholarship program through the Annual Fund, the Alumni Association is taking a leadership role to help Edinboro students. Anita says, "I plan to give back to the University . . . it's a good program and even if I can only give a little at first, I want to help."

Dr. Ronald G. Coleman to Chair Employee Phase of Annual Fund

Recently elected president of the University Senate, Dr. Ronald G. Coleman has accepted the volunteer position of the Annual Fund chairman for the employee phase. Ron is a full professor in the Speech and Communication Studies department and has been at Edinboro for 28 years.

He earned his B.A. and M.A. from Fairleigh Dickinson University in 1959 and 1963 respectively. He received his Ph.D. from Case Western Reserve University in 1968 and an M.A. in rehabilitation counseling from Edinboro in 1982.

Ron's wife, Lynnette, has earned two graduate level degrees from Edinboro: in 1972 she received an M.Ed. in mental retardation and in 1982 an advanced program degree in school psychology. She teaches in the elementary grades at the Grover Cleveland School in Erie.

Ron and Lynnette have a seven-year old son, Keith, and they reside in Millcreek Township.

Matching Gifts Count!

Corporate matching gifts are a vital source of support for Edinboro University. They literally double – and sometimes even triple – your contributions to the University; however, we cannot receive a matching gift from your employer without your help. We must receive your company's form from you in order to apply for the matching funds.

Many companies generously sponsor matching gift programs. Contact your personnel director to inquire if your employer participates in such a program. Or ask us and we'll find out for you.

Doubling – or tripling – your gift is easy. Just ask your personnel or human resources director for a matching gift form and send it to Edinboro University along with your gift. We'll do the rest to ensure that your contribution and the matching funds benefit the university and its students.

Your gift, whether it can be matched by your employer or not, is vital to Edinboro's continued ability to provide educational opportunities to students.

Over the fiscal year 1991-92, gifts to the Alumni Association and the University generated an additional $12,355.00 as 93 alumni, friends, and parents utilized the matching gift programs of 67 companies to double or triple their own support.

Agreement Signed with Westminster College

An agreement signed recently between Edinboro University and Westminster College is expected to enhance opportunities for northwestern Pennsylvanians to obtain certification as school superintendents and assistant superintendents.

The cooperative program, which will lead to a Superintendent's Letter of Eligibility certification, was signed into effect at a ceremony on the Edinboro campus by President Foster F. Diebold and Westminster President Oscar E. Remick. It is being hailed as a model of collaboration between the public and private sectors of higher education.

Prospective students must meet admission requirements of both schools, and at least 12 credits must be taken under the academic auspices of each institution. Tuition and fees will be based on those at the institution carrying the particular courses. For additional information, contact Dr. Phil Kerstetter, Dean of Graduate Studies, 814-732-2720.

Grants Bring $176,000 for Campus Improvements

The U.S. Department of Energy has awarded more than $171,000 in grant funding to Edinboro University for energy conservation measures the University has planned under DOE's Institutional Conservation Program.

In addition, a $5,000 grant was awarded Edinboro earlier this year by the Pennsylvania Electric Company as reimbursement for an energy conservation study done on two campus buildings – Centennial and Ross halls. The study's findings and subsequent grant money will enable the University to upgrade the electrical boilers in both buildings.

Much of the credit for Edinboro's energy awareness must go to its emphasis on improving energy efficiency, reducing energy costs, and overall energy management. All have been a high priority on the Edinboro campus for several years.

New Machining Certificate Program Announced

Edinboro University has developed a new certificate program in tooling and precision machining in conjunction with the Erie County Technical Institute, the National Institute of Flexible Manufacturing (NIFM), and the Regional Occupational Skills Center.

The program was created in response to requests from the tooling and machining industry. Dr. Jerry Covert, dean of Edinboro's school of science, management and technologies, said there is a critical need for skilled machinists to operate high-tech computerized tools.

The program's math and computer courses will be offered by Edinboro, while the machining courses will be held in Meadville at NIFM and in Erie at the Regional Occupational Skills Center.

Dr. Raymond Dombrowski, dean of Edinboro's Institute for Research and Community Services, said the program is valuable to local businesses because the instructors and all of the machines needed for training are already in place.

Barbara Grippe Named Faculty Intern

Barbara A. Grippe has been appointed faculty intern in the office of President Foster F. Diebold. Prior to her appointment, Grippe served one year as the University's interim director of libraries.

In making the appointment, President Diebold said Grippe served with distinction in the library and will function as a full-time member of the administrative staff in the President's office operating under the title of Assistant to the President. Faculty interns are given full participatory assignments in order to develop a complete understanding of the circumstances and exigencies which affect decision-making and leadership at the top level of the university.

Grippe is a graduate of Clarion University with a Bachelor of Science in Education, and has completed additional studies at Allegheny College in Meadville. She holds her master of library science from the University of Pittsburgh and has completed all course requirements there for a doctoral degree.

After joining the Edinboro library staff in 1962, she had a variety of professional assignments and ultimately served as the coordinator of instructional and information services.

Fisher Featured on 48 Hours

The season premier of the CBS news program 48 Hours featured Edinboro criminal justice professor Jim Fisher. CBS devoted the entire show to the issue of kidnapping.

Fisher is an expert on the kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. He wrote a book on the subject, The Lindbergh Case, and is writing a follow-up book tentatively titled The Ghosts of Hopewell.

Fisher spent three days in July with CBS correspondent Richard Schlesinger visiting sites in New Jersey which played prominent roles in the Lindbergh investigation, including the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, the courthouse in Flemington, and the archives in West Trenton.

New Appointments

Mary Lou Adonizio has been named director of continuing education and special projects. Prior to her appointment, she was director of the business, industry and labor program at Indiana University of Pennsylvania for ten years.

A native of Pittston, Pa., Adonizio attended IUP where she earned a bachelor's degree in sociology in 1979 and a master's degree in adult and community education in 1983. In her new position, Adonizio will oversee the University's external educational program. She hopes to strengthen ties with local industries and begin to offer programs in the Cleveland, Buffalo, and Pittsburgh areas.

Lisa Brown has been appointed director of intercultural relations. Before coming to Edinboro, she was a research associate at the University of Akron's Center for Urban Studies. Prior to that, she was the coordinator of minority admission and retention programs at Miami University of Ohio.

She earned a bachelor's degree in biology at Akron in 1986 and a master's degree in public administration in 1991.

Dr. Donald Dilmore Jr. has been appointed director of libraries. Prior to his appointment he was assistant to the director of libraries at the University of Massachusetts, Lowell.

A native of Newburgh, New York, Dilmore grew up in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area of Texas. He earned a bachelor's degree in literature from Wheaton College and an MBA from St. Bonaventure University. At Rutgers University he received a master of library science and a doctorate in library and information sciences. While working on his doctorate, he served as a teaching assistant at Rutgers' school of communication, information and library studies.

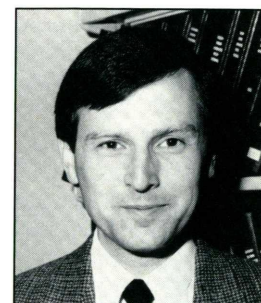

In his new position, Dilmore will be working to tie the library closer to the University's faculty by strengthening the liaison program and providing more information about the library's services.

Three Lady Scots earn Academic All-American Status

The Edinboro University men's and women's swim teams have broken over 200 school records under head coach Paul Stamm, but the exploits of three Lady Scots stand out among the many team accomplishments.

Recently, the College Swimming Coaches Association voted 11 NCAA Division II swimmers Academic All-Americans, and the Lady Scots laid claim to more than 27 percent of the honors. Two-time PSAC Female Scholar-Athlete of the Year Kara Hopkins (Titusville, Pa.) Shannon Schirack (Canton, Ohio) and Mary Martucci (Erie) earned the honors for their efforts in the classroom, as well as in the pool.

Criteria for selection include a minimum grade point average of 3.5 on a 4.0 scale, plus having placed at All-American levels at the 1991-92 NCAA II national swimming and diving championships.

Hopkins and Schirack also played volleyball for the 1991 PSAC runner-up squad, with this past year marking the second consecutive time they have been named Academic All-Americans.

Hopkins, who recently graduated with a master's degree in education, earned All-American honors 15 times during her Edinboro career, including six at last year's national championships. She captained the 1991-92 Lady Scots and finished in the top eight nationally in the 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyle events. She also anchored All-American finishes in the 200, 400 and 800 freestyle relays. Schirack, a secondary education-math major, and Martucci, majoring in biology/pre-med, were also members of the relay teams.

Entering the 1992-93 season, both teams will have to set high goals to better their accomplishments of a year ago. Last March, 14 swimmers advanced to the NCAA II championships and all came home All-Americans. In the classroom, not only did three earn Academic All-American status, but 12 others were honored as Scholar-Athletes by Edinboro University this past spring.

Scot Cagers could be PSAC-West Favorites

When the PSAC men's basketball coaches vote for the Western Division pre-season favorite for 1992-93, look for the Fighting Scots to be selected near the top.

In three seasons directing the program, head coach Greg Walcavich has led the Scots to 60 wins in 84 games, including a conference runner-up finish last season. A 20-9 slate in 1991-92 was good enough for a berth in the state championship game, but once again the Scots fell short of their ultimate goal – a trip to the NCAA II national tournament.

After beginning their 1992-93 pre-season schedule against NCAA Division I Alaska-Anchorage and Alaska-Fairbanks on the road, the Scots face a non-conference schedule,

I doubt that you can find a time in Edinboro history that the schedule has been as demanding as it will be this year. You have to play the best if you expect to perform at championship levels when it counts the most.

We can make a run at the national playoffs.

We have each of the last three years. But our priorities are to win the PSAC Western Division, and that is going to be tough enough. If we advance – great – but there is plenty of work to do before we even start thinking that way.

– Greg Walcavich
Head Men's Basketball Coach

We have to have realistic goals and peak at the right time. Our dual meet schedule is tough and it should prepare us for the tougher tournament down the road.

— Bruce Baumgartner
Head Wrestling

which includes backyard rivals Gannon and Mercyhurst and PSAC Eastern Division perennial powers Cheyney and Millersville.

The good news for the four-year coach is the return of his most experienced group since taking over in 1989-90. Leading the charge will be the team's leading scorer of a year ago, Adam Cheek. The 6-foot 2-inch shooting guard netted an Edinboro single-season record 594 points last year and averaged 20.5 points per game — all when he averaged just 27 minutes of play.

Other returnees include seniors Greg Fox, Sam Dickerson and Junior Simpson; Juniors Lasana Crider, Ron Santiago and Exavier Zollicoffer; and red-shirt freshman Keith Perry.

Fox earned the starting point guard spot a year ago, and the Scots proceeded to win more than 85 percent of their games the rest of the way. He finished the year with 103 assists.

Dickerson and Simpson occupied the middle last season and averaged 3.0 and 7.0 points per game respectively. Both are solid rebounders, while Simpson is the defensive force at center, leading the squad with 49 blocked shots a year ago.

Crider appears to be fully recovered from knee surgery and will press both centers for playing time. Santiago will spell Fox at the point, while Zollicoffer will look to improve on his 6.5 ppg mark of a year ago.

Leroy Bobo, a 6-4 forward from Jordan Community College in Michigan, will look to fill the void left by Aaron Brown. Bobo netted 17.6 points and 8.1 rebounds a year ago.

New Look for Lady Scots

Replacing first-team Kodak All-American Tammy Walker (Edinboro's first ever) is literally impossible, so Lady Scot head coach Stan Swank has set his sights on a "new-look" squad with some familiar faces and plenty of new ones.

The Lady Scots return six players from a team that finished 22-8 and qualified for the NCAA II national tournament. Edinboro has claimed one PSAC crown under Swank and twice has finished runners-up.

Leading the list of returnees will be PSAC West first team choice Jeannine Jean Pierre. The senior from the Virgin Islands averaged 20 points per game last year, playing an average of 35 minutes. Her 581 points were the third highest in Lady Scot history.

Also returning to the fold will be guards Andrea Williams and Pam Artman, and forwards Terri Ayers and Cathlene Criss.

Williams proved her ability to score with 31 points in the season finale. She finished the year with 320 points and 111 assists. Artman was also solid, dishing off 85 assists and scoring 5.3 points per game.

Ayers will be the Lady Scots' inside force, coming off a year where she grabbed 247 rebounds. Just a junior, Ayers now stands as Edinboro's 15th all-time rebounder with 424.

Swank boasts some top recruits for the upcoming season including Diana Holder, Lori Montgomery and Shauna Nevel, the Most Valuable Player in the 5th Annual North Coast All-Star Classic in the Cleveland area last year.

Wrestlers Eye Division I Top 20

After finishing 30th at the NCAA Division I wrestling championships last season, the 1992-93 Fighting Scots and head coach Bruce Baumgartner will eye the nation's elite and a ranking in the top 20 at season's end.

Under the watchful eye of the Olympic champion, the Scots have made a steady progression back to the nation's top 10 — a position they secured in their first three seasons of Division I wrestling from 1987-89. The Scots return a pair of All-Americans in 118-pounder Lew Rosselli and Tom Shifflet at 142 pounds.

Rosselli has emerged in the national spotlight as one of the favorites for the NCAA Division I national title. Since placing fourth in the 1992 Olympic Trials, Rosselli has gained the experience to gear up for his title run in March. A fourth place finisher in 1990-91, Rosselli redshirted last season and enters this year with 96 career wins against just 23 losses and 4 ties.

Shifflet earned All-American honors last year as a freshman, finishing seventh at the Division I championships. He was voted PSAC and Eastern Wrestling League Rookie of the Year for his 32 wins against just 13 losses and 1 tie.
