NOTE: We make every effort to ensure that your Alumni News arrives in a timely manner. If your magazine arrived late, please accept our apology. The views expressed by subjects of articles are not necessarily the views of Edinboro University and its Alumni Association.

One of the 14 universities in Pennsylvania's State System of Higher Education, Edinboro University is committed to affirmative action for all persons in its educational programs, activities, and employment practices.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENTS

The tragic national events of the recent past have given rise not only to a resurgence of patriotism, but also to a recommitment to the spirit of community, the principles of civility, and the values of community service. What we have seen in the remains of the odious acts of terrorism in New York, in Washington and in our own state are chilling signs that our global village has much to do to bring the ideals of human decency to all of the world's people.

Two years ago, to prepare for the arrival of the 21st century and the new millennium, we established at Edinboro University a "Century of Civility" theme and initiative. Our goal was to create opportunities for members of the Edinboro Family to discuss and debate the ideals of civility – which we considered to be those of fairness, tolerance, collegiality and civic responsibility – and to consider their roles in promoting civil ideals and actions in every aspect of their lives.

We revisited the civility initiative last year with a new theme, "Enabling Access to Academic Excellence in a Civil Community," and then renewed our commitment again this year with the theme, "Building Partnerships for Excellence and Civility."

It is my belief that educational institutions need to be meaningfully involved with the community they serve, and that we need to teach each other about community, about our values, and about what it means to be a responsible, contributing and civil member of society.

So what have we learned from September 11? I believe we have learned that our collective sense of community, along with our sense of caring, are national treasures. We have learned that an even stronger national spirit has emerged in northwestern Pennsylvania, across our great nation and most of the world. In the aftermath of a tragedy of unimaginable proportions, I think that New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani said it best: "We are all New Yorkers." And Pennsylvanians, Washingtonians . . . we are all in this together. Let us continue to recommit ourselves to the importance of community and civility. Let us remember that those terrifying images of terrorism were the acts of a few, not of many, not of a nation, and not of a people.

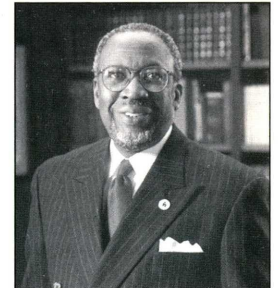

Frank G. Pogue, President
Edinboro University

I hope you had the opportunity to join us recently for Homecoming Weekend. It was another exceptional celebration of this great university that we all honor and love. If you did not have the opportunity to return, please check out the review of activities and photographs in this issue of the Alumni News, or check out the alumni page of Edinboro's website (www.edinboro.edu) for photos.

You will notice that this issue of the Alumni News is again in the "magazine" format. The next issue will be in the "tabloid" format. We have heard from several of you regarding your likes and dislikes about the changes, and I encourage you to continue to share your opinions with us. The Editorial Board of the magazine decided to make these changes for several reasons. The tabloid format gives us an opportunity to provide more information, and even additional color photographs. The current magazine format is limited to black and white internal photos, and less space to share all the great things happening at your alma mater. So, keeping this in mind, again, I encourage your comments.

One other topic I'd like to address is our Volunteer Membership program. On the inside back cover of this issue you'll see a list of names of individuals who have elected to participate in this volunteer program. The intent of this program was to determine if there would be an interest by our alumni in a membership program. Although the information over the last year was not explicit, this membership program was intended to be an annual program, not a "lifetime membership." Those of you who joined last year will receive, if you haven't already, a renewal letter. Those of you joining as a result of the last issue of the Alumni News will receive a similar letter next year. We do apologize for any misunderstanding this may have created, and we are thankful for and encouraged by those of you interested in this additional opportunity to support your Alumni Association!

ARTWORK GOES INTERNATIONAL

"Dare"

The Florence Biennale in Italy is among the most prestigious and comprehensive exhibitions of contemporary art in the world. Edinboro University is nationally known for its successful art program. What do the two have in common? Robert Sherer.

Sherer is one of only a few Americans who has been invited to represent the United States in the international art exhibition, Biennale Internazionale Dell'Arte Contemporanea, also known as the Florence Biennale or the Winter Biennale. The event will be held December 7 through 16 at historic Fortezza da Basso in Florence, Italy.

"Being asked to represent my country in an international venue is a great honor," said Sherer. "Getting to see Florence, the birthplace of the Renaissance, as an artistic guest of the city is perhaps the most personally satisfying aspect of this venture."

Sherer received his MFA from Edinboro University in 1992. "I was a typical art student before attending the graduate painting program at Edinboro; I knew how to dye my hair, act cool and rebellious, and 'express myself' wildly with paint," said Sherer. "The MFA program at Edinboro taught me painting, discipline and professionalism."

"My primary professor in the graduate program, Ben Gibson, encouraged me by making me feel as if I could achieve anything in the world if I just put my mind to it," said Sherer. "He taught me how to balance intellect and emotion in the creative process of art."

Sherer's contribution to the exhibition are two, large-scale oil-on-canvas paintings, one of which is titled "Nuptial Not" measuring 50" x 62" and the other "Insurgent Desires" measuring 50" x 65". (Both paintings are featured on the cover of this magazine.)

The subjects of his artworks are contemporary figures whose actions reflect classical themes of love, death, mystery, rebirth, innocence, mythology, superstition, the unconscious realm, and tragedy.

More than 600 artists from 40 countries will display approximately 1800 works in the historic buildings of Firenze Expo, Florence's premier exhibition space. The Florence during the ten-day Biennale with an estimated 72,000 people attending.

The number of art techniques in this year's Biennale of Contemporary Art has been expanded from three to six. In addition to painting and sculpture, and works on paper, the exhibition will include works in photography, video and digital art.

The Lorenzo Il Magnifico prize will be awarded by the International Jury to the winners of the International Biennial Exhibition of Contemporary Art in the fields of painting, sculpture and graphic art. The Lorenzo Il Magnifico prize is a medal portraying the great Renaissance patron created specifically for this purpose.

Among those included in the exhibition is Charles, The Prince of Wales, who will exhibit two of his own artworks. He said he is delighted at having his works included in this exhibition which is growing in importance and attracting the attention of critics in Italy and abroad.

“Since I have never participated in an exhibition of this importance, it is difficult to say what it will mean to Biennale not only showcases established artists, but also emerging artists seeking an entry into the European art world. The founders of the Florence Biennale, brothers Pasquale and Piero Celona, thought it important to create an international venue where talented career artists could exhibit their latest works and make their presence felt in a panoramic survey of contemporary art.

A full array of cultural events and secondary exhibitions will be included my career," said Sherer. "I have spoken with an artist from the Biennale 1999 who told me that it has opened unimaginable doors for her career." The artist told Sherer that curators and dealers are very impressed when they see the Florence Biennale on an artist's resume. And impressed they should be. Sherer captures the magnificent beauty of his humanistic subjects on canvas and instills a sense of mystery in the viewer.

Because of his commitment to excellence and the rigid discipline he places upon himself, he produces only about ten large-scale paintings per year and several small paintings. He also teaches drawing and art anatomy at the Atlanta College of Art, and painting, drawing, and figure studies at Kennesaw State University.

"Passing along knowledge is one of the truly noble professions," said Sherer. "Due to the slash-and-burn tactics of Academic Modernism, we lost much knowledge that had been handed down from countless hundreds of years. Continuity is very important to me."

He is inspired by those unrecognized artists/academicians who spend their lives engaged in visual study.

"According to my family, I have been drawing and painting all my life," said Sherer. "I can't remember a time without art."

EDINBORO GRAD HAS DREAM JOB WORKING WITH MANATEES

Amanda Sinkovec Wininsky clearly remembers the moment that changed her life. As a 12-year-old girl from Ohio visiting Siesta Key, Florida, with her family, it was almost love at first sight.

No, it wasn't some cute, teenage heartthrob. It was a manatee. A West Indian manatee to be exact, the species of mammal that populate the costal waters of Florida and the Caribbean.

She knew right then that manatees would be a part of her life. "I was determined that I was put on Earth to save the manatees," said Wininsky.

Now, a decade later, her dream is coming true. In September, just months after graduating from Edinboro University, Wininsky landed a job at Tampa's Lowry Park Zoo as a Florida mammals keeper. From 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., four days a week, Wininsky works with native animals such as the Florida black bear, Florida panther, grey fox, and river otters, as well as the manatee.

Wininsky came to Edinboro University from Montville, Ohio, where she attended Ledgemont High School. She started out in general studies, switched to biology her sophomore year and graduated in December 2000. Biology professor Dr. Cynthia Rebar watched her blossom as a student.

"I had her as a freshman in general zoology and then again in a graduate-level course in mammalogy," said Rebar. "She made incredible strides. She knew what she wanted to do and put her mind to it. She was an excellent student in mammalogy."

Rebar credits Wininsky with the initiative to land an internship with the Lowry Park Zoo during her senior year. "She did it herself," said Rebar.

Wininsky was an instant hit with the staff of the zoo. Her dedication, training and enthusiasm were quickly evident. As a result of the impression she made during her internship, the zoo offered her a job.

So, what is it that attracts Wininsky to the lowly manatee? "They're gentle, cute, harmless, and helpful," said Wininsky.

Indeed, manatees can afford to be mild-mannered as they have no natural enemies and are non-predatory by nature, living almost entirely on aquatic vegetation. Distantly related to the elephant, a manatee's best deterrent to attack from predators is likely its sheer size. The largest can weigh as much as 2,000 lbs., with more typical adults weighing around 1,000 lbs.

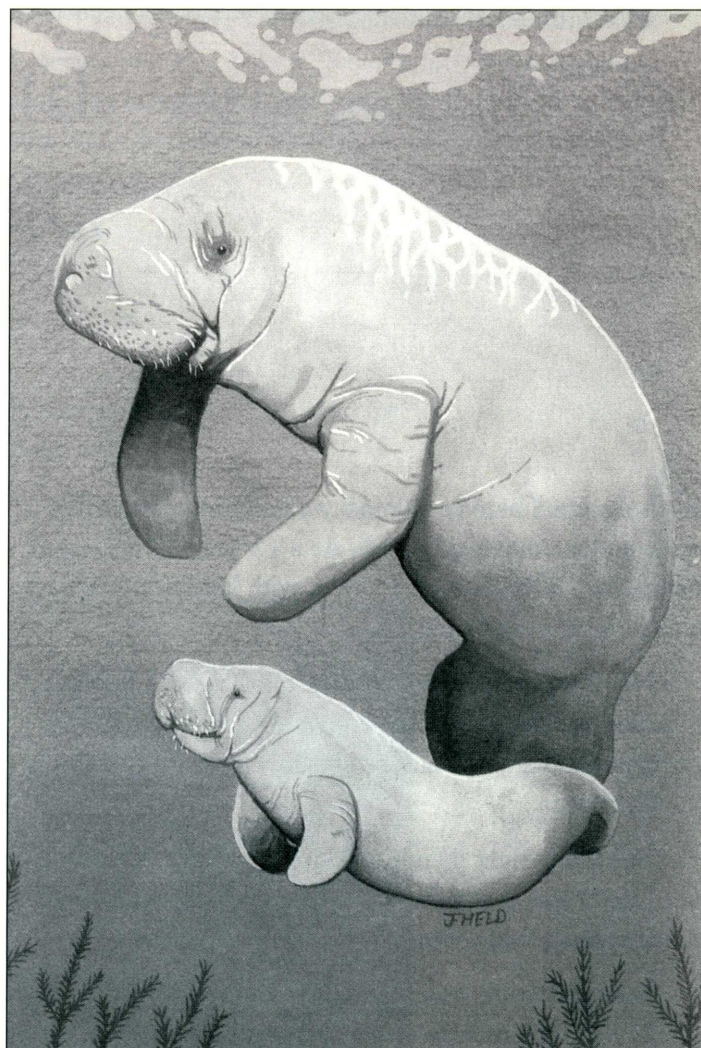

Despite having no natural predators, Florida manatees are an endangered species with only 2,000 remaining in the wild. Their two biggest threats are lethal red tides and humans.

Manatees are air-breathing mammals that live in both fresh water and salt water along the coast of Florida. Because they require fresh water to live, they seldom venture far from coastal streams and bays, and usually do not go deeper than 15 feet. As a result, they come in frequent contact with humans, especially boats. And therein lies the problem.

Because manatees like the same waters that Florida's thousands of boaters do, collisions are frequent. If it is lucky, the manatee will survive with only a scar on its back. But all too often the manatee is either killed outright or succumbs to its injuries later.

That's what happened with Iona, a female who came to the Lowry Park Zoo in the spring of 2000 after suffering a boat strike. She was pregnant at the time and gave birth to Lowry in May 2000. Despite successfully delivering a healthy calf, Iona eventually died in January 2001. Lowry is expected to be released into the wild this winter.

SOUTH FOR THE SUMMER

EDINBORO STUDENT LENDS HELPING HAND TO GUATEMALAN ORPHANAGE

Summer vacations usually conjure up images of tropical locations and white, sandy beaches, but not for one Greene County native.

Just as he's done for the past five summers, Lowell Abbadini packed his bags this year and took off for a small orphanage in Guatemala. This year, instead of traveling with the group from his home church, St. Anne's of Waynesburg, Abbadini joined forces with Dr. Dan Burnham, an emergency room physician at Greene County Memorial Hospital.

Though it was the first solo trip for Abbadini, he noted he was in good company with Bunham, who made similar treks this year and in the past to places like Africa and China.

His visit lasting from May 30 to Aug. 9, Abbadini explained that he made arrangements with the Franciscan nuns in charge of the orphanage to swap manual labor for room and board.

Situated between Mexico and El Salvador and bordered by the Caribbean and the Pacific, Guatemala is slightly smaller than Tennessee but with a much larger population.

Mostly mountainous, the tropical country depends on agricultural production of coffee, sugar and bananas as its largest export and job market. While the cessation of a 36-year-long civil war in 1996 has helped foreign investment, hurricanes and market factors have worked at odds, leaving many of the people in poverty.

Abbadini worked at an orphanage, which doubles as a hospital and school, in the small town of Patzun. The "orphans" of Patzun (translated literally as "home for children") are really the children of the village. Those needing adoption are sent to other orphanages.

"Some parents in the town don't have enough money to feed their kids. Maybe the mom died and the father isn't able to support and care for his children, so they go there," he said.

Other times, Abbadini said, a child may become ill but his parents have no money for the medical treatments, so they leave the child for a month to be cared for. Another reason the children are left, he said, is to gain an education, something few families can afford for their children.

In his visits, Abbadini mostly performed manual labor the school couldn't afford to pay for, such as painting the buildings. This time, he was assigned to teach English to fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade students.

A group of first graders at the orphanage

An environmental engineering student at Edinboro University, Abbadini noted that teaching basic vocabulary to youngsters who never had English lessons was a challenge.

“I didn't know I was going to do this. I was asked when I got there,” he said, laughing.

After graduation next May, Abbadini hopes to use his engineering background in the Peace Corps. But if that should fall through, he said he has every intention of continuing his annual trips to Patzun.

“The people there are really friendly, more when they realize you are staying and not just a tourist. They genuinely appreciate it when you try to speak their language,” he said.

As for the kids, he said, “I got to know them all pretty well. You can't just pick out one or two to favor because they sense it and the others become depressed.”

Perhaps most striking for Abbadini was the cultural differences between the United States and Guatemala.

“It's a different place. Few roads are paved. Some are cobblestone; the rest are dirt. What we think of as homes aren't there. The people live in blockhouses, bamboo houses or (adobe) huts. For water, there is a spigot in the center of town, and women and children haul home water in jugs for five-gallon buckets. Most of the villages don't have running water or electricity. There are chickens everywhere. I don't see how they know which is theirs or if they are just community property, but they live with them,” Abbadini said.

At the orphanage, the kids get three meals each day, the opportunity to bathe daily and an education.

And since the home also has electricity, St. Anne's gave the kids a television and videocassette recorder a few years ago.

“The kids get to watch a movie every few nights, things like Disney dubbed in Spanish, but only if they have all of their work done,” he said.

To share more with the youngsters, Abbadini took some pictures from home.

“We've taken pictures to show them before, but their reactions to our homes is unexpected. They seem shocked and disappointed. I don't know if it is because our houses are so much bigger and wasteful to them or what, but theirs is a freer lifestyle, not as stressful. You don't really notice until you come back,” he said.

SUZANNE DEARMENT DEDICATES LIFE TO REHABILITATING ANIMALS

In 1989, Suzanne DeArment took a trip that changed her life. She traveled to Africa where she witnessed the survival of the fittest. "You can see nature at its best," said DeArment.

Today, DeArment, a 1975 Edinboro University graduate, is a licensed wildlife rehabilitator and president of Tamarack Wildlife Rehabilitation and Education Center, Inc. (TWREC) in Saegertown. With limited help and resources, she provides care and medical treatment to injured, orphaned and ill wildlife and returns them to their natural habitat.

She started volunteering at the original Tamarack Wildlife Rehabilitation and Education Center in Meadville in 1991 where she was trained under Harriet Wilson, founder. Tamarack in Saegertown opened its doors in 1994, and DeArment became its president in 1996.

As a licensed rehabilitator, DeArment can assess each case on an individual basis and determine the appropriate help required for each animal. She advises people what to do if they have found a wild animal in need of attention. Although the majority of her calls are received during the day, DeArment is called upon during the evening and night as well. Education is critical. The proper - or improper - handling and feeding of a wild animal could mean its life. "The biggest mistake one can make is to immediately feed the animal," said DeArment. Each animal has its own nutritional needs and tolerances. Even the smallest amount of improper nutrition can cause problems ranging from diarrhea to metabolic bone disease.

“It is a 24-hour-a-day job,” said DeArment. “It’s not just rehabilitating the animals, but educating the public as well.” In addition to her wildlife rehabilitation license, DeArment has a general license that allows her to take in animals that are disabled and do not have the ability to fly. These animals are used for educational presentations both on and off site to schools, colleges, social clubs and civic clubs. Tamarack currently has a great horned owl, a saw-whet owl, a peregrine falcon, a merlin and a red-tailed hawk for this purpose. Other residents include iguanas, a corn snake, and box turtles.

Besides maintaining the daily functions at the facility and offering educational classes to the public, DeArment also provides training to those who volunteer at TWREC. She has three individuals under her license who can take care of animals at their homes. In addition to this help, women from the Cambridge Springs Correctional Institute work at the facility on a limited basis.

Even though there are four rehabilitation centers in northwestern Pennsylvania, the Tamarack facility in Saegertown is the largest and can serve not only birds, reptiles, raptors and mammals, but also rabies vector species and endangered or threatened species. Between May and September of this year, Tamarack assisted more than 800 animals.

TWREC receives no funding from the local, state, or the federal government. It relies on private and corporate donations. To offset the cost of the daily operations, several fundraisers are held throughout the year. TWREC memberships are also available on an individual and family basis. The center also accepts donated materials such as old knit caps, sheets, pillowcases, paper towels, and bleach.

DeArment hopes to expand her services to the area. She would like to receive training for oil spill response. She hopes to assist not only Pennsylvania but also Ohio and New York. “We are applying for grants to help us set up for spills in this area,” said DeArment. “Right now, we are not set up properly. We have the resources for a small volume spill, but not a big one.”

When watching DeArment handle the educational animals at the Tamarack facility, it is plain to see she enjoys her job and is excellent at it. “The highlight of my day is working with educational birds of prey,” said DeArment. “Another is letting an animal go back into the wild for its second chance.”

RACHEL MESMER LEADS BRIGHTER HORIZONS FOR TROUBLED YOUNG WOMEN

Four years ago Rachel Mesmer graduated from Edinboro University with a bachelor's degree in social work. Today she is the Chief Executive Officer of Brighter Horizons Behavioral Health, a residential treatment facility for young women.

Her title of CEO may be misleading, as Mesmer is just as much involved in working one-on-one with the eight girls who live at Brighter Horizons as are any of the other professionals there. The 17 staff members provide around-the-clock care and supervision to the young women who can range in age from 10 to 18.

After graduating from Edinboro, Mesmer earned her Master of Social Work degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1998 and earlier this year received a certificate in Family Therapy from the University of Pittsburgh. She is a licensed social worker by the American Association of State Social Work Boards.

Prior to joining Brighter Horizons in 1999, Mesmer was a foster care mobile therapist at Beacon Light Behavioral Health, and a mobile therapist at the Sarah A. Reed Children's Center.

Although Brighter Horizons is located just a few miles south of Edinboro in Crawford County, it's likely few people have even heard of the facility, let alone seen it. It occupies a split-level house on a dirt road that is now a dead-end road thanks to the nearby bridge being out. As a result, the residents of Brighter Horizons can repair their lives in near isolation, surrounded almost entirely by nature. Even the neighbors are raising horses and deer.

Mesmer said their off-the-beaten-path location fits in well with one of the overall goals for their clients, which is to give them a sense of safety that fosters healing from the inside out. Many of the young women come from broken homes or foster homes and have been the victims of sexual or physical abuse. All of Brighter Horizons clients are referrals from children's services agencies from the nearby counties of Crawford, Warren and Clarion; and as far away as the Philadelphia and Altoona areas.

Almost all of the funding comes from federal medical assistance programs and there is a waiting list of potential clients. Typically, clients stay six to nine months at Brighter Horizons until their treatment program is complete.

Another goal is to make the facility as home-like and non-institutional as possible. As residents, the young ladies take part in preparing meals and cleaning the house, and are joined at mealtime by staff members to reinforce the family atmosphere. Their home is also their school, with the remodeled garage serving as the classroom and the Northwest Tri-County Intermediate Unit providing the emotional support teacher.

The staff of Brighter Horizons provides a wide range of services including psychiatric and medical evaluation and management services, psychological testing, individual therapy and family therapy. Specialized therapy is provided three times a day in such areas as behavior modification, therapeutic recreation, crisis intervention, independent living skills, drug and alcohol abuse intervention, nondenominational spiritual life and expression through art.

"I believe in promoting potential," said Mesmer. "This is true with regard to myself and the staff, as well as the clients we serve."

Mesmer is not the only staff member with an Edinboro University background. Education coordinator Kimberly Kerstetter, facility manager Mary Dornhofer, primary counselors Julie Metzler, Pamela Morgan, Emily Petrazio and April McIntyre have degrees from Edinboro, as does Shannon Zuck, who works part-time overnight. Two current Edinboro University students, Erin Hanson and Rachelle Mighells, also work as counselors.

It is essential to have "staff members who can build relationships with clients," said Mesmer. That goes hand-in-hand with the mission of Brighter Horizons to offer a "safe, personalized, nurturing, therapeutic environment that promotes recovery and healthy participation in communities."

It is not all surprising that Mesmer has taken a career as a caregiver. Her great-grandfather, Dr. Harold A Ghering, and his brother, Dr. Boyd W. Ghering, were physicians at Edinboro University between 1928 and 1959. The Ghering Health & Wellness Center is named for the Ghering family. Her late father was Dr. Roger Mesmer of Warren. When Rachel Mesmer graduated from Edinboro University in 1997, she became the fifteenth descendant of Edinboro University language professor Jeremiah Link Ghering to receive her diploma from the University.

EDINBORO AWARDED EDUCATIONAL SOFTWARE GRANTS

Patricia Diebold, director of the Miller School, was instrumental in obtaining two educational software grants totaling $81,000 from Point Click Learn, Inc., an Edinboro-based distributor for the American Education Corporation (AEC) and AutoSkills International, Inc.

The "Center of Excellence Grant" for the Advanced Learning System's software, published by the American Education Corporation, gives the University 66 full-license network titles that cover five core curriculum areas of science, social studies, math, writing and language arts. The software will be installed in all Miller Research Learning Center offices, labs and classrooms for the faculty to use in their courses, for the education students, and for faculty and the students of Miller school.

The University also received a full-network license for the Academy of Reading software, an interactive tool designed to develop reading skills for reading-delayed and disabled learners, valued at $12,500.

Students in the Miller School are provided with hands-on experience using the latest technology. Pictured left to right: Laurie Wilde (3rd grade), Maggy Ashton (4th grade), and Ben Kirk (4th grade).

"This wonderful gift is going to allow us to provide more software instruction in reading, writing and mathematics for all the children in the Miller School," said Dr. Scott Baldwin, dean of education. "Students participating in the Boys and Girls Club who are being tutored by Edinboro University students will also benefit from this gift. The software will also be used by professors in order to demonstrate software applications for undergraduate students."

"As an educator myself, I strongly believe in the value and benefit of these two nationally recognized award-winning programs," said Misty O'Connor, president and owner of Point Click Learn. "The use of these programs will not only benefit the students at the Miller School, but the availability of the software for the use of the pre-service students in their methods classes and in the computer lab will give them valuable experience in how to integrate technology into their teaching."

Two Edinboro University art professors have been recognized by Metalsmith magazine, one of the leading magazines for this art form.

An extensive article on Sue Amendolara appeared in the fall 2001 issue of Metalsmith magazine. It focuses primarily on the work she produced during her sabbatical in 1999 and mentions her drawing upon nature as an inspiration and her use of precious and semi-precious materials. Amendolara's inclusion in the magazine is indicative of the national reputation she has obtained.

Cappy Counard Wolf was selected to participate in the "Exhibition in Print" issue of Metalsmith, an issue dedicated entirely to exhibiting the work of outstanding artists in the field of contemporary metalsmiths.

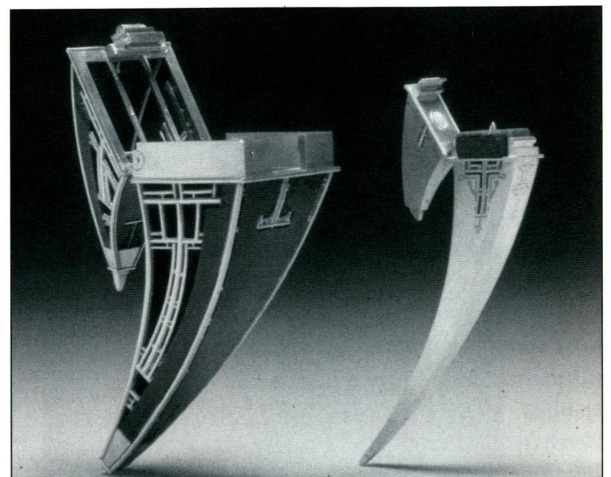

Both Amendolara and Wolf teach jewelry and metalsmithing at Edinboro.

What's Happening on Campus

President Pogue is joined by Dr. Mary Bevevino, dean of graduate studies; Shannon Zuck, graduate student of social work; Dr. Terry Smith, dean of liberal arts; and Dr. Robert Weber, provost and vice president for academic affairs, during a cake-cutting ceremony celebrating the University's progress to date in seeking accreditation for its master's of social work program for the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE). In June, the University crossed the first hurdle in that process by being granted candidacy by the CSWE. The full accreditation process could take as long as two years.

Scott Bloom (left) store manager of the new Wal-Mart in Edinboro, presents a $100 gift card to Helen Kleckner of Findley Lake, N.Y. Kleckner was the winner of a drawing held by Edinboro University at the Crawford County Fair. Taking part in the presentation for Edinboro University is William A. Reed, Jr., assistant vice president for media and community relations.

Bob Lowry, 1946 - 2001

Bob Lowry was not a graduate of Edinboro University, but for more than a dozen years, he was as much a part of the Edinboro family as any person who walked its campus. When Lowry passed away on May 20, he left behind a legacy not only as a photographer, but also as a friend, a father and a husband.

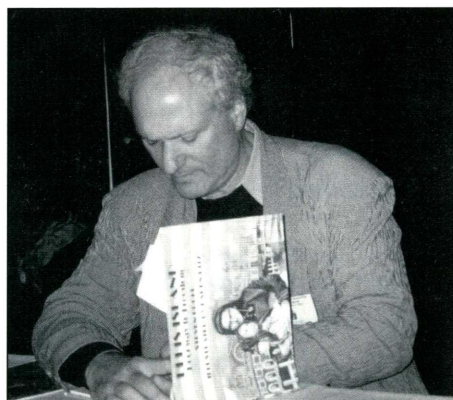

University alumni probably know him best for his many cover shots on the Alumni News. One of his most memorable cover photographs is that of Athletic Director Bruce Baumgartner wearing his three Olympic medals.

Lowry's photographs can be found in dozens of University publications. Whenever there was a major event on campus, you could almost always find him there, scurrying from one side of McComb Fieldhouse to the other.

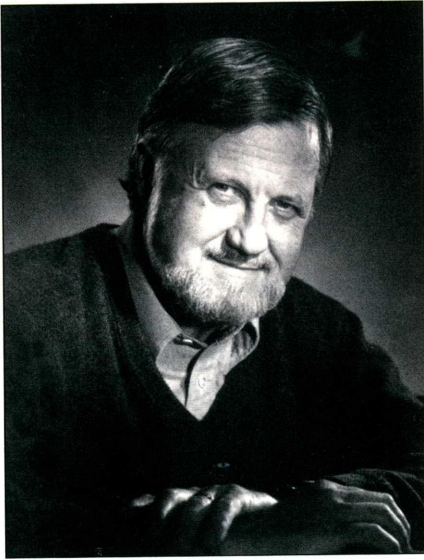

Edinboro President Frank G. Pogue praised Lowry for his dedication to the University. "Bob participated in the recording and preservation of the University's history by telling countless human stories through his remarkable photographs. He will forever be a part of the Edinboro Family, as his work will remain in our chronicles. His unique ability to capture people, images, and emotion cannot be matched. It was clearly evident that Bob's heart was with Edinboro just as ours is with him."

As much as we would like to claim Lowry as "our" photographer, his reputation was regional and national. As a member of the Niagara League, the greater Erie community knew him through his work as the photographer of the Flagship Niagara. One of his last photographs was an assignment for Sports Illustrated.

He served as president of the Erie Advertising Club and was honored with its George Mead and Lifetime Achievement awards. He was a member of the Commodore Perry Yacht Club and Wayside Presbyterian Church, where he served as an elder, deacon and Sunday school teacher.

Bob Lowry's wife, Marion Lowry, has donated much of his photographic equipment to Edinboro's photography program.

Computer Mediated Communication Lab Dedicated

Edinboro University and its department of speech and communication studies recently dedicated its new Computer Mediated Communication (CMC) Lab in Compton Hall.

Financed through a $188,000 initiative grant received last spring by the University from the State System of Higher Education, the CMC Lab houses computers, video editors and other technology to support the education and professional preparation of communication students and broadcast journalism majors. In addition, the lab will be used to offer communication workshops for organizations and individuals in the region, with special emphasis on the needs of non-profits.

"The CMC Lab is providing state-of-the-art experience for students and workshop participants," according to Terry L. Smith, dean of liberal arts at Edinboro. "Computer-mediated communication is already a critical factor in the success of businesses, human service organizations, community groups and individuals, and will become even more critical over the next few years," continued Smith.

In addition to the video application, the University will use the lab for instruction and research in the use of group decision-making software, a recent development for organizations and individuals. The software enables groups to reach more effective decisions, not only through a better understanding of the factors involved, but also through a greater awareness of the group process itself. "So far as we know, right now there is not other college or university with this capability anywhere in the tri-state region," said Smith. "The technology and instruction that will be available through the CMC Lab at Edinboro will enable us to continue filling our leading role in the education of professional communicators."

Campaign for Excellence "Advisory Council of Chairs" Announced

Edinboro University is proud to introduce the members of the leadership roster for the Campaign for Excellence capital fund drive. This group of individuals, each with their distinct leadership, experience and community profile, will guide the University's momentous campaign toward ultimate success.

The Council is composed of a wide array of strong and unique leadership talents. Advisory chairs are (pictured left to right):

R. Benjamin Wiley
CEO, GECAC, Erie

Dennis Frampton
President and CEO of C & J Industries, Meadville

William Starn
President and CEO of Starn Tool & Die and Starn Marketing Group, Meadville

Cheryl Vicary
Past owner of Vitco Industries and local patron of the arts, Erie

Sr. Catherine Manning
CEO of Saint Vincent Health Systems, Erie

Thomas Vicary
Past owner of Vitco Industries and local patron of the arts, Erie

Virginia McGarvey
Community leader, Erie

Harry Thomas, Esq.
Knox McLaughlin, Gornall & Sennett, Erie

The Honorable Joyce Savocchio
Mayor of the City of Erie

A statement from the Advisory Council affirms: "...we feel privileged to serve as chairpersons of the Campaign for Excellence. We are inspired by the palpable energy on campus, and the pride and enthusiasm that faculty, staff, and students have in their association with the Edinboro Family. With your help, the Campaign for Excellence will transform optimism into tangible progress serving our region, state, and nation for generations to come."

As chairs on the Advisory Council, these individuals provide President Pogue and Edinboro University with appropriate advice, counsel and direction to maximize opportunities in the community. Their combined leadership experience and community knowledge and commitment make them eminently qualified for this role, assuring the University's success.

Scholarship Honors W. V. Zahniser

Edinboro University is pleased to announce the establishment of a new scholarship by the family of W. Verne Zahniser in memory of his accomplishments and contributions to Edinboro University, education, and his students.

Joseph Zahniser ('39) and his wife Jean ('68) of Georgia, along with their son David, co-founder and vice president of Scientific Affairs for Cytoc Corporation, Wellesley, Maine, established the W. V. Zahniser Memorial Scholarship to enhance academic opportunities for students enrolled in elementary education with a concentration in reading.

Verne Zahniser taught English at Edinboro State Normal School in the mid 1920s. Professor Zahniser, his wife, Margaret, and their five children lived along the

Thank You . . .

A MESSAGE FROM THE VICE PRESIDENT

This issue of the Alumni News is used each year to publish our donor report. It also provides an opportunity for me to extend a personal "thank you" to everyone who made a gift to Edinboro University of Pennsylvania during the past fiscal year 2000-2001. Thanks to your continued support, our total gift income this year was $1,649,105 – our third highest year ever. We are very pleased that our corporate and foundation giving increased by 15 percent and parent giving improved by more than 400 percent.

Edinboro University is committed to ensuring that higher education remains within reach for all, and that would not be possible without the support of contributors like you. As we begin our Campaign for Excellence, only the second major capital campaign in the history of the University, I hope you will consider an investment in the tradition of Edinboro University for the benefit of those who will follow.

Again, thank you for your gift and your commitment to our students and academic programs. Your donation is truly representative of the University's theme this year – Building Partnerships for Excellence and Civility. It is important that you know your gift will make a difference in the success of our students.

Bruce Q. Whitehair
Vice President for Development and Marketing

NOTE: This donor report reflects giving for the fiscal year July 1, 2000 through June 30, 2001. Every effort has been made to provide the most accurate information possible; however, if you believe information has been excluded, please contact us. Additionally, we continue to update last-name changes as provided; all revisions may not have been made as we go to press.

Working together for our students . . .

NEW SCHOLARSHIPS ESTABLISHED

Edinboro University is proud of its many friends and alumni who have established and/or contributed to our scholarship program. We feel it is important for students to understand that this support allows us to reward academic and athletic achievements or assist where financial need exists – and we tell them so! We are working closely with our recipients to inform them of the name of the principal donor so they may provide the donor with a personal thank you. We are also coordinating scholarship recipient/donor receptions that allow the students to meet the donors and let them know how valuable the scholarship has been in their pursuit of higher education.

Establishing a new annual award, a named scholarship endowment, or contributing to one of hundreds of existing scholarships is just one example of your exceptional support of excellence at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Following is a listing of scholarships established during the past year.

FACULTY AND STAFF

Employees of Edinboro University solidly support the mission of the University through their contributions of time and talents. The employees who provided essential support through their gifts demonstrate further evidence of dedication to our important mission in higher education. They understand the need for external support in a time when state appropriations and tuition cannot begin to meet all the demands of the education enterprise.

ROYAL STEWART LEGACY SOCIETY

Edinboro University established the Royal Stewart Legacy Society in recognition of those who have included Edinboro in their estate plans, thereby assuring the future life and growth of the University. We proudly list these individuals; they are an important part of our University's long-term strength.

GIFTS FROM FRIENDS AND PARENTS

The benefactors shown here deserve special thanks from everyone associated with Edinboro University for a very important reason. Their levels of giving have been exceptional year after year. Without the solid base of the many individuals and families represented, Edinboro University could not maintain its tradition of offering an outstanding education program.

The support of many fraternal, community and education clubs and organizations have been of great assistance to Edinboro University.

MATCHING GIFT COMPANIES

Through the extra effort of alumni, friends and parents, we have seen an increase in corporate support through matching gifts. The University applauds and appreciates the effort made by these individuals for requesting and completing company forms to process these gifts. The interest on their part doubles, or in some cases, triples the value of the original gift.

DESIGNATION LIST

As in the past, your tremendous generosity has supported projects ranging from scholarships to building funds. The Fighting Scot Statute Project and the Honors Scholarship Program are just two examples of growing funds to build a solid future for our campus. (One note, the gifts designated toward the Alumni General Fund have been excluded due to the number of contributors – more than 4,000. Even though we have not included your name here, you are listed in your Class Year giving and other lists if applicable. We appreciate those who support this fund.)

Supporting the mission of public higher education through gifts . . .

MEMORIAL GIFTS

A gift given "In Memory Of" a parent, child or spouse, admired professor or other Edinboro friend who has passed away, provides a thoughtful remembrance. Gifts from bequests of cash, stocks, real estate, insurance and other property are used to fund scholarships, professorships, equipment or library needs, and building projects.

The following donors have contributed to the Memorial Gifts program. Not only have they helped students by such generous thoughtfulness, they have also inspired others to follow their example when in a position to do so.

Fiscal Year Total Giving 1997 - 2001

Northwestern Electric Railway Line which operated between Erie and Meadville and his classes were sometimes divided between the Edinboro and Erie campuses.

Family members recall that he would take the trolley to Edinboro in the morning, and later, on his ride north to Erie, he would toss a candy bar or some such "gift" onto the family lawn to the children as the trolley rumbled by the house.

In 1932, according to the family, Professor Zahniser moved with his family to a house on Water Street in Edinboro, and his classes were conducted mainly in Recitation Hall. He also frequently taught evening extension courses in Warren or Meadville once or twice a week.

The Edinboro Family salutes the memory of Professor Zahniser. We also express our appreciation to his family for their generosity and steps taken to enhance the quality of academic opportunities for students. Through his family's endowment, the memory of Professor Zahniser will be preserved in perpetuity within the life and culture of the Edinboro University campus.

Eligible recipients for the scholarship award will be required to have a minimum of 12 credits and a minimum grade point average of 3.0. Interested candidates should contact the Office of the Dean of the School of Education, or the Financial Aid Office for more information.

Alumnus Donates Sculpture

James Myford, an accomplished sculptor of national reputation, recently donated an original sculpture for the lobby of the Crawford Center for Health and Physical Education and Disability Resources. Myford is a 1962 Edinboro graduate and retired art professor from Slippery Rock University who now devotes his energies full time to art. He and his wife, Bettie, live in Grove City, Pa., where he maintains a studio and gallery.

Myford searched for a way to contribute to the University that would affect students in a meaningful manner. He selected a three-dimensional art piece of abstract design to adorn the front entranceway in the new facility. As visitors circle the atrium lobby and ascend the two-story ramp, the design and its placement will present continually altering perspectives.

Berman Sculptures

Visit Edinboro University and you are bound to notice a few subtle and attractive changes to the landscape of the campus. Three new sculptures, donated by art collector and philanthropist Dr. Muriel M. Berman of Allentown, grace the grounds at various locations.

The larger of two stone pieces, The Ernie Shaw piece, is located in front of the Baron-Forness Library. The Glenn Zweygardt sculpture is located to the west of the library and north of Hendricks Hall. A third sculpture, The Clay Ellis, is placed in an area between Loveland Hall and the Doucette Hall parking lot.

Dr. Berman and her husband, Phillip, have a long history of donating artwork to universities in the State System of Higher Education for the benefit of its students. Large format pieces can be seen on these campuses across Pennsylvania.

Alumni Activities

Homecoming Crowds “Monopolized” by Mixed Bag of Weather

Homecoming in October at Edinboro always proves to be a “best guess” scenario when it comes to weather, and this year was no exception – although we didn’t get any snow!

Friday was mostly cold and wet, briefly delaying the beginning of the 10th Annual Alumni and Friends Golf Outing. The 114 golfers were eager to get started. A hint of sunshine later in the day didn’t last long. The majority of the groups stuck it out as a nasty wind blew and steady rain fell for the last couple of hours of play. Regardless of the weather, everyone was in good spirits and excited about this year’s new format.

The winning group was Ron Palmer ('82), Todd Greenlee and Don Hazlett. There were many opportunities for winning cash and prizes. Everyone had a chance to win a car, a quad-runner, several trips and airline tickets. Upgrades to this year’s event included more beverages on the course, a putting contest and a challenge to “Beat Kirk,” as Board member Jim Kirk ('74) challenged golfers in a “closest to the pin” competition.

Raffle prizes included a TV, CD players, grills, memberships to the YMCA and Nautilus, a myriad of golf supplies, Edinboro University items, and much more. Silent auction items were also available, including memberships to the YMCA and Nautilus, a Campbell’s Pottery vase, an Edinboro alumni tapestry, a newly released Buck Snodgrass Edinboro collage print, and a Scottish sword reproduction. Every golfer received a commemorative Homecoming t-shirt, and a Jim Prokell ('72) print of the Fighting Scot Statue.

The food buffet included a fresh roasted meat selection, kielbasa, pasta, and much more. Many thanks to all the golfers, sponsors and prize donors. Proceeds of nearly $11,000 from this year’s outing will benefit the Fighting

Scot Statue project.

Friday night’s traditional bash at Culbertson’s Golf Resort was well attended, as always. Dance music was provided by Shawn ('91) and Jeani (Koerner, '87) Fallon. The silent auction carried over from the golf outing, as did a large selection of delectable foods, compliments of the Alumni Association. We understand that alumni and friends danced and partied well into the wee hours!

The weather on Saturday was warm and sunny for another great parade, complete with bands, floats, royalty, many walking units and much more! Edinboro University crowned Emily Schultz and John Tkac as the 2001 Homecoming Queen and King. The winning float was submitted by Sigma Tau Gamma and Alpha Gamma Delta. Thousands of alumni, family and friends attended the football game, where the Fighting Scots defeated Clarion, 24-12.

At the alumni tent graduates reunited with classmates, won raffle prizes, and purchased alumni apparel and prints of the Fighting Scot Statue. Artist Jim Prokell was on hand to sign the prints.

(Prints are still available through the Alumni Office - call 800-526-0117.)

The Athletes of the '50s celebrated their annual reunion on Saturday, culminating with a dinner at the Alumni House. There were 25 alumni and guests in attendance, Dick Rose's ('58) photo displays from previous years and an update of the scholarship this group created. Thanks, as always, to Chuck Lodge ('52), Joe Casile ('54), and Bill Starr ('53) for their efforts in bringing this great group together again!

The 10th Annual Tartan 5K Fun Run was well attended by some 30 participants. A warm wind blew hard, but the rain held off until the race was finished. Proceeds of nearly $500 will go to the Alumni Association's General Scholarship Fund in Memory of Karen Snyder Wilson ('79). The first place winners were Jeanne Krause (24:01) and Jim Lang (18:29). The first-time Clydesdale Division winner was Jeff Markle ('75) with a time of 34:50, and the overall Speed-Walk winner was Margaret VanHouten Walker (39:15). Thanks, as always, to Michele Curtze ('72), Rob Lowther ('77), Jeff "Lemonhead" Lemley ('78), and Scott Campbell ('84) and sister Chris at Great Lakes Custom Graphics.

Homecoming 2002 is October 11-13.
Mark your calendars now!!!

Fundraising for Statue Project Enters New Phase

During Homecoming weekend, fundraising for the Fighting Scot Statue project entered a new phase as artist Jim Prokell ('72) presented for the first time the final drawing of what the statue will look like. Jim discussed the project and signed prints of the drawing. Additionally, an advanced order was taken for a limited three-foot version of the statue.

Jim was also on hand Saturday signing prints under the alumni tent. There are a few of the signed prints available for $20.00 (plus shipping and handling) or an unsigned print for $10.00 (plus s/h). Call the Alumni Office at 800-526-0117 for information, or visit the website to view the new print. Watch for additional information in the next Alumni News.

2001 Summer Cruise Recap

More than 80 alumni and friends attended the State System travel program to the British Isles and northern Europe June 23-July 6. The itinerary included Paris; London and Plymouth, England; Cork and Dublin, Ireland; Glasgow, Scotland; Bergen, Flam and Geiranger, Norway; and Amsterdam.

More than 70 alumni and friends joined us for the second round of the 2001 State System and Friends travel program in and around the Hawaiian Islands July 28-August 4. Sailing round-trip from Maui, the cruise also had ports of call on the islands of Hawaii, Oahu and Kauai. Although inclement weather during our group reception kept us from taking a large group photo, some of Edinboro's guests included (pictured below) Renee Walick '79, Lou Guilianelli '70 and Barb Bruskevith '70.

2002 Cruise Information Update

There are still cabins available for the southern Caribbean cruise from January 13-20. Alumni and friends from seven of the State System universities are participating, but all are welcome to join this warm weather cruise at the perfect time of the year. Starting at only $1,090 per person (including air fare, port charges and taxes), this trip would make a great surprise for holiday gift-giving.

The Aegean Odyssey cruise including Greece and Turkey has been CANCELLED. Scheduled in its place is a tour with Orient Cruise Lines that will include four days in Italy, three days in Greece, one day in Malta, all preceded by two days in Rome. The Italy and Greek Isles tour is scheduled from July 2-14, and prices start at $2,194, including airfare and all applicable taxes.

For more details on either of the two cruises being offered or to secure your cabin now, call Tom or Craig at 800-506-7447, and mention that you're with Edinboro University.

“Web for Alumni” to be Launched Soon

Edinboro University has purchased SCT's “Web for Alumni” computer product which will enable our graduates to communicate with the Alumni Office and each other more effectively. This product will allow graduates to log onto a system where they can check and change certain information on their own records and select what information, if any, they want accessible to other alumni. Alumni will be able to search online for information about classmates, submit news notes, respond to surveys, review career opportunities, and much more.

A test phase will occur before official launching of the product, and all alumni will receive a mailing that will provide specific instructions on how to access the site for the first time and what to do next. Alumni will be given a computer generated ID number based on their birth date.

NOTE TO GRADUATES OF 1974 AND EARLIER:

We do not have birth dates for most of you. Please contact us and provide your name (including former names), class year, birth date, phone number and email address. Contact us toll free at 1-800-526-0117, via fax at 814-732-2843, or email eup_alumni@edinboro.edu, and provide this much-needed information.

“Alumni of Color” Reunion Slated for May 3-5, 2001

Edinboro University's first “Alumni of Color” reunion has been scheduled for next May. Designed to provide opportunities for students and alumni to interact, the event will feature social activities, career-oriented workshops and lots of food! Watch your mail for a detailed brochure after the first of the year, and look for updates in the next edition of Alumni News.

We need your help to bring alumni back to campus. If you are interested in assisting with this event, please contact either Janet Bowker '84, director of alumni affairs, 1-800-526-0117 or bowker@edinboro.edu; or contact Georj Lewis '93, director of multicultural programs at 814-732-2912 or glewis@edinboro.edu.

President Frank G. Pogue was joined by alumni, trustees, faculty, students and friends of the University as they gathered at the Marine Barracks in Washington, D.C., for the Marine Corps Evening Parade on August 24. The event, regarded as one of the most dramatic military events in the world, was hosted by U.S. Marine Corps Lieutenant General Gary McKissock, Edinboro class of 1964.

Edinboro Seeks Input from Alumni for Facilities Master Plan Project

The State System of Higher Education Board of Governors policy requires each System University to maintain a current facilities master plan for programming the renovation and construction of capital facilities projects. In order to fulfill this statutory requirement, Edinboro University has engaged the services of D.R.S. Saratoga (DRS), a professional master planning and architectural firm.

The Facilities Master Plan addresses a strategic review, functional analysis, physical analysis, solution development and planning documentation. It also addresses the following issues or trends: organization, financial capabilities, enrollment, academic quality, academic programs, space allocation, site parameters, building architecture, and technology utilization. The master plan document is required to address the components and issues as short-term (0 to 5 years), mid-term (5 to 10 years), and long-term (10 to 20 years).

A project of this magnitude, which charts our course into the future, is a collaborative endeavor. Every effort is being made to solicit input from the entire Edinboro community, including alumni. While the University mission and vision statement serve as our template, perceived needs assessment figures prominently in the scope of this project. Therefore, alumni are encouraged to complete the following short survey and fax it to the Alumni Office at 814-732-2843, mail it to the Alumni Office, or submit it via the online survey at www.edinboro.edu under the Alumni button. (Please use additional paper if necessary.) The future of the Edinboro University campus depends on your participation today.

Alumni Questionnaire - Edinboro University Facility Master Plan

1. What campus spaces, either indoor or outdoor, are associated with fond memories of your years as an Edinboro student?

2. What spaces or physical elements do you associate with the traditions of Edinboro University?

3. What changes to the campus, made since you left, do you consider improvements?

4. Conversely, what changes do you consider to be a detriment to the campus?

5. What type of future changes or projects do you think would be supported financially by alumni?

6. Please identify any other ideas that you believe would enhance the physical environment of the campus.

7. Do you feel you received enough information concerning physical changes to the campus?

Thank you for your participation in this important endeavor.

EDINBORO ATHLETICS

A Leader of Men

Four minutes remained in the September 22 game with Slippery Rock. Edinboro was clinging to a 14-7 lead over its heavily-favored PSAC rival, but here was "The Rock" knocking on the door at the Edinboro six. Moments later the Fighting Scots had dodged a bullet, thanks to the biggest play ever in the career of Chris Kane.

The senior free safety intercepted Kevin Dvorchak's pass in the back corner of the end zone. It was probably the biggest play in Edinboro's 14-7 upset win over 17th-ranked Slippery Rock.

But Kane's most important contribution that day may not have come on the field, but in the locker room. As a game captain, one of his duties was to address the team before the game. After five straight losses to The Rock, he had had enough.

Kane knew he represented the senior class, and it was his responsibility to inspire the younger players. "Coach (Rod) Boykin had the most inspirational speech I ever heard," he recalled. "He basically said enough is enough, but not in so many words. I fed off that. The past four years Slippery Rock has dominated us. Some of the young guys have no clue. The seniors, it would be the last time playing The Rock. I just kept telling them to play their hearts out. I said it at least 25 times. The atmosphere in that locker room was just incredible. I haven't seen it like that in four years. We did the best job to make the freshmen realize what it's like playing The Rock and IUP."

The interception still culminated a long and sometimes bumpy career. "That four-second play summed up what I've done," he admitted proudly. "The blood, the sweat, the losing. I asked eighty guys to play their hearts out."

For all that Kane has experienced in life, intercepting a pass might seem minor in nature. But it's the willingness to lead that separates him from most others. Edinboro head coach Lou Tepper recognizes it. When Tepper took over as the head coach two years ago, he did away with captains, instead instituting a system of game captains. Kane was a captain twice in the first four games, for special teams and for defense.

"That makes me humble," Kane admitted. "For him to pick me two weeks in a row. I'm not sure how he does it, whether he picks the people or the coaching staff gets together and chooses, but it is a great honor."

"I think Chris is a very loyal player, both to our team and this University," said Tepper. "He always appears to be upbeat and high energy. He is one of our premier special teams players. Chris is a very dependable player. You know he'll give you every bit of his ability."

But just who is Chris Kane? Kane's football contribution is not about big numbers. In fact, the 5'10", 190-pound strong safety serves in a backup capacity, although he rotates in with starter Jason Gordon. Kane does the little things to win – including outstanding contributions on special teams and serving as a role model.

The story goes much deeper, however. You might say Chris Kane is an Army brat. His father, Edward, is a career Army man, currently serving as a Colonel in Texas. In a couple years he will be a 30-year man. Born in Louisville, Kentucky, while his father was stationed at Fort Knox, Kane estimates that he has moved eleven times, never spending more than three years in any one place. He went to four different high schools, graduating from Ramstein American in Germany.

As a high school sophomore in Carlisle, Pa., Kane decided he liked the area, although he knew nothing about Edinboro University.

"I didn't know what the PSAC was," he recalled, "but I liked the area and Pennsylvania. I went to a library and did some research. I narrowed it down to four schools - Edinboro, Lock Haven, Shippensburg and Kutztown. I played soccer for 14 years. I only started playing football as a junior in high school. Edinboro was at the bottom of my list because it didn't have soccer. I played football in the fall, wrestled in the winter and played soccer in the spring.

"I decided to play football. I had a new hunger. I chose Edinboro because I saw so much tradition, so much pride here. All I kept hearing was Boro this, Boro that," said Kane.

In addition to becoming a leader on the football field, Kane has become a leader in the ROTC program. He is described by ROTC officials as an enthusiastic participant. The ROTC is an instructor-supervised, cadet-run organization. They attempt to find people with skills and abilities, then place them in roles where those skills can be advanced. It should come as no surprise that Kane has emerged in leadership roles. He served as the Cadet Battalion Commander a year ago, along with the Personnel and Logistics Officer. He maintains the latter role this year.

"The day I graduate is also the day I become a lieutenant in the U.S. Army," Kane pointed out. "I would like to go back to Germany. A young man in Germany, it's a great place to live. I have a contract for four years. I'll decide at that time if I stay in. Some of it will depend on what the role of the military is at that time." A criminal justice major, if he doesn't follow in his father's footsteps, he'd like to pursue a career in protective service, either on the federal or state level.

Like everyone else, the Edinboro community was touched by the happenings on September 11. But it's safe to say it hit home a little more with Kane. "I woke up that morning, and I saw the Pentagon," he remembered. "I knew so many people who could have been there. Luckily nobody I knew got hurt. I can remember I remained calm. Maybe it's because of what I've seen and been through. I was there when the Berlin Wall fell down. But it made me realize what I'm about to do is not just a job. That tragedy put it in even more perspective. It takes a lot of personal pride. There's the saying that 'leaders aren't made, they're born', and I think that's true."

Mature beyond his years, Kane hopes his immediate future holds more wins like the upset of Slippery Rock. "I think back to day one, and I was never about going to the pros. I've always been an athlete. High school was the glory days. Now it's the concept of team. Team, teammate, brother. We've been fighting through those losing years. Now that we're winning with Tep, "team, teammate, brother" means even more. Sitting in camp as a fifth-year guy, you take the words 'Boro Pride' to heart. It will be tough to live without it anymore."

Chris Kane's name will soon be forgotten. You won't find his name in the record books a year from now. But the impact Chris Kane has had on the Edinboro football program will last for years to come. Some people are just born to lead.

Pre-Season Honors Pour in for Tate

Edinboro University men's basketball standout Kenny Tate has received more awards than a four-star general in his two years as a Fighting Scot, and the honors have already started to come in. Division II Bulletin has selected the senior as its Preseason Player of the Year.

"Kenny is one of the top returning players in Division II this year and we think he'll have a tremendous season," said DIIB editor Gary Rubin. "It's always a tough choice for this award but Kenny deserves it."

"I think it's a wonderful and well-deserved honor," concurred head coach Greg Walcavich. "It obviously reflects what he's done the last two years and clearly is reflective of what his team did last year. Without having researched it, I have a difficult time believing there's anyone with his numbers over the last two years.

"Kenny has worked hard to achieve the individual awards he's gotten," Walcavich continued, "but his hard work is reflected better in his improved play. Kenny Tate is a much better basketball player now than when he arrived two years ago. He is physically stronger, and way more skilled than he once was, and he was very good when he got here."

All-American awards have almost become commonplace since Tate arrived at Edinboro two years ago after playing one season at New Mexico Junior College. The 6'3", 210 lb. forward has been named to the Basketball Times second team the last two years, and was a first team Daktronics Division II All-American a year ago. He was named a Division II Bulletin honorable mention All-American, as well, with teammate Adam Kaufman selected to the second team. A two-time All-PSAC West first team selection, Tate also earned plenty of preseason recognition a year ago. He was named to the Basketball Times preseason All-American team, was on Street & Smith's second team, and was a Division II Bulletin honorable mention choice.

Tate has averaged a double-double in each of his two campaigns, and has scored in double figures in all 54 games as a Fighting Scot. A year ago, he averaged 18.4 ppg. and 10.5 rpg., both team highs while posting 11 games of 20-or-more points and 21 double-doubles. He also led the team in field goal percentage (52.1 percent) while finishing second in steals (38) and blocked shots (16) and third in assists (38). He finished fifth in Division II in rebounding.

In 1999-2000, Tate ranked 25th in Division II in scoring at 20.5 ppg. and 16th in rebounding at 10.5 rpg. He had 15 games of 20-or-more points and 11 double-doubles.

"There are two things that I look at as a coach that separate the very good from the great," Walcavich emphasized. "It is the consistency in which someone is able to perform. It would be difficult to be more consistent. Secondly, the ability to continue to improve. The really great ones, at whatever they do, just keep getting better. Kenny has just been an absolute model of consistency, and he continues to improve.

"A double-double has kind of become the statistic du jour in basketball. This guy has averaged it! On top of that, he has never been below double figures. He's been ill, he's been hurt, and he's been the focus of other teams."

Tate enters his senior season ranked 21st in career scoring with 1,049 points, and is 16th in career rebounding with 560. His 516 points in 2000-01 was the 11th-highest season total, while he posted the 9th-highest the year before when he scored 533 markers. Tate became just the third Fighting Scot to score 1,000 points in his first two seasons.

Chris Rhodes Named Swimming Coach

Edinboro President Dr. Frank Pogue recently announced the appointment of former Fighting Scot All-American Chris Rhodes as head swimming coach. Rhodes replaces Melanie Wirtner, who resigned earlier this year.

"I'd like to thank the search committee for its efforts," commented Dr. Pogue. "I think they did a fine job in the recommendation of Chris Rhodes as the University's new swimming coach. We consider swimming an integral part of the Athletic Department and the mission of the University. As a member of the Edinboro Family, we're pleased to welcome him back to campus."

Rhodes competed for Edinboro from 1991-95, earning All-American honors in 1993-94 and 1994-95 as a member of freestyle relay teams. He also earned All-PSAC honors and set a school record as a member of the 200 freestyle relay team. He was graduated from Edinboro in December 1995 with a bachelor's degree in elementary education.

"I'm extremely excited and honored to be coming back to Edinboro," related Rhodes. "Edinboro has given me a lot. I'm pleased to be able to give back to the school."

Rhodes began his coaching career as an assistant swimming coach at Titusville High School in 1996-97, then moved on to Ashland University, one of the top programs on the Division II level, as an assistant swimming coach while completing work on his master's degree in reading, which he received in August 1999. He returned to western Pennsylvania as the assistant swimming coach at Oil City Area High School for the 1999-2000 season. For the past year he served as the head coach of the Stroke Development Camp at Westminster College. In addition, he has been a Reading Specialist in the Oil City Area School District.

"We are very pleased that Chris is going to take over our swimming program," said Director of Athletics Bruce Baumgartner. "He came highly-recommended, and we feel he is an up-and-coming young coach. We think he'll be a nice addition to our coaching staff, and as an Edinboro graduate, fully appreciates our goals. I think he'll be very well-received by the team members and will bring out the best in our swimmers"

Women's Soccer Team Captures First PSAC Playoff Berth

After five straight seasons of improvement, one thing remained for Gary Kagiavas' women's soccer team - a playoff berth. The head coach of Edinboro women's soccer team predicted that his 2001 Fighting Scot edition would be a playoff contender, and his team went out and proved him right.

Edinboro finished the regular season with an 11-4-1 mark, the most wins in school history. More importantly, the Fighting Scots qualified for a first-ever PSAC Playoff berth. The postseason bid wasn't assured until the final regular season contest, when the Scots went on the road and upset 12th-ranked Slippery Rock, 3-0. The Rock had won six straight games, allowing just two goals in that span, but it was no match for the Boro.

Early season losses to nationally-ranked powers Mercyhurst and Lock Haven left Edinboro with a 2-3 record and seemingly out of the playoff hunt. But the Scots then caught fire, going 8-0-1 over their next nine matches. Along the way Edinboro achieved its first-ever national ranking, climbing as high as 14th nationally and second in the Northeast Region before it all came crashing down in a 4-3 double overtime loss to 23rd-ranked Bloomsburg. Edinboro squandered a 3-0 lead less than 18 minutes into the contest, and suddenly dropped out of the national rankings.

In addition to the team recognition, several individuals have enjoyed outstanding seasons entering the postseason. Junior midfielder Nicole Vlahovic broke the school record for points in a season, totaling 12 goals and 7 assists for 31 points. She also waged a battle all year with senior forward Amy Hazen for the career scoring mark. Vlahovic has 80 points, with Hazen just a point behind with 79. Hazen had contributed 8 goals and 8 assists for 24 points.

Jamie Tekotte proved a welcome addition in the midfield. The sophomore transferred from Central Michigan and emerged as a huge offensive threat. She tied Vlahovic for the team lead with 12 goals, a figure that is tied for the single season record, along with 5 assists for 29 points.

The Scots were also strong in goal, as junior Amy Stevens posted 5 shutouts and a 1.19 goals against average.

Edinboro entered the PSAC Playoffs as the number three seed, with a rematch against second seed Bloomsburg on the horizon in the first round. A win would not only put the Scots in the PSAC Championship game against the winner of the Lock Haven-Indiana(Pa.) contest, but would also go a long ways towards a berth in the NCAA Division II Tournament.

Theehs Captures Win #200

Edinboro volleyball coach Lynn Theehs picked up her 200th career coaching win early this season. The milestone win came against local rival Gannon, as the Fighting Scots prevailed in four games.

Theehs entered the 2001 campaign needing seven wins to reach 200. She coached two seasons at her alma mater, Wisconsin-Parkside, before coming to Edinboro. She recorded a 167-76 record in her first seven seasons at Edinboro.

Cross Country PSAC Dominance Continues

Through the years coach Doug Watts has built the Edinboro cross country team into a dominant program regionally and nationally. The Fighting Scots began another trip down the national championship trail late in October with the PSAC Championships.

Edinboro once again ruled in both the men's and women's championships at Lock Haven. The men's harriers picked up their tenth consecutive PSAC crown, but did come up with an upset of sorts as for the first time in 18 years the individual champion wasn't a Fighting Scot. Yi Min Wu, the 1999 PSAC champion who would later go on to capture the Division II national crown, finished second with a time of 24:48.44, 13 seconds behind Millersville's Mark Stalling.

Even still, the Fighting Scots finished with six of the top ten finishers to easily outdistance Shippensburg, 24 to 87 points. Tim Cron came in third (25:02.72), with Nat Wibberley fifth (25:19.64), Joe Reynolds sixth (25:25.64), Ryan Kelly eighth (25:36.78) and Mark Hryvniak ninth (25:38.37).

The Boro women's team made it four consecutive PSAC titles with a convincing 41 to 84 points win over Kutztown. Kathy Breisch crossed the finish line first for Edinboro in a time of 21:34.90, good for second. Lisa Petsche (22:00.11) placed fifth, with Jocelyn Smith also in the top ten with a ninth place finish (22:09.12).

50 Years and Counting

Jim Hazlett served as Edinboro's head football coach from 1962-65, compiling a 9-22-2 record in his four seasons as head coach. While the final ledger may not be all that impressive, he left on a high note with a 6-2-1 in his final season.

Hazlett moved on to Susquehanna University, where he was the director of athletics, head football coach and head baseball coach until 1978. By that time, many coaches are ready to retire, but not Hazlett.

Now 75 years old, Hazlett is still coaching football. This marked an incredible 50th year for the former Boro mentor. For the past fifteen years his port of call has been Fork Union Military Academy, a highly-respected prep school in Fork Union, Virginia, that has turned out some outstanding talent. He is presently the defensive coordinator.

Hazlett began his football career as a player at Westminster College. He transferred to Susquehanna University to play for the legendary Amos Alonzo Stagg and earned first team Little All-America honors at center, helping the 1951 team to an undefeated season.

With Stagg's influence now firmly implanted, Hazlett went about carving his own coaching career in 1952 at Springdale High School near Pittsburgh. Next came his four-year stint at Edinboro, and he later went on to coach at Kean College in New Jersey.

Edinboro recognized Hazlett's accomplishments in 1992, inducting the venerable coach into the Athletic Hall of Fame. Little did anyone know at that time that nearly ten years later, Hazlett would still be adding to his impressive resume.

- ✓ An alumni window decal
- ✓ A great magazine four times a year
- ✓ Special mention in the great magazine recognizing your voluntary membership
- ✓ Automatic entry in a raffle for alumni merchandise
- ✓ Other benefits we haven't even thought of yet!

A voluntary membership for you ($15) or your family ($25) in the Alumni Association is just one more way to show your support for your alma mater and the many services, programs, and events provided and sponsored by your Association. All contributions are tax deductible as provided by law.

Thanks to the following alumni for their voluntary memberships.
