

The Voice

August 29, 1988

Bloomsburg University

Bloomsburg, PA 17815

Union's new look is long-term project

by Karen Reiss
Editor-in-Chief

The hallway carpeting recently placed on all three levels of the Kehr Union is one part of a long-term renovation project which will eventually lead into the proposed expansion of the student building.

According to Associate Director of Student Activities Mike Sowash, the new carpeting was approved by the Kehr Union Governing Board along with several other projects planned to create a more pleasant environment for students.

The Governing Board, consisting of 12 student leaders, two faculty, an alumnus, and four Kehr Union staff members, sets policies and approves budgets for the University Store and the Union. The money for the renovations comes directly from profits generated by the bookstore and the Union, Sowash said.

The renovations to the existing facility are in conjunction with the expansion to the Union.

Sowash said because present BU students may never see the results expansion, the Governing Board decided to update the look of the building.

"It's been 15 years since anything new has been done with the building," Sowash said. "Hopefully the renovations and expansion will be tied together in the next three to five years."

According to Sowash, the next phases in the project are to renovate the bowling alley area, the President's Lounge, and if approved, a new student information center.

The bowling alley will be transformed into a bar-type setting for Cheers, BU's non-alcoholic night club sponsored by the Kehr Union Program Board. Sowash said the room will also serve as a setting for studying during the day.

"The bowling alley is now half removed and the design concept has been reviewed by only a limited number of Governing Board members," Sowash said.

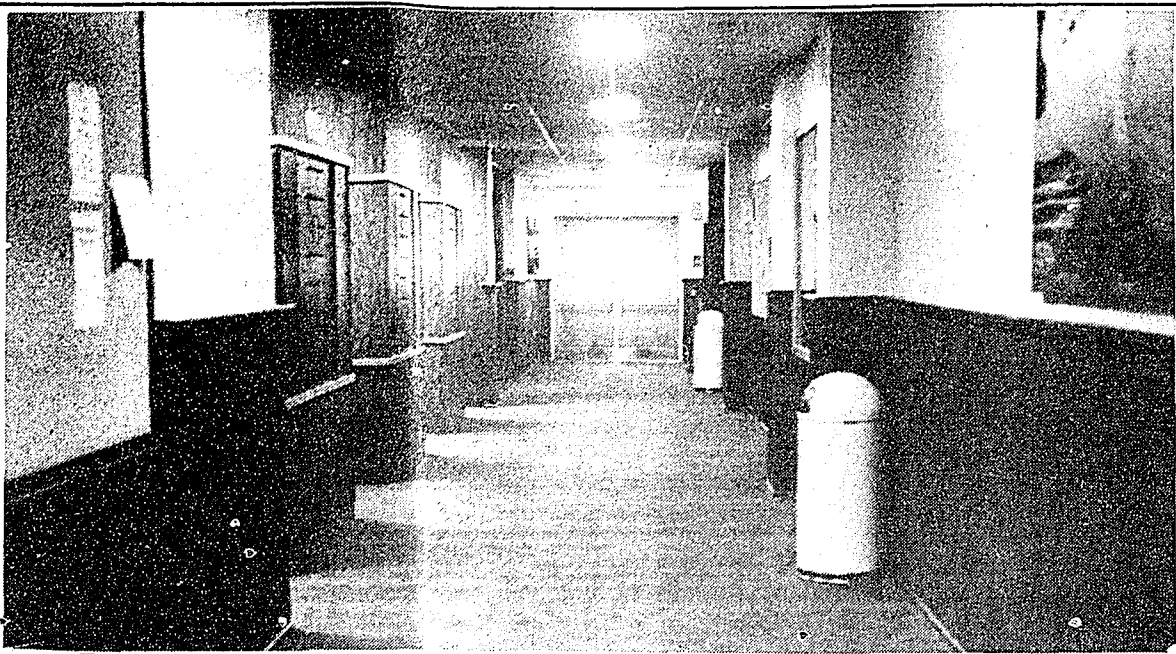

He added that the President's Lounge is at design approval stage and probably will not be worked on until winter break.

The renovations are planned so the least amount of disruption will be felt by students.

"I'll do everything I can to keep interruption to a minimum," he said. He added that the carpeting had only a minor impact on residence advisor training.

Jeanne Roberts of Catawissa is the design consultant working closely with the Governing Board throughout the renovations.

"We have a good design person. She is open minded and is willing to listen to all input from the board," Sowash said.

New carpeting was placed in the halls of the Union as part of Kehr Union Building renovations. The new carpet can be found in the halls of all three floors in the union.

Photo by Karen Reiss

Contest offers students a chance to name differences

International students studying in the United States are offered a chance to identify cross cultural differences in humor between their native country and the U.S. through essay competition sponsored by the International Underwriters/Brokers Inc.

The contest is in its seventh year and awards up to $1500 for application toward academic or professional advancement. The topic as stated by Tom St. Denis, vice-president of International Underwriters/Brokers covers "comparing humor in your country with humor as you find it in America including examples of humorous situations resulting from cross cultural misunderstandings, either in the U.S. or on your first visit back to your home country."

The contest is open to all full-time foreign students and awards $1500 for first place, $1000 for second and $500 for third place along with five $100 honorable mention awards. Deadline for entry is Dec. 1, 1988.

To enter write Essay Competition Coordinator; DSD Communications, LTD.; 10805 Parkridge Blvd., Suite 240; Reston, VA 22091.

Students face fee increase

Tuition for students attending Bloomsburg and the other 13 publicly owned universities of the State System of Higher Education increased by $150 per academic semester or $300 for the 1988-1989 academic year, from this fall.

The new tuition schedule was approved by the State System Board of Governors at its July 19 quarterly meeting.

The new basic fee is $2,130 for all full-time undergraduate and graduate students who are Pennsylvania residents.

Part-time Pennsylvania students will pay $89 per undergraduate credit hour and $119 per graduate credit hour.

Non-resident, full-time student tuition increased $286 to $3,552 per academic year for undergraduates and $362 to $2,402 per academic year for graduate students.

Out-of-state, part-time students will pay $148 per undergraduate credit hour and $133 per graduate credit hour.

Last academic year's basic fee was $1,830.

The board based the new tuition rate on a state appropriation increase of 4 percent for the 1988-1989 fiscal year, totalling $307,164,000.

If the General Assembly approves a supplemental appropriation the tuition rate for the second semester will be adjusted to reflect the increase in state support, Board Chairman F. Eugene Dixon Jr. said.

Grad set to teach overseas

Pamela J. Plimpton, a graduate of Bloomsburg University with a degree in special education, left June 19, 1988 for her two year Peace Corps Service in Morocco, where she will teach the hearing impaired Moroccan children.

Plimpton's previous job experience from the Bloomsburg Association of the Hearing Impaired includes one year of volunteer service with hearing impaired children, and a temporary teaching position in Danville, Pennsylvania, where she spoke sign language, helped to qualify her for this Peace Corps assignment.

"I feel that handicapped children have great potential and can contribute to society rather than be a burden," states Plimpton. "I want to help children in a third world nation reach their potential." When Plimpton was in high school she knew Peace Corps was her choice, "I heard about someone who had been in Peace Corps and at that time I decided that someday I was going to try to get accepted into Peace Corps."

Faculty positions named

Fifteen faculty promotions and nine tenures granted were announced at the June quarterly meeting of the Council of Trustees at Bloomsburg University.

Approved by the university promotions committee for promotion from associate to full professor were Mary K. Badami, communications studies; James H. Dalton Jr., psychology; G. Donald Miller, communication disorders and special education; Roger B. Sanders, health, physical education and athletics and Theodore M. Shanski, curriculum and foundations.

Promoted from assistant professor to associate professor were George

B.N. Ayittey, economics; Karl A. Beamer, art; Nancy Gill, English; Mark S. Melnychuk, biological and allied health sciences; James E. Parsons, biological and allied health sciences.

Also named were Cynthia A. Surmacz, biological and allied health sciences; Dorette E. Welk, nursing; Joseph M. Youshock, communication disorders and special education and James E. Tomlinson, communication studies. Alexis B. Perri, nursing was promoted from instructor to assistant professor.

Upon recommendation of the university-wide tenure committee, President Harry Ausprich granted tenure to Eileen C. Astor-Stetson, associate professor of psychology; Thomas A. Bonomo, assistant professor of sociology and social welfare; Frank S. Davis Jr., professor of computer and information sciences; Sharon L. O'Keefe, instructor of health, physical education and athletics; Alexis B. Perri, assistant professor of nursing; Michael E. Pugh, assistant professor of chemistry; Dana R. Ulloth, professor of mass communications; Lois P. Zong, assistant professor of nursing and Cynthia A. Surmacz, associate professor of biological and allied health sciences.

Mitrani offers scholarships

A second $500,000 donation for academic scholarships at Bloomsburg University has been announced by Louise Mitrani, wife of the late Bloomsburg industrialist and philanthropist Marco Mitrani.

The gift boosts the "Marco and Louise Mitrani Scholarships" fund, established with the first donation of half a million dollars from the Mitrani Family Foundation in 1985, to $1 million, according to Anthony Ianiero, BU director of development.

The fund is used annually for scholarship grants based primarily on merit and potential of the prospective recipient, with some consideration of financial need, he said.

"Since the university used the initial gift so well to establish scholarships for deserving students, my late husband's will provided for an additional gift to continue to provide assistance to the young people who are destined to serve society," Mitrani said.

"For so many years, Marco and I enjoyed varied activities at the university, and I still enjoy my current associations with the university community. It's a beautiful university with a fine faculty and students. It gives me great pleasure to follow through with this bequest," she said.

BU President Harry Ausprich said that the generous gift is much appreciated by the university and the many scholarship recipients. "Mrs. Mitrani and her late husband Marco have been strong supporters of many phases of out university life, and their gifts have benefited out university community and public higher education, as well as residents of a large area," he said.

Since the Mitrani scholarships were established, 38 students have received grants to supplement their education expenses. Approximately 14 more grants from the fund will be awarded to freshmen by the scholarships committee for the 1988-89 academic year, Ianiero said.

Significant Mitrani philanthropic contributions to non-profit organizations over the years also have benefited the United Jewish Appeal, the Bloomsburg Hospital, Family Counseling and Mental Health Association, schools and a library in Israel, Bloomsburg Theatre Ensemble and BU's Haas Center for the Arts. Both the of the Mitrani have actively supported the Columbia-Montour Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of America.

"Their years of service to the greater Bloomsburg community was a major reason the Mitrani were chosen to be the recipients of the first Bloomsburg University medallion awarded during commencement ceremonies in 1983," Ianiero said.

Leaves granted for academic year

Eighteen Bloomsburg University faculty members have been granted sabbatical leaves for all or part of the 1989-90 academic year.

Having leaves the first semester will be Wendelin R. Frantz, professor and chairperson of the department of geography and earth science, who will conduct an in-depth petrographic study of selected carbonate stratigraphic units in Pennsylvania, New York and southern Ontario, Canada; William J. Frost, assistant professor and reference collection librarian, to investigate techniques needed to develop a computer assisted instructional program for library users to learn how to use the Educational Resources Information Center.

Also named were Nancy E. Gill, assistant professor of English, who will be organizing students into a massive peer tutoring group that will work with high school students one week-end a month on the BU campus.

Fall semester sabbaticals also include James R. Lauffer, associate professor of geography and earth science, to conduct research, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Geologic Survey, that would correlate radon concentrations in groundwater with particular rock types found in Columbia, Lycoming, Montour and Schuylkill counties; and H. Benjamin Powell, professor of history, who will be writing a book on the history of the Pennsylvania anthracite history.

Second semester sabbatical leaves have been granted for M. Dale Anderson, associate professor of English, to complete his Ph.D. degree in folklore with a minor in English and linguistics.

Also taking sabbatical in the spring semester Ellen M. Clemens, associate professor of business education/office administration, to increase her expertise in the area of integrated office systems, especially information resource management; and Paul G. Hartung, professor of mathematics and computer science, who will be doing research and development in the area of the use of expert systems in computer assisted manufacturing.

Full-year sabbaticals will be taken by Ellen B. Barker, assistant professor of psychology, to prepare a handbook for Psychology Aspects of Social Issues.

Other full semester sabbaticals include Gary F. Clark, assistant professor of art, to develop techniques for creating fine art images on the computer and exploring new techniques on the frontiers of computer graphics; and Susan Hibbs, assistant professor of health physical education and athletics to satisfy residence requirement of a doctoral program in the area of psychology of human movement at Temple University.

Sabbaticals of six professors will be for both the 1989 and 1990 summers. They are Barrett W. Benson, professor of chemistry, to engage in postdoctoral research in collaboration with an organic chemistry at the University of Maine.

Also taking summer sabbatical are Nancy G. Gilgannon, professor of curriculum and foundations, to investigate the educational impact of the recently implemented Pennsylvania State Teacher Testing Program on the colleges and universities in the state that prepared teachers, and analyze the state test results of pre-service educators at BU; Kenneth P. Hunt, professor of communication disorders and special education, to visit special education programs in the United Kingdom and present a paper at the 1989 British Behavior Therapy Conference in Bath, England; Lawrence Mack, professor of chemistry, to conduct research in macromolecular physical chemistry; James C. Pomfret, professor and chairman of the department of mathematics and computer science, to spend a concentrated period of time with a group of operations research professionals; and Roger B. Sanders, professor of health, physical education and athletics, to visit several European countries to study and investigate different training facilities, techniques and philosophies used by international wrestling teams for later implementation at Bloomsburg University.

The Voice wishes to welcome all students back to Bloomsburg for the 1988-89 school year.

Photo by Melissa Harris

Index

Funding the rising costs of higher education. Page 2

New athletic director selected. Page 3

Three BU students named to PSAC East Page 4

Commentary Page 2

Features Page 3

Sports Page 4

Commentary

The price of quality education

For many, in some cases several generations of Pennsylvania's families, the state-owned universities have meant quality and opportunity - an excellent college education in a broad array of fields at an affordable cost.

Maintaining that kind of quality for the State System of Higher Education is the primary responsibility of this Board of Governors. It is a serious matter.

But the Board of Governors must balance its concern for quality with a like concern for access to the universities. Each summer, after the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has determined how much funding will be given to its state-owned universities, the board struggles with how to make up the resulting deficiency without shattering the dreams of college-bound students. This is not easy.

For five years, the board has instructed its presidents to cut services and programs in order to impose only minimal tuition increases. But the multi-million dollar cuts from services in past years cannot be compounded by further reduction without real damage to quality. Universities are labor-intensive, technology-dependent, service-oriented institutions. The demands for these services are ever-increasing.

Now educating some 89,000 students, the state-owned universities have accepted 10,000 additional students since 1983, the founding date for the State System of Higher Education.

Over that five year period, our state appropriation has decreased from 61.5 percent of our educational and general operating budget to 58.8 percent, the equivalent of $13.5 million for the 1987-1988 fiscal year alone.

In the past five years, we have increased tuition only $350, an average of 4.7 percent per year. We have worked to increase external, private support from alumni, and others, but it is not enough.

This system of 14 universities has 675 buildings on 4,000 acres. These facilities are valued at almost $1 billion. Costs for capital renewal, renovation, replacement and improvement of the facilities exceed $272 million. Yet, we have had no capital budget, monies for building needs, since 1986.

Further, we need up-to-date laboratory equipment, current journals, and a well-prepared faculty to guide our students. But a backlog of $26 million in instructional equipment needs exists.

We feel compelled to take all necessary steps to sustain the causes of that pride. Tuition is the student's contribution.

We sincerely hope that this increase for the current academic year can be reduced by supplemental appropriations from the Commonwealth.

But we trust that students, parents, and all Pennsylvanians who believe in higher education will agree that the quality of their own public universities should not and cannot be sacrificed.

Ellen Goodman

Winners of the equal rights award

BOSTON—Each year, in order to honor my historic foremothers, I celebrate Aug. 26, anniversary of the passage of women's suffrage, by recognizing those people who have done their utmost in the past 12 months to slow progress.

This year, you might well wonder if there were any contestants. Since our one-woman jury last met, there have been all sorts of good signs. Women said no to miniskirts. Wayne Gretzky moved to be near his wife's work, presidential candidates spent their days in child-care centers, and Barbie turned 30.

Let me reassure you: The competition was as fierce as ever. So many candidates, so few prizes. Now, without further ado, I give you the annual Equal Rites Award winners. The envelopes please.

Let us begin at the top, or the second spot, with the Raging Hormonal Imbalance Award given to the man who has the most trouble with his male image.

No one in America has worked as hard for this prize as George Bush, who has exhibited over the years incredible mood swings from macho to mouse and back again. Faster than a speeding testosterone tablet, he goes from kicking one fanny to patting another.

We send George, loving grandpa and political pit bull, a new prescription to keep balanced until November.

As for Knight in Tarnished Armor Award, it goes for good cause to Bobby Knight, the Indiana basketball coach. When asked how he handles stress, the Hoosier replied, "I think if rape is inevitable, relax and enjoy." We resist the desire to slam dunk the coach or send him a net even lower than his consciousness.

The Citadel of Chauvinism Prize, which in previous years has gone to Iran and Mississippi, this year goes on a technicality to Arizona. It took schoolchildren to discover that the state constitution bans anyone from holding statewide elected office except "a male person." This was especially embarrassing since the governor is Rose Mofford. To Arizona, which is amending its ways, we send our constitutional condolences.

Meanwhile back in the media, The Ms-Guided Madison Avenue prize goes this year to the advertiser who best portrayed the new image for women in the safe sex era: The Tease. In the words of the Champion sportswear copywriter: "'Yes' is easy. 'No' drives 'em crazy. 'Maybe' drives 'em...Maybe. Yeah." They get a citation from the Just Say Maybe committee.

The real surprise is the winner of The International Backlash Award. This year it is going to our friendly neighbors in Canada. In Toronto, a jury acquitted a man of murdering his mother-in-law on the grounds that he was sleepwalking when he drove 14 miles to her home, beat her with a tire iron and stabbed her to death. To Canada, we send a year's supply of NoDoz for every son-in-law.

The Dubious Equality Award is again sent to a woman who fought the hardest for the most questionable right: I give you Margo Adams. Margo accompanied married Red Sox slugger Wade Boggs on the road for four and one half years. When it was over, she sued him for six million dollars worth of time lost from work.

To our gal Margo, we send the words of Annie from "Bull Durham" petit-pointed and suitable for framing: "Women do not get lured. The accept full responsibility for their actions."

The Bodily Fluids Award for flights of biological fancy must be sent winging to Pennsylvania State Rep. Stephen Freind. It was Freind who insisted that a woman can't become pregnant as a result of rape because the trauma causes a woman to release a "certain secretion" that can kill sperm. Science teachers: You have no Freind in Pennsylvania.

As for another man with biological interest, we award Hugh Hefner the Peter Pan Prize for the (play)boy who wouldn't grow up the longest. At age 62, he is finally "at a point in my life

It's been a bad summer

by David Ferris
Staff Troublemaker

Welcome back to Bloomsburg University. This is The Voice, the student newspaper preferred by nine out of 10 doctors surveyed who showed a preference. I am David "Don't Call Me Dave" Ferris, the unofficial Staff Troublemaker and regular columnist for The Voice.

Believe it or not, I do have a purpose in mind when I write this column. This purpose is of course not known to the rest of the editorial staff, so I'm not going to blow a good thing by explaining it here in front of everybody.

It was a tough summer for me, so I hope everyone else suffered as well. I drove all the way up to Oscoda, Michigan for my 10-year high school class reunion. I was ready to go disguised as a drug kingpin or South American dictator in case all my old classmates turned out to be amazingly successful, but they all turned out to be bums just like me.

In a way, I was one of the more successful of the lot. Three of us had aspired to be writers, but I'm the only one whose rubbish sees the light of day on a regular basis. Out of a graduating class of 244, I'm one of the few who made it (or will make it, in my case) through college in one attempt.

I felt a little uneasy at being one of the handful present who had never been married, but on the other hand, I was one of the very few who had never been divorced, either.

There was one doctor, several fighter pilots, bunches of housewives (including all of the most vehement feminists, interestingly enough), but most had joined my profession: computer operations and programming. We briefly considered getting all the computer folks together late at night, sneaking into some local business, and reprogramming their entire mainframe as a practical joke. A note left on the premises would read, "Courtesy of the Class of '78", just in case there was any doubt.

I left the reunion as soon as they started drinking in earnest, using the excuse that I had to go and clean my room. While not strictly true, it was a project that took up much of my summer.

I had not given my apartment, the Fernsdom, a thorough cleaning since I moved in four years ago. I tidied up occasionally, no more than the minimum required of bachelors by law, but numerous corners and dark recesses had accumulated piles of miscellany that defied description or any shallow attempts at organization. Most of this assorted stuff consisted of projects I had set aside to complete at some later date, specifically "when I get around to it". This date is not marked on my calendar, or any other calendar I have thus far encountered, so some of these piles in my apartment have been carbon dated to be quite old. A few stacks of books have a layer of sedimentary rock forming on them, complete with trilobite fossils.

It took a month to do the bedroom, a month to do the living room, and another month to do the bedroom again after putting all the living room junk in there to clean the carpet. Overall, the place looks worse than it did before I started, but now at least I can claim that I worked hard to clean it up.

All this domesticity did have one redeeming result, though. In addition to uncovering a well-preserved mastodon skeleton behind the refrigerator and discovering a tribe of aboriginal cave dwellers in the shower, I mean, I can now stand fully upright in my bedroom closet, moving my arms, without fear of knocking something over. Such achievements are destined to go down in the annals of history as something really significant.

No doubt the main emotional blow of the summer for me came in the political arena. I am still a little miffed at not being picked by either party as the vice-presidential nominee.

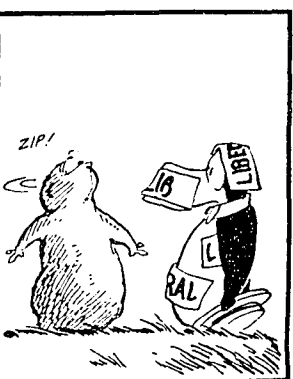

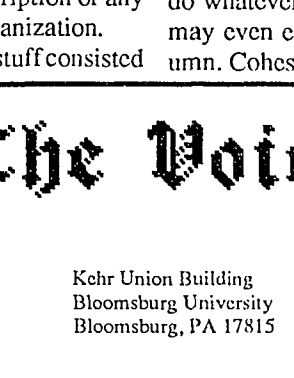

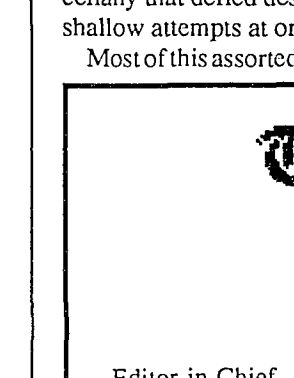

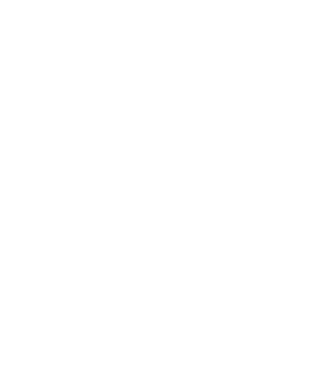

Sure, they all said that my views are too radical: repealing all the even-numbered Amendments, or switching the economy from a gold standard to a polystyrene standard. We all know the real reason I wasn't given the nod, though, don't we? It was the "Necktie Incident".

Okay, sure, I admit it. I used my family's influence to get out of wearing a tie to my high school graduation. So what? A lot of guys didn't even go to graduation! For that matter, why is everyone so upset that I don't meet any of the qualifications for president? Okay, so I'm not 36 years old. I am a pretty swell guy, though. What more could you ask for in a president?

Well, I'm just glad the summer is over. One more semester of classes and I'm done. Then I'll have to go... do whatever it is that I do, I guess. I may even end up writing a real column. Cohesively! Ugh!

Bloom County

by Berke Breathed

The Voice

Kehr Union Building
Bloomsburg University
Bloomsburg, PA 17815

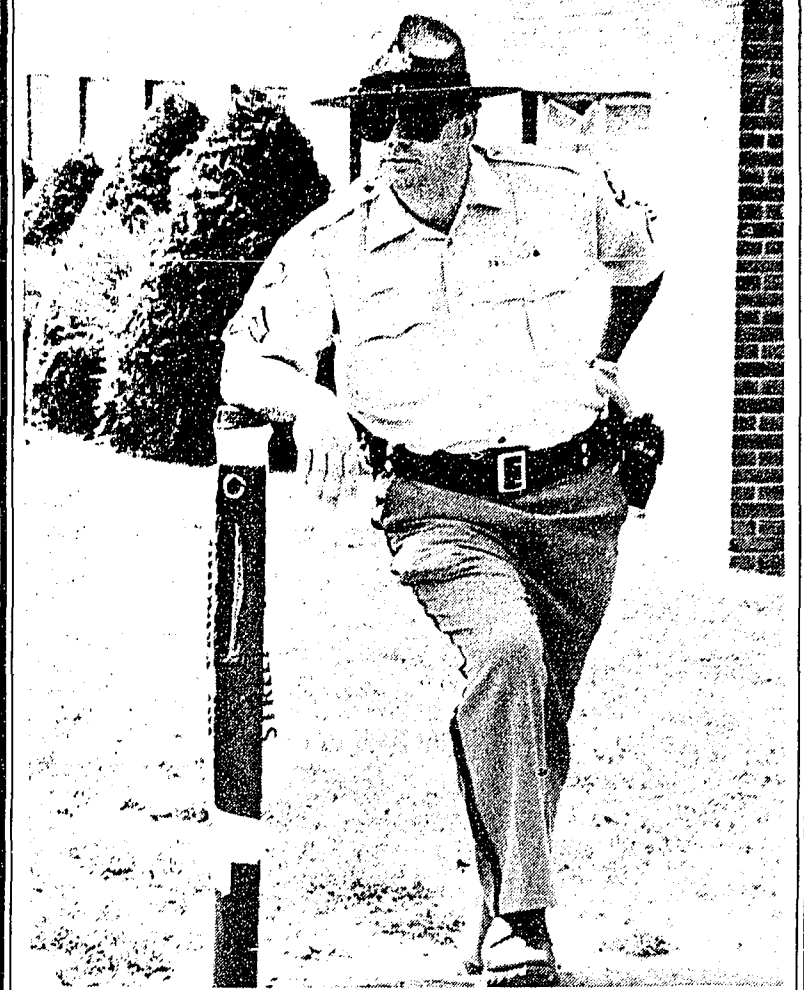

Editor-in-Chief.....Karen Reiss
Managing Editor.....Glenn Schwab
News Editors.....John Risdon, Dawn D'Arcis
Features Editors.....Bridget Sullivan, Chrissa Hosking
Sports Editors.....Kelly Cuthbert, Sean Ryan, Lincoln Weiss
Photography Editor.....Christopher Lower
Production/Circulation Manager.....Alexander Schillemans
Advertising Director.....Susan Sugra
Advertising Managers.....Amy Crimmon, Chris Piccirilli
Assistant Advertising Managers.....Jodi Donetelli, Jim Pilla, Lisa Mack
Business Manager.....Adina Saleck
Sales Manager.....Bob Woolstlager
Assistant Sales Manager.....Vince Verrastro
Copy Editors.....David Ferris, Chris Miller
Advisor.....John Maittlen-Harris

Voice Editorial Policy

Unless stated otherwise, the editorials in The Voice are the opinions and concerns of the Editor-in-Chief, and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of all members of The Voice staff, or the student population of Bloomsburg University.

The Voice invites all readers to express their opinions on the editorial page through letters to the editor and guest columns. All submissions must be signed and include a phone number and address for verification, although names on letters will be withheld upon request.

Submissions should be sent to The Voice office, Kehr Union Building, Bloomsburg University, or dropped off at the office in the games room. The Voice reserves the right to edit, condense or reject all submissions.

Corporal Angelo Venditti, a member of BU's law enforcement office, takes a break from directing traffic during the hectic move-in activities this past weekend.
Photo by Melissa Harris

KUB Program Board provides chance to get more involved

by Stacy DiMedio
for The Voice

What is the best way to get involved and have fun? How can you help decide what entertainment and films are brought to BU? It is as easy as joining the Kehr Union Program Board.

The Kehr Union Program Board is a volunteer student organization that brings the entertainment to campus.

Last year, Program Board sponsored more than 200 events including films, musicians, comedians, activities, and other performers.

Some entertainment highlights dur-

Cheers to open next Thursday

by Stacy DiMedio
for The Voice

Cheers, BU's non-alcoholic night club, will open Thursday, Sept. 8 at 9 p.m. in the Kehr Union.

Cheers will be held once every two weeks, and each time it will offer something new and exciting. Cheers features live entertainment, including live bands, live WBUQ broadcasts, comedians, and more.

Come out on Thursday, Sept. 8 to enjoy friends, fun, and music by WBUQ. For more information, contact Jimmy Gilliland at 389-4344.

Volleyball planned for Tuesday

Come out and play Tuesday night 6 p.m. at the Volleyball Jamboree sponsored by the Kehr Union Program Board. The Jamboree will be held at the outdoor basketball courts near the Ben Franklin Building.

In case of rain, the event will be moved to the Centennial Gym.

No sign ups are required to play. For more information, contact Jimmy Gilliland in the Student Activities office.

Gardner remains as athletic director

Mary Gardner, who formerly served as BU's interim athletic director for the past six months, has been selected to fill the post permanently, Vice President for Student Life Jerrold Griffis has announced.

Gardner took over the interim position Jan. 1, succeeding Roger Sanders, who held the position for five years.

She was chosen permanent athletic director, effective immediately, following an internal search process conducted by the university.

"We are extremely pleased that a person of Mary's calibre is going to be in charge of our Athletic Department," Griffis said.

"Her acceptance of the position allows us to have someone in the role who knows the program and will keep us growing in the right direction."

Class of '88 gives money for books

The 1988 graduating class of Bloomsburg University has given $5,000 to purchase books for Andrus Library as its class gift to the university.

"As class officers, we felt this would be one of the most rewarding ways to repay the entire university community for our four enjoyable years," said Lori Dispasquale, class president. "We hope students, faculty, staff and the community will benefit from the gift for many years to come."

Anthony Ianiero, director of development, said the $5,000 has been placed in the Library Enhancement Fund.

McClure retires

The retirement of Lavere W. McClure, associate professor of geography and earth science, was announced at the June meeting of the Council of Trustees at Bloomsburg University.

McClure joined the BU faculty in September 1963 and retired June 18. He completed 28 years in the field of education, 25 of which were at BU. He was acting chairperson of his department in 1976-77 and is former director of the Marine Science Consortium at Wallops Island, Va.

The trustees also conferred faculty emeritus status upon McClure and Joseph Mueller, who retired in May with 23 years of service in mathematics at BU.

"In the short time she has been in the athletic director's position, she has already made many positive strides and did an outstanding job keeping the department running smoothly."

Gardner's duties include overseeing the daily operations of the Huskies' 18 varsity athletic teams and the functions of the three major athletic facilities - Nelson Fieldhouse, Centennial Gymnasium and Redman Stadium.

Her responsibilities also include numerous playing and practice fields and areas located on the upper and lower campuses.

She is responsible for departmental budget control, scheduling of events and assisting in fundraising efforts to aid the general athletic scholarship program and will manage a coaching and professional support staff of more than 40 members.

The university's new athletic director also works closely with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) serving on the organization's men's and women's swimming and diving committee and rules subcommittee.

"I am looking forward to continuing to service the university as the director of athletics," Gardner said.

"The past six months have been challenging and many new initiatives have been undertaken. We are fortunate to have a very fine group of coaches as well as a totally committed support staff."

"I believe that together we can maintain the solid athletic tradition that is present at Bloomsburg University," Gardner added.

Prior to assuming the duties in January, she served as Bloomsburg's associate athletic director for one and a half years with major responsibilities for directing the university women's athletic program as well as the men's non-highlighted sports.

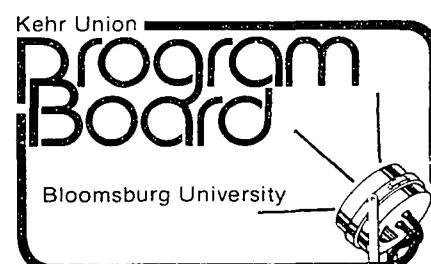

Before joining the athletic administration she was head coach of the university's women's swimming and diving team during 12 seasons and directed the men's squad for one year.

Her women's units posted an overall record of 88-28 in dual-meet action and finished as the Pennsylvania Conference runner-up in six consecutive seasons from 1981 through 1986. She coached 44 performers to multiple All-American honors.

Gardner became a member of the Bloomsburg faculty in 1974 and initiated the women's swimming and diving program that winter.

Interested ???

in being a part of an award winning student publication? The Voice is interested in you! Stop by The Voice office in the Kehr Union games room or call 389-4457 for more information. A staff meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. in The Voice office. Everyone is welcome to come.

presents:

Special showing:
"CADDYSHACK"

Outdoors on Schuylkill Lawn
Tues. Aug. 30 8:30 p.m.
Rain location - Carver

Bring your own snacks, chairs, blankets

Also showing at 2:30 p.m.
in Multi-A

This week's feature film:
ADVENTURES

IN BABYSITTING

8/31 & 9/1 2:30 p.m. - KUB
8/31 7 & 9:30 p.m. - Carver
9/2 8:30 p.m. - outdoors

ACTIVITIES FAIR MONDAY, AUGUST 29

2 p.m. - Ice Cream Social - Picnic Area by the Crosswalk

3-5 p.m. - Student Organization Reps.
KUB - Find out about how to get involved

7 p.m. - BINGO - KUB
Win $ Cash $ for books -
Only 25 cents per card

9 p.m. - Comedy Night with
Bill Masters - KUB

Program Board Meeting

Wednesday, August 31 6 p.m.
Multi - A KUB

Get involved in changing campus events

Everyone is welcome

NEXT WEEK'S EVENTS

Volleyball Jamboree

Tues., Sept. 6 - 6 p.m.

Outdoor Court

No sign-ups

Just come and play!!

Feature Film

LA
BAMBA

An American
Success
Story

9/7&9/8 2:30 p.m. KUB
9/7&9/9 7&9:30 p.m.
Carver

Welcome Back Night
at

CHEERS

BU'S HOT NIGHTSPOT

Thur., Sept. 8 - 9 a.m.-1 p.m.
KUB Coffeehouse

Delicious drinks, freemunchies,
Dance Music by WBUQ

The Obiter, Bloomsburg University's official yearbook is recruiting new staff members for 1988-89. Previous publications experience is welcome but not necessary.

Gain valuable experience, attend off-campus developmental workshops, look into internship!

The Obiter is a great opportunity to see YOUR work in a permanent publication. Call the Obiter office at 389-4454 or 784-3458 to set up an interview.

Three named to PSAC East division team

Three members of the Bloomsburg University baseball team have been named to the All-Pennsylvania Conference Eastern Division baseball team for their performances in the recently completed season. Senior Rob Kirkpatrick, Wernersville, junior Matt Karchner, Berwick, and sophomore Tim Pritchard, Milton, were the top three hitters for coach John Babb's team which posted a 20-19 record.

All three players performed in every one of the Huskies' 39 games and combined for 162 hits, 144 runs batted in, 123 runs scored and 66 extra base hits. The selection to the all-conference unit is a first for Kirkpatrick and Pritchard, while Karchner is on the unit for the second straight season.

Kirkpatrick closed a fine career with his best season as a member of the squad, collecting 57 hits in 131 trips to the plate for an average of .435. The left-handed hitter spent most of the season as the Huskies' designated hitter and scored 47 runs in addition to knocking in 40 other runs. His hits included 14 doubles, two triples and six home runs. He also walked 223 times and was hit by pitched balls on four occasions to build an on-base percentage of .529. His seasonal slugging percentage was .710.

In his four seasons with the team, he had 116 hits in 314 at-bats for a batting average of .369, and had 26 doubles, five triples and 10 home runs. Kirkpatrick was credited with 85 career runs scored and 89 r.b.i.

Karchner hit .391 on 54 hits in 138 at-bats. He was the Huskies' regular third baseman as well as a relief pitcher on the team's mound staff. He had a conference-leading 62 r.b.i.

and scored an additional 46 times. He contributed 11 doubles and an equal number of home runs and also had two triples. His on-base and slugging percentages were .429 and .739, respectively.

On the pitching mound, he appeared in seven games and had a record of 2-2 with three saves. In 20 and one-third innings of work, Karchner allowed 14 hits and six runs, five of which were earned. He registered 26 strikeouts, walked only seven opposing batters and had an earned run average of 1.72.

He joined the team in 1986 and during his three years in a Bloomsburg uniform he has collected 110 hits in 314 at-bats for a fine career average of .350. His totals included 23 doubles, three triples and 23 home runs. Karchner also knocked in 115 runs and scored 83 others.

As a pitcher for Babb's squad, he has made 19 career appearances, totalling 60 and one-third innings. He has allowed 58 hits and 27 runs, 20 of which were earned. He has given up 35 walks while striking out 54 batters. His career e.r.a. is 2.32, and he has a 6-5 record with four saves.

Pritchard made a big impact in his first season with the team winning the starting first base job and leading the team with a .436 average at the plate. He picked 51 hits in 117 at-bats, including 10 doubles, three triples and seven home runs. Pritchard scored 30 runs and had 42 r.b.i. He walked 21 times and had an on-base percentage of .532. His slugging percentage of .752 was also a team-high mark this season.

Huskies Football faces Conference Champs in a tough 1988 schedule

Contests with last season's Pennsylvania Conference (PC) champion, Indiana (Pa.), and runnerup, West Chester, highlight the 1988 Bloomsburg University football schedule. The 11-game schedule includes five games in Bloomsburg's Robert B. Redman Stadium and six contests on the opponents' fields including a pair of night games.

Coach Pete Adrian's club, which posted an 8-3 record a year ago, will face Indiana (Pa.) in the Huskies' final home game of the season at 1 p.m. on Nov. 5.

The Indians have made appearances in the last three PC championship games and won titles in 1986 and 1987. One of the two night games on the schedule will be at 7 p.m. at West Chester on Friday, Sept. 30.

The Rams have won the conference's Eastern Division in each of the last two seasons but fell to Indiana (Pa.) in the championship contest both years.

For the second-straight season, the Huskies open the campaign at Norfolk State (Va.) The game on Sept. 3 is set for 1:30 p.m. in the Spartans' Foreman Field and is the first of two road games to open the season as Shippensburg hosts Adrian's unit at 1 p.m. the following Saturday, Sept. 10.

Lock Haven helps Bloomsburg kick off the home schedule on Sept. 17 when the Bald Eagles visit Redman Stadium for a 1 p.m. game, and the Huskies begin play in the PC Eastern Division the next week at 1 p.m. on Sept. 24 hosting Kutztown.

After traveling to West Chester, the Huskies return home on Oct. 8 for a Parents' Day game at 1:30 p.m. with East Stroudsburg and go to Cheyney at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 15 before entertaining Mansfield in the Huskies' 61st annual Homecoming game at 1:30 p.m. on Oct. 22.

The other night contest on the slate will be at Millersville at 7 p.m. on Oct. 29, and two weeks later the regular season comes to a close when the Huskies visit New Haven for a 1 p.m. game on Nov. 12.

This will be the second-consecutive season the Huskies have had 11 regular-season games scheduled.

The complete schedule is as follows: Sept. 3, at Norfolk State, 1 p.m.; Sept. 10, at Shippensburg, 1 p.m.; Sept. 17, Lock Haven, 1 p.m.; Sept. 24, Kutztown, 1 p.m.; Sept. 30, at West Chester, 7 p.m.; Oct. 8, East Stroudsburg, 1:30 p.m.; Oct. 15, at Cheyney, 1:30 p.m. Oct. 22, Mansfield, 1:30 p.m. Oct. 29, at Millersville, 7 p.m.; Nov. 5, Indiana (Pa.), 1 p.m. Nov. 12 at New Haven, 1 p.m.

Eight to receive honors at BU athletic banquet

Tickets are on sale for the Bloomsburg University Athletic Hall of Fame reception/banquet.

The banquet be held on Friday, September 23, at the Danville-Sheraton Inn.

Eight new members including seven graduates and a former athletic coach/administrator will receive the university's highest athletic honor in ceremonies that evening.

Thomas Donan, Jr. '49; Frank Golder '31; Elfed Jones '30, Walter "Whitey" McCloskey '44; Jan Prosseda '66; Francis "Doc" Sell '35; John J. "Bloody" Sircovics '39; and Eleanor Wray will be inducted into the Hall of Fame which currently has 13 members.

The affair begins at 6 p.m. with a cocktail reception followed at 7 p.m. by the dinner and awards presentations.

A reception with the new inductees as the honored guests will also follow the banquet.

Cost for the banquet is $15 per person. Those interested in purchasing tickets should make checks payable to BU/ Hall of Fame Banquet and send it with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Jim Hollister, Sports Information Director, Room 103, Waller Administration Building.

No tickets will be returned via mail after Sept. 16. Tickets may also be purchased by stopping in the Office of Sports Information from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A limited number of tickets are available so those wishing to attend are encouraged to make their purchase immediately.

Questions can be directed to Hollister at 717-389-4413.

Club raises funds for BU athletes

Bloomsburg University raised more than $3000 for its general athletic scholarship fund during Husky Club's golf outing held on Friday, June 10, at Mill Race Golf and Camping Resort in Benton.

The proceeds were a result of tee and green sponsorships as well as the entry fees for the 36 participating golfers and several others who joined the group for dinner following the game.

A foursome representing NEP Administrators of Conyngham, Pa., captured the top prize in the event which used the scramble system to determine place winners. The team of Ed Kosteva, Andy Magill, Ed Beishline and Dave Roche registered an eight-under-par score of 63 to finish with the honors.

Other prizes awarded went to Robert Rawlins (Lincoln Investment Planning, Inc.) in the longest drive contest, Frank Stackhouse (Stackhouse and Son) in the most-accurate drive contest.

Standout catcher named to first team

Bloomsburg University senior Cindy Freeland has been named to the GTE/CoSIDA Academic All-American softball first team in voting by sports information directors from colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The selection marks the second time the outstanding student/athlete has been selected for an award by the group as she earned second team honors in 1986.

Freeland, the Huskies' catcher, recently graduated from the university with a cumulative grade point average of 3.82 majoring in biology. She intends to enter medical school this fall.

The standout was the Huskies' starting catcher in each of her four years with the club and enjoyed her finest season in 1988. She played in 41 games and collected 39 hits in 127 at-bats for a batting average of .307 this season.

The catcher earned second team All-American honors this season as well as a year ago.

Freeland was also the recipient of one of the conference's scholar-athlete awards in 1986, 1987 and 1988.

She was a member of Beta Beta Beta (the biological honor society), Phi Kappa Phi (the national honor sorority), a recipient of a university scholarship and is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Freeland was on the university's Dean's List in each of her eight semesters at Bloomsburg.

In addition to her academic and athletic accomplishments, she was a participant in the university's intramural program and was a member of the athletic department's games management staff.

Reese, 'Coach of the Year'

Bloomsburg University tennis coach Burt Reese has been named the 1988 Pennsylvania Conference (PC) "Coach of the Year" by his fellow coaches. The selection marks the sixth time the veteran coach, who is completing his 20th year in charge of the program, has won the award.

Reese led his unit to a school-record 26 victories this year against just six losses facing a dual-match schedule that included 19 NCAA Division I opponents and several of the top Division II and III squads in the country.

In addition, the Huskies won their second-straight PC title and seventh conference crown in the past 10 seasons.

In the conference championships, the Huskies swept all nine flights and scored a perfect 36 points, only the third time the feat has been accomplished. Reese's 1981 unit also registered a perfect showing in the event.

In his 20 seasons in charge of the program, Reese has compiled a record of 298-127 for a winning percentage of .701. His team had a 73-match fall winning streak snapped this year when the East's top-rated team, West Virginia, handed the Huskies a 5-3 setback in September.

He has coached 63 PC singles and doubles champions and has had 25 players participate in the Division II national championships including four members of this year's team.

The Huskies coach earned the national "Coach of the Year" honors last season, and his teams have now recorded 17 consecutive winning seasons.

Reese serves as the university's assistant athletic director.

Mets to take title

by Lincoln Weiss
Sports Editor

First off, I'd like to welcome everyone back to Bloomsburg and most especially the freshmen.

Baseball is now heading into the final month of the season and as some races tighten up, others are becoming run-aways. The New York Mets are one of those teams running away. They don't hit well, but boy can they pitch proving that pitching is 90 percent of the game. The Pirates may still challenge, but inexperience will leave them short.

Speaking of the Phillies, (and we were not) they are the worst bunch of unmotivated ball players ever seen. The only bright spot of the year is rookie sensation Ricky Jordon who is trying to squeeze a full year of statistics in about 65 games.

Don't be surprised if he gets the Rookie of the Year Award in the National League.

My bold prediction of this NFL season: The Philadelphia Eagles and the Buffalo Bills will make the playoffs.

How about that Mitch Green? In a pro wrestling type of move, he attacks World Heavyweight Champion Mike Tyson on the streets of Harlem. Green was belted by Tyson in the encounter and Green initially sued Tyson for damages.

Last week Green dropped the suit but is now demanding a title shot. I can see it now: LIVE TONIGHT! SEE THE STREET FIGHT OF THE CENTURY AS WORLD CHAMPION MIKE TYSON DEFENDS HIS TITLE AGAINST MITCH GREEN IN A SPECIAL STREET FIGHT MATCH. The winner, of course, is the last man standing.

I'd like your help. If you have any ideas about what you would like to see in our coverage of sports, please call our office. Or write it down and bring it to our office in the Kehr Union gameroom. Remember, this is your newspaper, your opinion counts!

Also, we need writers! If you would like to write about sport, news, or feature articles, come to a general meeting in the Voice office on Thursday at 8:00pm.

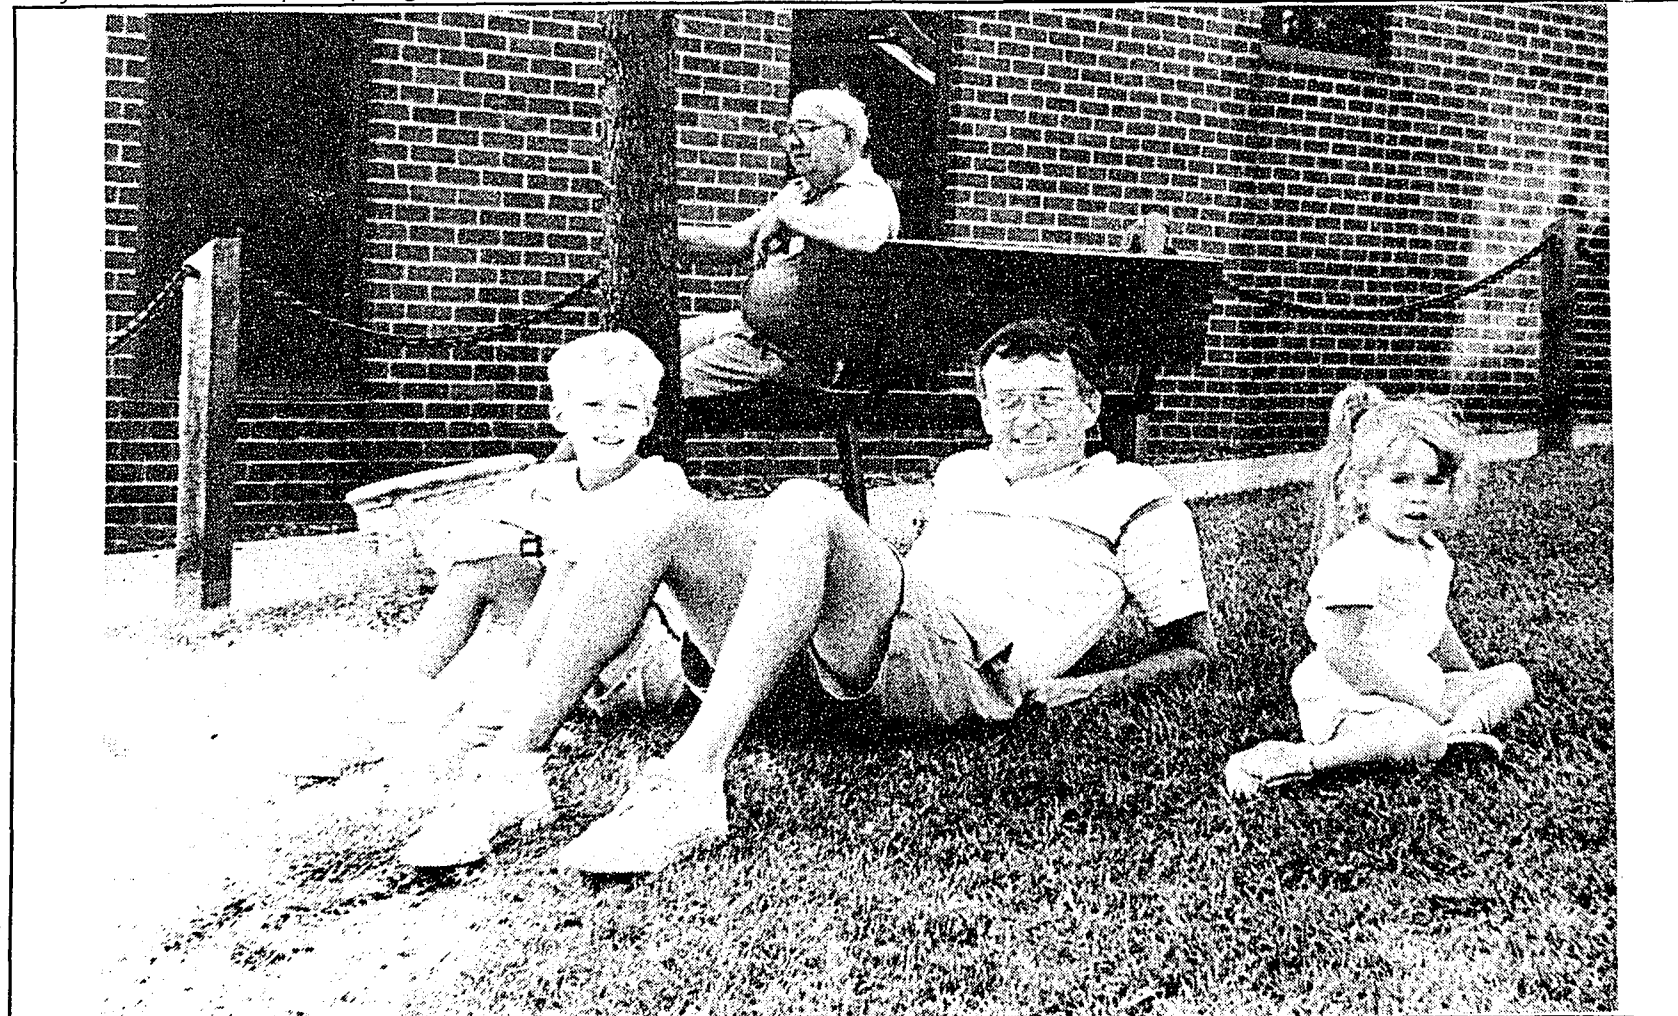

GO HUSKIES!

Students are bringing everything but the kitchen sink back with them as they move their essentials, and then some, back into their dorms in preparation for the Fall 1988 Semester.

Photo by Chris Lower

Senior named to Softball Academic All-American

These visitors were caught enjoying the warm and sunny weather on campus yesterday despite all the activity caused by students moving in for this semester.

Photo by Chris Lower