Dangerously Improv

Thursdays at 5:30 p.m. in the Countdown Theatre (Sloan 321)

Dangerously Improv is the name of the University Players Improv group. This group provides an opportunity to learn and perform improvised material.

NO SCRIPTS ALLOWED.

Improvisation means that there are no preconceived notions of what's going to happen. The group focuses on performing without a script or planned scenes.

I CAN'T IMPROVISE

A common misconception! Everyone has the ability to improvise and with the opportunities to learn as well as perform offered by Dangerously Improv, you can learn a new skill that will benefit you in the years to come.

Working in the Theatre: A Career Workshop Part II

Interview Tips, Portfolio Presentation Techniques,

How to Select and Workshop a Monologue, Audition Protocol

Working in the Theatre Career Workshops are open to all LHUP students. Theatre Majors and Minors are especially encouraged to attend.

Theatre Course Offerings Fall 2007

THEA 110 THEATRE: AN ORIENTATION An introduction to theatre. It includes a definition and analysis of theatrical art, script analysis, the relationship between theatre and the culture from which it came and the roles of theatre practitioners. The course includes hands-on application and group work.

THEA117 TECHNICAL THEATRE A lecture-lab approach to the art and craft of scenery construction, property construction, scene painting, basic stage lighting, and organization of technical aspects of theatrical production. Suggested for those who wish to learn behind-the-scene aspects of play production.

THEA121 THEATRE WORKSHOP I Participation in a theatrical production sponsored by the Department. Students contract to work in one area of production: acting, set construction, costume construction, lighting, sound, properties, make-up, promotions, or assistant to the director.

THEA134 ACTING I The study and practice of the fundamental principles of acting. Stress is placed on the use of the body and voice as the basis of effective acting. This course is for those interested in acting as an art form and as a means of creative expression. At mid-term students will have gained the necessary skill to perform scenes for their classmates. Attendance is key to the successful completion of this course.

THEA 335 DIRECTING The preparation of the theatrical director; the fundamental elements of play direction; the media of the director; composition, picturization, movement, rhythm, pantomime, rehearsal and production procedures. Students will be responsible for directing scenes from dramatic literature. These presentations are a laboratory experience and are designed to measure students' understanding of the basic principles of stage direction.

THEA 336 COSTUME DESIGN A course designed to give the student fundamental training in the theory and practice of theatrical costume design and construction.

THEA 370 PLAY PRODUCTION A lecture-lab examination of techniques of play production approached from the viewpoints of the actor, the director, and the technical director. Special emphasis on play selection and rehearsal procedures for amateur groups; high schools, community theatre and civic organizations.

ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT OF PERFORMING ARTS THEATRE DIVISION

The Bachelor of Arts degree in Theatre combines a liberal arts education with practical theatre production experience. Students study drama theory and forms of theatrical productions from historical and contemporary approaches. Not only do students study acting techniques, scenic, lighting, costume and stage makeup design, they also have opportunities in creative dramatics, directing, and children's theatre. To provide students with ample hands-on experience, the academic program is coupled with the practical experience component in all of the collaborative roles associated with a theatre production.

Outside the classroom environment, students may participate in activities such as the University Players, the student drama organization, which produces two or three main stage productions and two to four studio productions each year. Internship opportunities are also available and can be customized to meet student's goals. Through the department, guest professionals in theatre visit to share their expertise with students, direct productions, and conduct workshops in the classroom.
