 - D. President's Report- President Shepherd
President Shepherd welcomed Dr. Dale to talk about the PASSHE redesign. Some students met with Greenstein. The administration typed the student comments at these meetings and distributed to admin. Chancellor Greenstein took these into consideration and begun to act upon them. The first step was to gather information and find major flaws and how to fix these. The first ideal the group looked at was student success, the second was retention rates and cost, the third was university success. Then, they looked at how students move forward in their career after leaving university. Dr. Dale went to the presidents retreat and worked hard on this. Phase two is putting together committee to do deeper dives in regard the information available. Phase three will be how the system moves forward. The PASSHE System was very worried about cost, especially for on campus students. The chancellor presented what he would need to transform the system. They were asking very important questions. Here at clarion, a lower income area, our students are at a disadvantage. We have different needs and should not be held to the same standards. We may all be a system, but we have different needs. The sharing system is the biggest change right now. The sharing system is the idea that if there are two or three assigned people to handle payroll, the university would centralize this and take the resources of the other two payroll employees and offer it to another department. Another major consideration. The biggest sharing system would be dealing with courses, students who want to take a class online that isn't offered here at clarion at another state university. Clarion does not have a lot of condensing to do, as we are at bare bones. Our focus would be when people retired or quit. We would look into repurposing that position when we fill it. This may face opposition, but administration is working to iron out the details. The new chancellor is worried about student success, retention and graduation rates, and cost, as well as university success. This sharing system is the best way to achieve these goals. The system has discussed decentralizing as well, the biggest change this would bring would be that universities could set their own tuitions. While we aren't quite there yet, we are working on Tippin close to done. Net project tear down carrier. Moore being redone to be ADA compliant. Moore important to our history so want it fixed so that we may use it more often. Also looking into renovating classrooms, Egbert, and Ballantine. Before starting any major projects, we need t update what we have. The Dine to Donate fundraiser at Applebee's is Tomorrow, February 26, 2019. We will be sending a delegation of six to Advocacy days. No meeting next Monday, see everyone back on March 11.
